COLUMBIA CEREMONY

20 Years of Talking Ends in Token Blast

WAC ORDERS A ROUND BUT BLACK PAYS SHOT

KASLO (CP) — Premier W. A. C. Bennett walked into a beer parlor in this little Kootenay town and ordered drinks all round.

The action started some 15 loggers, farmers and workers in the licensed premises since the premier is well known as a non-drinker who usually shuns drink-serving official functions.

Mr. Bennett had just come from a ceremony to mark the official start of the giant Columbia River development project.

The premier, accompanied by Provincial Secretary Wesley Black, went into the beer parlor on his way to meet waiting press men here.

He shook hands all round, complimented one man on the length of his beard, and ordered drinks for those present. Actually Mr. Black shelled out the cash for the beer.

The premier, of course, didn't have a drink himself.

Bandit Kills Credit Man

VANCOUVER (CP) — Police were searching today for a fair-haired bandit who shot and killed a trust company executive, twiddled violently, then scooped $2,000 from a cash drawer and fled.

Jan Kelderman, about 46, was killed Wednesday when he was shot through the chest during a brief scuffle with the gunman.

Employees of the Commonwealth Trust Co. branch said the bandit, described as about 25 to 30, twiddled violently after the shooting and became glassy-eyed as he sprang to a nearby cash drawer.

Police said the bandit spoke to Mr. Kelderman, assistant credit manager, on the pretext of seeking a loan and suddenly jumped up and screamed: "Where is your vault?"

Branch manager Milton Lake described the shooting this way: "There was a scuffle. There was one shot through the glass. 'I heard another shot right after the first. Kelderman fell down.'"

Teller Mrs. Joan McLeod screamed: "You didn't have to shoot him—the money is all insured."

Police believed the bandit escaped in a stolen car, found later outside an apartment building.

Mr. Kelderman is survived by his wife and four children.

'CANADA SHOULD SET AN EXAMPLE'

(See also Page 33)

OTTAWA (CP)—The Shah of Iran called on Canada today to set "a brilliant example" in the world-wide drive to cut the gap between the have and have-not nations.

The Iranian ruler, in the major speech of his week-long state visit to Canada, said this country's material prosperity and "social and moral conditions" qualified it for a leading role in efforts to raise international economic standards.

"I feel certain that Canada will accomplish this mission splendidly," he told a Canadian Club luncheon.

Everest Conquered

KATMANDU, Nepal (Reuters) — A two-man Indian team climbed Mount Everest today and tied the Indian flag to a four-foot flagpole left on the summit by the 1963 American expedition.

The two mountaineers reached the 29,028-foot peak of the world's highest mountain this morning and spent a half-hour there.

NELSON (CP) — British Columbia Premier W. A. C. Bennett touched off an explosion Wednesday that signalled the official start of construction on the $500 million Columbia River power project.

The symbolic explosion, a token charge of 5,000 pounds of powder, dumped 7,000 cubic yards of rock along the banks of the Duncan River near Kaslo, 70 miles north of here.

Dr. Hugh Keenleyside, co-chairman of the government-owned B.C. Hydro and Power Authority, said the occasion marked "the official beginning of the work that has been going on for some time."

Tenders for work on the massive three-dam Canadian part of the international undertaking were called immediately following a border ceremony near Vancouver last Sept. 16 where Prime Minister Pearson and President Johnson proclaimed the Columbia River Treaty.

20 YEARS TALKING

Mr. Bennett referred to the fact that it took 20 years negotiating between Canada, the United States and British Columbia to hammer out the pact.

Negotiations began in 1944 and let to U.S. ratification in 1961. Canadian ratification was prolonged by B.C. demands for control of sale of downstream benefits of the Canadian dams on the Columbia system to the U.S. Agreement was finally reached in 1964.

"As premier of the province, I want to thank our American friends for their patience and hard bargaining," Mr. Bennett said.

The U.S. was represented at the ceremony by Avery Peterson, consul-general in Vancouver.

Mr. Bennett also announced a $21.25 million program calling for new highways, bridges and a ferry in the Kootenay area.

The premier made the announcement at a civic dinner in his honor.

Most of the projects tie in directly with the power development and some had been announced previously, but it was the first time that the entire $21.25 million network had been lumped together as one large enterprise.

The announcement named six major projects to be undertaken:

- A bridge across the lower Arrow Lakes at Fauquier at a total cost of $6,000,000;
- Construction of a new

'It Was Like A Bomb Fell Down'

NEW-YORK (AP)—"All of a sudden, it was like a bomb fell down," says the meat section manager who was serving customers when the roof of a Brooklyn supermarket collapsed and rained tons of concrete slabs and plaster debris onto customers and clerks.

The manager, Sam Kinker, 61, and his four women customers fled through one of the broken windows.

Twenty-three persons—mostly women shoppers—were injured. Most of them were treated at hospitals. Four were admitted.

Police, firemen and residents of the neighborhood pulled several victims out from under chunks of concrete.

"It's a miracle no one was killed," Fire Commissioner Martin Scott said after inspecting the ruins of the Food Queen supermarket in the Bensonhurst section Wednesday.

REDISTRIBUTION

Political Spokesmen Favor Plan

Premier Bennett said today that British Columbia will have redistribution of its federal ridings possibly before the next provincial election.

"We will either accept these new federal boundaries or we will have redistribution on our own," he said.

"We have not had time to study these proposed federal boundaries, so I wouldn't like to speculate."

"What is reasonable from a federal standpoint may not necessarily be reasonable from a provincial standpoint. People setting federal boundaries do not have to deal with all the problems an MLA has—problems involving schools, hospitals etcetera."

"We hope to have redistribution by the next election, but if an election comes unexpectedly we may not be ready."

"We don't want to fence ourselves in."

The premier said B.C. will not make representation at the federal redistribution hearings.

IN FAVOR

Spokesmen for various political groups in Victoria spoke favorably of the redistribution. But the majority reserved judgment until they had had time to study the changes.

"They seem pretty sensible where Victoria is concerned," said Alan Macfarlane, MLA for

Marcher Evades Border Barrier

Two Injured During Scuffle

City police today are seeking a young American ban-the-bomber who defied immigration authorities Wednesday and slipped across the Canada-U.S. border.

U.S. TROOPS 'NEUTRAL'

WASHINGTON (AP) — The White House said today American troops in the Dominican Republic remain under orders from President Johnson to "observe neutrality" between contending junta and rebel forces.

Press secretary George E. Reedy made the statement when asked about published reports that American troops have been aiding the junta cause.

Fourteen other American peace marchers were turned back.

The 15 attempted to march past officials at Blaine crossing so they could join the Victoria-to-Comox walk this weekend.

Eric Robinson, 22, of Florida and San Francisco, eluded border officials when he left the immigration office Wednesday night.

Roger McNeill of London, staying in Vancouver while waiting to begin the march on the RCAF base, said Robinson "simply walked across the border, got into somebody's car and we all came to Vancouver."

Vancouver Peace House director Peter Light confirmed today that Robinson had crossed the border but said he didn't know where the American was.

Truce Sought To Get Bodies In Dominican

SANTO DOMINGO (CP) — United Nations and Red Cross officials today tried to get leaders of the rival civil war forces in the Dominican Republic to sign a 12-hour ceasefire and allow the removal of dead and wounded from the fighting zone.

The Red Cross said bodies of men, women and children had

LAUNCH PROTEST

Mr. Light said Bill Simones of Montreal was injured in a scuffle with border officials Wednesday. Simones of Vancouver Peace House joined Robinson and Dean Plagowski of San Francisco in a sit-down protest between the borders.

Mr. Simones was hit when the sign he was carrying fell on him while he was being dragged by police, Light said.

A Canadian Press report indicated that a border official was hit by a banner during the border scuffle.

The RCMP officer could have been hit by the falling sign, Mr. Light said today.

'STRUCK ON NECK'

Mr. Light also charged that Mr. Simones was struck across the hands and on the neck by a handcuff-wielding RCMP officer when he refused to put his hands out to be handcuffed.

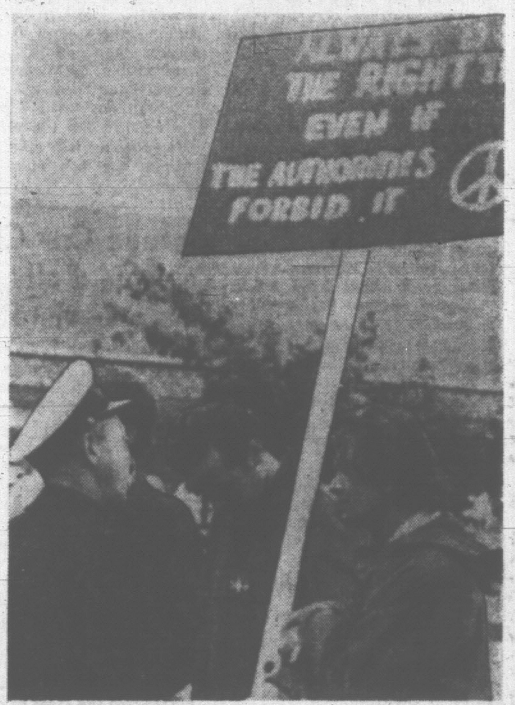

The 15 Americans attempted to cross the border about 4 p.m. Wednesday on their way to Vancouver Peace House before coming to Victoria to march to Comox RCAF base. Ten of the 15 were from Bellingham.

The trio was dragged to a customs building for interviews in a series of scuffles with RCMP. The demonstrations ended about 8:30 p.m.

Mr. Light said that Mr. Simones and the two rebels from San Francisco defied the police orders because they were prepared to commit civil disobedience. The three were to take part in a sit-down at the Comox air base later this year in an attempt to close the base down.

The rest of the delegation from

121 KILLED

Six Survive Jetliner Crash

CAIRO (UPI) — A Pakistan airliner crashed in a ball of fire today while approaching Cairo airport on an inaugural flight, killing 121 of the 127 persons aboard, including seven Americans.

TO JAPAN

Times Joins Mission

The advance party of British Columbia's largest government mission to go abroad will take off from Vancouver for Tokyo Friday afternoon and The Times will go with it.

Legislative reporter John Mika will accompany the advance party to be on hand for Premier W. A. C. Bennett's arrival Sunday in the Japanese capital.

He will send back periodic reports on the activities of the eight-man mission — including five resource ministers and two aides — in their examination of the "economic miracle" that has created a major industrial power out of the ruins of 1945.

Besides reporting on the tours of industrial plants and meetings with government and big business leaders, Mr. Mika will search for material on the implications of Japan's resurgence.

He will journey to Hong Kong with the premier's party.

But when the mission flies back to Canada June 6, Mr. Mika will continue through the Orient alone, stopping at Manila and then returning to Japan for a 10-day solo tour in search of stories of interest to British Columbians.

All six survivors were Pakistanis, as were most of the passengers on the Karachi-Cairo-London flight.

The Boeing 720B jet was flying a new leg of the air route linking China with the Middle East, and Communist diplomatic mail and propaganda was found scattered among the wreckage.

The plane carried 115 passengers and 12 crew members.

Ten of the victims were identified as Chinese.

The plane's charred wreckage was scattered over a half-mile area of the Halzouny Valley about 10 miles from the airport.

SURVIVORS IN REAR

One of the survivors, Djallal Elkariem, said he and the others who escaped death were in the back of the plane.

"It's a miracle that any of us lived. We all should have been killed," he said.

A rescue team member reported that when he reached the wreckage, about 200 or 300 Bedouin tribesmen were searching through it, "pillaging and doing nothing to help the survivors."

It was the third worst single air crash in aviation history. The worst occurred June 3, 1962, at Orly Airport near Paris. A chartered Boeing 707 jet hurtled off the runway and crashed, killing 130 persons, including 121 from Atlanta, Ga., who were touring European art centres.

The sweeping jetliner which crashed today left Karachi yesterday night, stopped in Dhahran in the Persian Gulf and was

Germans Cheer Royal Plea

KOBLENZ (Reuters) — Queen Elizabeth was cheered by thousands of West Germans today when she appealed for Anglo-West German efforts to "forge a new and better understanding" between the two countries.

The British monarch, applauded by a flag-waving crowd in this wine-growing centre 35 miles south of Bonn, was making the first public speech of her 11-day state visit to West Germany.

With Prince Philip at her side, the Queen said: "For 50 years we heard too much about the things which divided us. Let us now make a great effort to remember the things which unite us. With these links we can begin to forge a new and better understanding in the future."

Graduating students of the University of Victoria will be announced following a meeting of the university senate next Wednesday.

CITY AREA MPs TAKE OPPOSING VIEWS ON RIDING CHANGES

Groos—I'll Accept; Chatterton—Intend to Fight

By JOYCE FAIRBAIRN
Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA—The two members of Parliament from the Greater Victoria and south Vancouver Island area take opposing views on the proposed change in electoral riding boundaries proposed by the redistribution commission.

David Groos, Victoria Liberal, says he is prepared to accept the alterations announced Wednesday.

George Chatterton, Esquimalt-Saanich Conservative, intends to fight the proposed re-allocations in his riding.

In an interview Chatterton said that there was no doubt whatever that the commission tried to be "fair and impartial," but he feels it lacked the "local sense" of the area.

Central to his objection is the fact the part of Saanich municipality east of Maplewood Road and south of Cedar Hill Crossroad will be removed from his riding and added onto the constituency of Victoria.

Other areas removed from Esquimalt-Saanich are Metchoin, Sooke, Port Renfrew, Shawigan Lake, Mill Bay and Cobble Hill. The riding will gain the municipality of Esquimalt from Victoria riding.

These changes, said Chatterton, will adjust the population of his riding to 76,800 while the new Victoria riding will have 78,000.

Chatterton feels that wherever possible and feasible the whole of a municipality should be included in one riding.

Frequently there are federal issues of interest to a particular municipality, he said. Also when such things as federal contracts for building arise there is often "conflict between adjoining municipalities."

"I realize that the commission was required to consider future growth, and it is quite true that Saanich will probably grow faster than Victoria," he said.

Chatterton will file his objection for the June 11 deadline and then the matter will be placed before a public hearing of the commission.

"It is not a question of whether the changes are good or

U.S. Jets Near Hanoi Drop Only Pamphlets

SAIGON (UPI) — American jets flew to within 55 miles of Hanoi today—the closest ever to the North Vietnamese capital—but dropped psychological warfare leaflets instead of bombs.

Tass, the official Soviet news agency, said U.S. reconnaissance planes led by 12 jet fighter-bombers came within 12 miles of Hanoi. The Tass dispatch said North Vietnamese anti-aircraft gunners opened fire. It made no mention of hits.

An American spokesman reporting the leaflet raid said other U.S. planes bombed military targets farther south of Hanoi, including an ammunition depot, railroad bridges and rolling stock and an offshore radar station.

REJECTED PAINTINGS

Professor Tony Emery of the University of Victoria will open the Salon de Refuses at the Friday lunchtime pop concert at the McPherson Playhouse.

The salon will feature rejected paintings of the 15th Vancouver Island Jury Exhibition.

"Eventually we hope to have hundreds of paintings," said pop concert man, Kenneth Gravenor. "Any artists who want to show their rejected pictures can simply bring them to the McPherson and we will hang them up."

"It will cost them a 25-cent admission to the concert." The opening will take place between the two noon hour concerts.

Vintage Car Club To Hold Rally This Weekend

The annual May rally of the Victoria Region, Vintage Car Club of Canada, will be held in Nanaimo Saturday, Sunday and Monday.

More than 100 cars, ranging from 1905 to 1940 models, will be entered in the tour.

There will be about 20 cars from Victoria, 20 more from the mainland and the rest from the United States.

Most of the drivers will be in costume in the Saturday afternoon parade in Nanaimo and in the Sunday parade to the Cowichan Valley Forest Museum.

Canadian, Soviet Fishboats Collide

VANCOUVER (CP)—A Canadian fishboat loaded with 50,000 pounds of halibut was damaged in a collision with a Soviet fishing vessel off the Alaskan coast, the RCAF reported here Wednesday.

RCAF officials identified the Canadian boat as the B.C. Clipper, a 68-foot vessel owned and operated by Stan Sorensen of North Vancouver. The B.C. Clipper was in no immediate danger and was under escort to Prince Rupert in company with two other Canadian fishboats.

Oak Bay. I understand Victoria will now take in Victoria West but not Esquimalt township.

"That will avoid much confusion."

Mr. Macfarlane also supported the detachment of Sooke, Metchison and Cobble Hill from the Esquimalt riding.

"It means they will be joined with other rural areas which have similar problems."

"I am satisfied the commission has done a non-partisan, non-political job."

Len Stephenson, NDP candidate for Esquimalt-Saanich in the next federal election, also spoke in favor.

"I don't understand George Chatterton's reasons for objecting," he said. "The whole set-up looks very sensible to me."

"It looks to be a very intelligent set-up," said Eric Charman, a former president of Victoria Conservative Constituency Association.

Mr. Charman was Conservative candidate for Victoria in the last federal election.

Kenneth Cox, president of Victoria Liberal Constituency Association, and officials of Victoria Social Credit Constituency Association, declined comment for the present.

● Relocation of the highway between Fauquier and Nakusp at a cost of $3,000,000.

● A $1,000,000 improvement to the former Celgar road from Nakusp to Galena Bay.

● Establishment of a ferry from Galena Bay to Shelter Bay on the upper Arrow Lakes at a cost of $125,000.

● Construction of a new road along the west side of the Columbia River from Shelter Bay to Revelstoke. The highways department will pay the $1,500,000 cost of 12 miles of this new route and B.C. Hydro and Power Authority will pay $2,500,000 to complete another 17 miles.

The premier said "hundreds of millions" would be spent in the area and residents would benefit.

Mr. Bennett said he would set up a "new cabinet committee" to deal with economic growth in the district.

UNVEIL CAIRN

Canada's Labor Minister Allan MacEachen is due to join the group today when it travels to the Castlegar area for unveiling of a cairn to mark the beginning of construction of High Arrow dam.

Wednesday's ceremony at the Duncan Lake dam site was a preliminary to the main ceremony at Arrow.

The third treaty dam will be called Mica and will be the largest, most costly and spectacular of the three. It will be located 90 miles north of Revelstoke and will be the only one with generating capacity.

BOY SURVIVES 6-FLOOR FALL

MARCHERS

The United States wished to participate in Saturday's parade from Beacon Hill Park, he said.

The 15 Americans were reported to be heading for their homes today. The Peace House workers returned to Vancouver.

Ten members of Vancouver Peace House had gone to the border in an attempt to facilitate the crossing by the Americans.

After being refused admission to Canada Wednesday afternoon, the 15 Americans marched abreast across the border but were halted when border officials called in the RCMP. The police ordered the marchers to return to the United States and 13 complied with the order.

The two who refused were Mr. Robinson and Mr. Plagowski. He said they were joined by Mr. Simones from the Peace House delegation and the trio staged a mid-border sit down.

He said he could understand border officials stopping peace workers who were prepared to engage in civil disobedience "because they were prepared to break federal and criminal laws."

But he said while the officials were technically right they were morally wrong.

"I am against borders. A border is an artificial line. They prevent the free travel of people from place to place."

Three of the Americans were identified as Paul Band, Boston; Tom Cedergreen, Hawaii; and Michael Medaille, Costa Mesa, Calif. The 10 from Bellingham were not identified.

Indonesia Takes Shoe Firm

JAKARTA, Indonesia (UPI)—The Indonesian government has placed under its control the Canadian owned Bata Shoe Company and four other foreign properties, the official news agency Antara reported today.

Bata is the largest foreign-owned company in Indonesia outside of oil firms which previously had been placed under government control.

Originally a Czechoslovakian firm, Bata is owned by Canadians and managed by V. A. Samek, an Australian. It has a factory, and stores throughout the island of Java and employs almost 2,000 Indonesians.

The other four firms included an American owned Singer Sewing machine plant, a Belgian brewery, a Belgian cigarette factory and a West German toothpaste plant.

Airport tower officials and workers on the runway reported seeing "a fireball" in the pre-dawn sky at the time of the disaster. The weather was clear.

The flight had received wide publicity in Pakistan as the first direct commercial link between China and the Middle East, a distance of about 5,000 miles.

Pakistan Airlines began flying to China by way of Canton and Shanghai in 1963 but began its Karachi-to-Cairo run only last week.

The same plane made the first official flight here a week ago but today's trip was billed as the "inaugural."

Twenty-six newsmen, most of them Pakistanis, were aboard the ill-fated plane, along with some government officials.

HOME GARDEN

Ordinary Berberis Useful Background

By HILDA BEASTALL

It seems to me that one of the most usefully ornamental shrubs for local gardens is the common, ordinary purple leaved berberis.

Not the most beautiful, but this berberis, sometimes called by the common name Barberry is decidedly useful for many purposes.

A prickly, deciduous shrub which can serve as a clipped hedge to about four feet, it has already given us one period of beauty this spring with its crimson tipped little yellow flowers.

Now, the abundant small dark purple leaves are serving as foliage background for a variety of spring blooming perennials.

Flowers which are strong pink in color, such as Lychis viscaria and Cardamine pratense require foliage of equal color strength, and the purple berberis provides this admirably.

I also find that the dark blue Siberian irises which have but few leaves of their own to spare for cutting, gain immeasurably by association with the deep purple.

It is, I think, a matter of accentuating the positive. The deep flower colors are positive and, far from wishing to tone them down, I like to emphasize their strength with foliage of similar or deeper tones.

Both in the garden and in cut flower arrangements, the purple leaved berberis stands out among greens or emphasizes the colors of deep orange (as the geums), dark blue, and strong rich pink.

Grown as a free standing shrub, a plant or two will give abundant long graceful branches of color, or attractive sprays which need little arranging.

There is a charming dwarf form for borders to complement low growing pink dianthus or a wide ribbon of blue annual lobelia.

WEATHER SYNOPSIS

Widespread shower activity in southern B.C. will end today. Skies were sunny in northern B.C. under the influence of a ridge of high pressure approaching the north coast. Clearing is expected in southern sections tonight as the ridge moves southeastward.

Friday will be sunny and a little milder in most of the province. However, another Pacific storm threatens to bring rain to the northern coast Friday night.

Rhine In Flames For Queen

By PETER JOHNSON

BONN (Reuters) — Queen Elizabeth and Prince Philip set out today on a tour of the West German provinces after two rousing days of welcome in the capital.

They left their hilltop Petersberg residence overlooking Bonn by car for Koblenz where the Rhine joins the Moselle. There they planned to board a Rhine steamer for a three-hour trip up the Rhine Valley to Mainz to take the royal train for Wiesbaden, the Hesse state capital.

The trip up the Rhine was a relaxing interlude for the Queen and Prince Philip after the first two hectic days of their 11-day visit, climaxed Wednesday night by a spectacular fireworks display called the "Rhine in Flames." An estimated 200,000 persons lined the banks of the river as a battery of launchers fired multi-colored rockets into the sky.

Large crowds of cheering, cheering Germans earlier turned out in the streets as the Queen and the duke carried out their hectic program in Bonn.

But there was a shadow over the royal tour after Munich police said Wednesday night that letters were received containing threats against the Queen's life.

The Queen and Prince Philip are due in the Bavarian city Friday. Security police, who first denied reports of threats, said there was "no cause for serious fears."

One official said "the activity of mentally deranged people is always stimulated by such occasions."

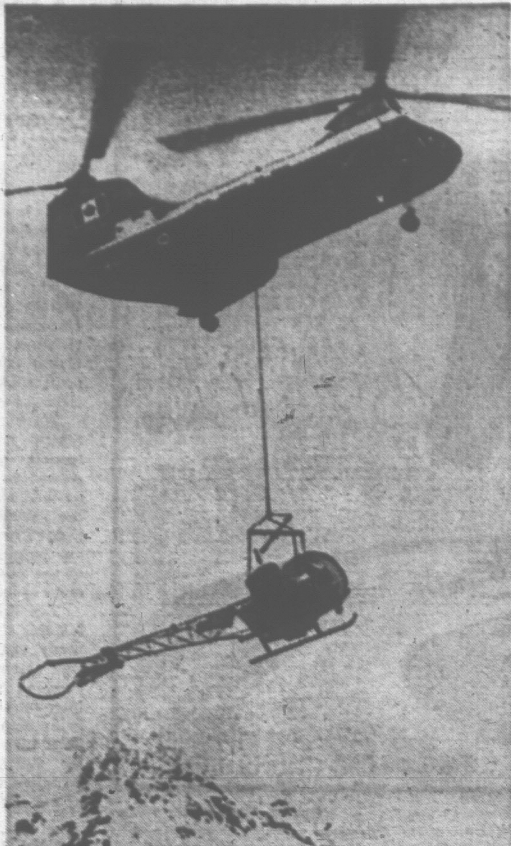

After her visits to Kaub and Wiesbaden, capital of the state of Hesse, the royal couple to-night planned to dine privately with Prince Ludwig of Hesse, the Queen's cousin and a brother-in-law of Prince Philip.

ATTEND GERMANY SCHOOL?

A London newspaper, The Daily Sketch, reported that the Queen was expected to decide at the end of her 11-day visit whether her son Prince Charles should go to school in Germany.

The newspaper said the Queen planned to spend Saturday and Sunday on a private visit to Prince Philip's sister, Princess Theodora, less than a mile away from the school in Salem where Prince Philip once was a student.

Princess Theodora's late husband, Prince Bernhard, was once the headmaster of Salem, founded by the same man who established Gordonstoun, the Scottish school now attended by Prince Charles.

SHASTRI RETURNS HOME

Reds Reap Harvest Of Hostility to U.S.

By CONRAD FINE
NEW DELHI (AP) — India has opened what it hopes will be a new era of friendly and profitable co-operation with the Soviet Union.

Shastri returned today from an eight-day visit to the Soviet Union proclaiming that India has Moscow's "sympathy and support" in many matters. This contrasted with widespread belief in New Delhi that India isn't getting this from the United States.

The U.S. image in India has been in trouble since President Johnson said last month he was going to be busy with the Viet Nam crisis and domestic affairs and asked Shastri to postpone a visit to Washington in June.

Many in New Delhi took this as a humiliating, heavy-handed rebuke for Shastri's attitude toward the U.S. role in Viet Nam. In a joint communique published in Moscow Wednesday, Shastri and Khrushchev criticized U.S. bombing of North Viet Nam, but this time without his recent balancing condemnation of all foreign interference in Viet Nam.

LAY OUT RED CARPET

Indian newspapers reported in great detail how the Russians laid out the red carpet. President Johnson was too busy, the newspapers pointed out, but Soviet Premier Khrushchev interrupted his schedule to accompany Shastri from Moscow to Leningrad.

Indian officials who returned home before Shastri reported the Russians were planning to double trade with India in the next five years to about $340,000,000 a year.

The Russians were also said to have promised to double aid for the next five-year development plan to $340,000,000.

There were broad hints of long-term credits and military aid—perhaps tanks to match those the U.S. gave Pakistan, ships to strengthen India's rusting navy or even supersonic jet fighters which the United States refused to provide.

LINDA BUSSES SOLDIER AMID RINGING CHEERS

GAZA (AP)—Linda Douma of Sidney, Miss Canada 1965, was cheered by 1,200 United Nations expeditionary force soldiers and officers who were entertained here Tuesday.

Linda, and 16 other entertainers representing the CBC, gave the party. The cheers were loudest when Linda kissed a bearded Indian soldier after he gave her a bouquet of flowers.

The group is scheduled to leave Wednesday for Beirut on its way home.

Quebec Upper House In New Battle Move

QUEBEC (CP)—The Quebec upper house made the latest move Wednesday in its current battle with the provincial government by serving notice it will debate a motion asking Queen Elizabeth to stifle Premier Lesage's attempt to limit council authority.

Notice was given by Edouard Asselin, Union Nationale leader in the legislative council, that he will introduce a motion asking the Queen to put aside an address from the provincial government requesting power to curb the council's powers.

The dispute between the two houses started when the council amended a government bill, effectively killing legislation aimed at restricting upper house powers.

The assembly then threw out the amended bill and Premier Lesage drafted the address to the Queen as a means of bypassing the council.

Mobile Labor Force Aim of New Program

By BEN WARD

OTTAWA (CP)—A program of loans and grants for workers who want to move to jobs in other areas was announced in the Commons Wednesday by Prime Minister Pearson as part of his "war on poverty" campaign. It will involve a $5,000,000 loan fund and another $5,000,000 a year in outright grants.

The aim is to put new mobility into the labor force, shifting labor surpluses to areas of labor shortage and encouraging workers to go where their skills can best be used.

Labor Minister MacEachen made a simultaneous announcement, with additional detail, during a speech to the Canadian Federation of Mayors and Municipalities in Windsor, Ont.

The labor minister listed these three categories of workers who will be eligible for loans, repayable "normally" in two years at interest not exceeding six per cent:

● Unemployed persons whose prospects of finding steady employment in line with their qualifications are unfavorable in their own locality;

● Workers who are facing layoff of a permanent nature and whose prospects of finding steady employment within commuting distance are unfavorable;

● Previously unemployed workers who, on their own initiative, have moved to employment approved by the NES in another locality and who require assistance in moving their families and household effects.

Mr. MacEachen said regulations will be drawn up to provide partial forgiveness of the loans in some circumstances and for repayment periods of more than two years where necessary.

Outright grants will be made made without a means test for workers in these three categories:

● Those who have been unemployed for four of the six months before applying;

● Those completing training courses or vocational rehabilitation and re-establishment programs;

● Key skilled workers now unemployed and required by firms receiving financial assistance under the area development program, provided no qualified workers are available in the firms' localities.

The program will also cover other groups, including marginal farmers who can find productive employment in other areas. The decision as to whether loans or grants will be made to these groups will rest with the labor department.

Mr. Drury's Dream

THE CONFUSION WHICH obscured the free-trade agreement on automobiles between Canada and the United States has at last been removed by Industry Minister Drury. It looked better when it was confused.

Normally, a free trade arrangement might reasonably be expected to benefit the consumer by reducing prices. Without tariffs to pay on the imported product and with outside competition forcing domestic prices lower, the buyer would reap a provable gain with each purchase.

But it may not work that way with the new deal on cars, which Ottawa has approved and which Congress is considering. For Mr. Drury now tells us that it is more likely that we shall hold the present level than that we shall have significant price decreases. He is hopeful, however, that eventually there may be "some modest price decreases." These will depend on the planned revision of manufacturing techniques with a consequent alteration in the cost of production. Ultimately there will be equality between Canadian and American automobile prices, but this apparently will be mainly due to an increase in United States prices.

This is a strange "non-benefit" to result from a free trade agreement. Mr. Drury says the real benefit will not be in concessions to the consumer but in an expansion of the automobile industry in Canada. This will mean more jobs, apparently, but since the manufacturing companies are largely owned by United States capital, the profit benefits will go to the American investors. And these investors will benefit by the approximately $50 millions which the government is relinquishing in tariff revenue but which is not being passed on to the Canadian purchasers. Indeed, the latter, with all Canadian taxpayers, will have to make up the missing national revenue in some other way.

This arrangement is free trade in nothing but name. All the Canadian car-buyer will get out of it, according to Mr. Drury, is the hope that his car prices will remain much the same. The American buyer can look forward only to a gradually increasing price which eventually may approximate the present high Canadian price.

What sort of free trade is this? What sort of a twisted bargain have we won for ourselves?

First Things First

THERE HAS BEEN SOME talk lately—spurred by the high costs of proposed social welfare measures such as medicare—of the need for establishing in Canada priorities of action in all but absolutely essential fields of government spending.

The argument voiced by prominent industrialists, economists and some government officials is that in seeking to move too quickly toward a somewhat utopian dream where poverty, illness and ignorance will be wiped out by legislative fiat, there is a danger that the country could be economically impaired to the point where the proposed social reforms cannot be financed.

The problem was examined to some extent in the first report of the Economic Council of Canada, the "Deutsch Report," but in the absence at that time of definitely formulated government goals in the broad field of social welfare and other areas of national concern, the council was necessarily restricted in its approach.

In the United States, however, government has gone much further than in Canada in charting where it believes funds must be spent in order to raise the living, health and education standards of the nation. Five years ago, President Eisenhower's Commission on National Goals studied some 15 areas of national concern where stepped-up activity was deemed desirable. These included, as well as the broad spectrum of social welfare, such items as transportation, defence and space exploration.

For each area, the commission set standards of accomplishment reflecting "what most Americans probably would recognize as desirable objectives." The cost of the whole program was estimated at $1,127 billions by 1975 and to that must be added the vast increase in expenditures contained in the later programs of Presidents Kennedy and Johnson.

The United States is undoubtedly the wealthiest nation in the world but even so the various programs envisaged are formidably costly. So much so that the National Planning Association of the United States in a study released several days ago has stated flatly that the aim has been set too high.

According to the NPA study the annual cost of these goals would probably exceed the nation's economic resources by $150 billions, or 15 per cent, in 1975.

The American nation, the NPA advised, must, therefore, address itself to establishing priorities for these goals. For instance, whether to put a man on the moon by 1970, whether to cut back on highway spending, to spend more on social welfare, to rehabilitate urban slum areas, and so on through a long list of desirable objectives.

"The relevant problem is not so much the question of which goals to pursue," the NPA said, "but rather the question of how much, in what quantitative combinations, and how soon."

For a country such as Canada, not nearly so wealthy or productive as its neighbor to the south, the question of establishing priorities must take on even greater significance. For the Economic Council of Canada the highest priority is steady economic growth at a pace considerably accelerated over that of the last decade. "Only if sustained increases in productivity can be achieved will it be possible to have, over the longer run, consistent advances in social welfare," the Deutsch Report said.

Talk and Better Prisons

MR. HAROLD WINCH HAS made a point in Parliament which should be recognized by many Canadians who have given some study to the question of penal reform.

He says that repetitious inquiries by royal commissions, parliamentary committees and advisory committees have brought in recommendations to improve penal institutions in Canada, but that action on many worthwhile proposals is always delayed by the creation of another inquiry committee.

This is a situation recognized by many people who concern themselves with existing prison facilities.

Looking for An Ombudsman

CALIFORNIANS ARE THINKING about an ombudsman. He is needed, some say, to break through the official runaround they encounter when they wish to lodge complaints against officials.

Perhaps sentiment here is different. However, an ombudsman could have his uses. He might even be able to break through our local runaround: the fiat that must be sought from the government by the person who wants to launch certain court proceedings against it.

His criticism follows a government resolution to establish a joint Senate-Commons committee to study conditions at existing penitentiaries and plans for new ones. Perhaps the study is justified. It will be unfortunate, however, if it results only in a little better education of committee members on penal matters. Action, not rhetoric, is what is needed.

NO QUICK DOMINICAN SOLUTION

By WALTER LIPPMANN

Constitutionalists for a Cornerstone

THERE is, we can be sure, no quick way out of the Dominican affair. There is no solution available which will not, even with the best of luck, take a long time. There is no prospect of our being able to withdraw soon, leaving behind some sort of reasonably democratic and stable government. The reason why the future is so difficult is that during the 30 years in which Trujillo ruled the Dominican Republic he exterminated or drove into exile or into hiding all the educated, competent public men who did not take part in his cruel and corrupt tyranny. The men who should have taken over power after Trujillo are a lost generation. Dr. Bosch spent the Trujillo years in exile and, therefore, he had no practical experience in Dominican politics before becoming president.

Lippmann

It is this lack of able and honest and progressive leaders which is the fundamental difficulty in extricating ourselves from the embarrassing and ominous situation in which we find ourselves. There is the reactionary military junta, which represents a revival of the Trujilloist oligarchy, and there are the Constitutionalists, who represent the bitter discontent of the Dominican masses. They are without practical experience in government and vulnerable, therefore, to infiltration from agents of or sympathizers with Castro. Between these two groups there is nothing, no middle group of eminent and respectable men who could provide a caretaker government.

The predicament of the United States arises from the fact that it may take the Organization of American States and the United Nations years to overcome the political vacuum, to find, to promote, to defend and to finance a government which can be independent because it rests on popular consent.

Political Vacuum

The predicament of the United States arises from the fact that it may take the Organization of American States and the United Nations years to overcome the political vacuum, to find, to promote, to defend and to finance a government which can be independent because it rests on popular consent.

In the past one alternative would have been an indefinitely prolonged U.S. occupation of the Dominican Republic, ruled by a high commissioner who is not a Dominican. It is too late in the day for that. This sort of solution is not acceptable in the modern world.

Another alternative, which has been favored by the State Department, is a coalition government. Caamaño could represent the Constitutionalists and Imbert the military junta. Almost certainly, this is not a really valid option. It proposes to ignore the depth and the width of the conflict between those who are fighting to perpetuate the inheritance of Trujillo and those for whom life is intolerable without far-reaching progressive reforms.

No Favoritism for Military

The first requirement of U.S. policy is that the President make himself free and uncommitted, and specifically that American troops cease to favor the military junta in the civil war.

It is as certain as anything can be in a situation of this kind that a workable policy must invoke the principle of legitimacy and must be directed to progressive reform. Legitimacy is important because only a government which derives from the only genuine election the Dominicans have ever known can hope to command the confidence and respect of the Dominican masses.

It is no doubt true that Dr. Bosch

ALL CANADA'S PROBLEM

French Canadians, Too, Are Part of the Nation

APPEARING before the Royal Commission on Biculturalism and Bilingualism in Vancouver, Mr. Frank L. Bastedo, an eminent constitutionalist, made this remarkable statement: "There is no crisis in any province west of Quebec." As a highly educated man, Mr. Bastedo expresses himself in clear, grammatical English. He must mean something. Yet what on earth can he mean? Surely if there is a crisis in the French Canadian third of the nation, as he says, the crisis must be national. To say that it is not national but local is like saying that a man enjoys perfect health when only a third of his body is paralyzed; or that the English-speaking passengers need not worry because only a third of the lifeboat, containing the French, is leaking.

Bastedo

Mr. Bastedo's brief, one of the most erudite yet submitted to the royal commission, is a masterpiece of legal argument, and that is its fatal defect. It proves beyond question, among other things, that the Canadian constitution does not establish French as a second official language outside Quebec and Parliament. But what has this to do, in practical terms, with the present crisis?

It proves beyond question, among other things, that the Canadian constitution does not establish French as a second official language outside Quebec and Parliament. But what has this to do, in practical terms, with the present crisis?

Court of Public Opinion

One might as well cite the Code of Hammurabi or the constitution of the Holy Roman Empire. We are not arguing before the Supreme Court with its strict rules and precedents. We are arguing before the wayward court of public opinion which changes its opinion and verdicts almost every day and knows no rules. We are not grappling in Canada today with lawyers' historic debating points or constitutional niceties. We are grappling with laymen's raw emotions.

The crisis, in fact, is not legal at all, but human. In practical terms it does not concern the constitution of 1867 but the feelings of two racial groups in 1965. The question is not what our grandfathers did at the Quebec Conference but what we are going to do now.

A newspaper editorial printed in Vancouver and evidently inspired by Mr. Bastedo's brief puts the problem more plainly than he did. The trouble, it says, is the existence of the French Canadian people. Without them there would be no more trouble.

This discovery is blinding in its brilliance. No one can deny it. If all the French Canadian people and, better still, all the other racial minorities who together compose a majority of the Canadian population would obligingly drop dead at noon tomorrow, the surviving Anglo-Saxon minority could get on with its business.

Canada would then be a very small nation, of course, and its central hinge along the St. Lawrence would be broken by an empty void but the racial crisis would certainly be cured. We would all speak English and enjoy the same culture, the same patriotic poetry and the same weakness, for a short time anyway, until we managed to wriggle into the American Republic.

A distinguished criminologist, who recently testified before a Congressional committee in Washington, was asked to identify the chief cause of crime. He promptly replied: "People." No one can deny that, either. Remove the people from Canada and there will be no crime, no dispute, nothing to quarrel about. The difficulty is that people of various attitudes insist on staying here and many come from other countries; imagining that Canada offers a tolerable environment.

Being people, and not numbered sub-

Looking Back

From The Times of May 20, 1890:

An act passed at the last session of the legislature makes it imperative for the city to provide for the poor and indigent. Measures will soon be taken to do this. The plans have not been completed but one gentleman said he is willing to give $500 towards purchase of a home for the sick and aged poor, provided others join the move. Until now a few good-hearted citizens have dispensed charities but the board of aldermen will see to it that no deserving poor are left destitute.

The Problem Of de Gaulle

By CHARLES BARTLETT from Washington

THE indications that President de Gaulle plans to build his campaign for re-election around the issue of France's independence have posed delicate and urgent problems of timing for policy-makers in Washington.

They must re-assess their fixed intention to project the American voice in European councils at a time when this right is sharply challenged by de Gaulle and actual progress on the European problems is stymied by the West German elections.

Washington's claim that the United States' necessity to share in Europe's troubles yields her a right to be concerned with Europe's alignments has to be held above de Gaulle's campaign and the vacuum caused by the German election. President Johnson and his officials are anxious to make the expectations of the alliance seem more real than the divisiveness of de Gaulle.

The Johnson administration is meeting this situation more aggressively than many realize. Dean Rusk and George Ball attempted to prod the Italians into pressing for a showdown on France's intentions toward NATO at the meeting in London last week. Balked by objections that nothing should be done before the German elections, the Americans signalled their resolve to force the issue at the NATO meetings next December.

Reversibility

Three recent instances of Gallic perversity in alliance relations have been countered so firmly that de Gaulle backed down in each case. His disinclination to assist Britain in her economic crisis, his stubbornness in drafting an allied statement on German reunification, and his instinct to embarrass the United States by recognizing the rebels in the Dominican Republic all proved under pressure to be reversible.

These reversals supplied reassurances that de Gaulle has not, as some Europeans intimate, fallen prisoner in old age to his illusions about the role of France. The reversals suggested that his disdain for the good opinion of the United States and Britain has not reached a readiness to isolate his country from its neighbors.

The nature of de Gaulle's policy exposes him to constant pressure to accelerate the pace of his jobs at the alliance as it exists. In pursuing his aim to rekindle French pride by tweaking the noses of more powerful nations, de Gaulle cannot halt his harassments or mellow his posture. He has to keep breathing defiance or his country's puffed-up grandeur will deflate.

Off on Tangents

Cordell Hull observed in his memoirs that de Gaulle in wartime had the bad habit of going off on tangents. His new flirtation with the Soviet Union, a virtual renunciation of his previous preachments on East-West relations, is a tangent that holds more dangers than any of his previous breaks with the alliance.

The Soviets have profited since the revolution from the divisions in the West. De Gaulle himself played into their hands in 1945 by letting his pique persuade him to refuse to co-operate fully in the occupation of Germany. His obstructions gave the Russians an opportunity to consolidate their own objectives in the conquered territory.

The tangible fruits of the new alliance are largely limited thus far to the Soviets' endorsement of French color television and to the applause for de Gaulle when his name was mentioned on Red Square on May 8. The long range fruits are limited by France's limitations in the scheme of things.

But the disruptive potential of the Moscow-Paris dealings is evident already in the discomfort of the Germans. De Gaulle has acquired a new capacity to make his allies squirm.

Logic Defied

If we are to get anywhere in the family wrangle we must start with the undeniable premise that the nation was born and must always live in defiance of logic. The great Canadian secret is nothing but illogic, as Macdonald knew at the beginning. Compressed in logic, governed by any kind of absolute, the nation will explode like dynamite.

If the crisis were as simple as Mr. Bastedo and others of his view suppose, if we could settle it by enforcing some consistent principle or ancient statute, then life would be easy. Alas, it is not like that.

As in all great affairs—the long, slow rapprochement between the Western and Communist worlds, for example—the supreme need is not dogma, creed or ideology. It is flexibility, time for negotiations, trial and error, above all, time for both parties to understand each other, as they do not now.

Meanwhile, however, a hard spine of illogical logic supports the Canadian experiment, despite its sometimes flabby-looking exterior flesh. The nation is determined to survive and, considering all the difficulties its survival, so far, has been almost miraculous. It has given its citizens perhaps the most fortunate life in the entire world and that result is logic enough for our purposes.

To suggest that Canada should be sundered on the line of the Ottawa River in the interests of consistency must strike less fortunate peoples as a peculiarly virulent sort of lunacy. An intelligent foreigner, listening to some of the argument before the B. and B. commission, would make only one comment: "Gentlemen," he would say, "are you mad?"

The Amahs Won't Leave Hong Kong

By DENNIS BLOODWORTH

SINGAPORE—While Commonwealth immigrants flock flatteringly to England, the Chinese amahs of Hong Kong have listened to the tempting wage offers, taken one horrified look at Britain from 9,000 miles away, and refused to budge.

Mr. John Thompson-Maitland, deeply disillusioned manager of Oriental Domestic (London) Ltd., who earlier set up office in Hong Kong to recruit 10,000 Cantonese treasures for the housewives of England, has shut up shop and dropped the whole idea. Some 5,000 amahs responded to his appeal, but all eventually changed their minds.

"To go to England," one amah told me with devastating finality, "would be to lose all contact with humans and gods." This seemingly harsh judgment on the "secluded isle" was prompted by the fear that the average London suburb would be lamentably lacking in other amahs and Buddhist temples. "I have a Chinese body," another explained, "so of course I need Chinese medicine if I am ill, in England I would get only European medicine. So I would die."

Little Faith

The amahs, with their sock-under-the-mattress mentality, fear that in case they lost their jobs in Britain they would have to save up to pay their return fare to Hong Kong. They have little faith in signed contracts, far more in cash in hand and 14-carat neck chains. When I finally persuaded our cook-amah to open a bank account recently, she made a first deposit of nearly £400 in neatly-folded notes.

In Singapore or Hong Kong, amahs form little mutual-aid clubs, that constitute one of many concentric rings of self-protection within the clanish Chinese society. On her day off, Ah Fu trots down to the "clubhouse," a rented room in Singapore's Chinatown which she shares with 15 other amahs. Here they keep most of their belongings (if they don't trust their employer), sleep on a mat when off duty, drink tea and exchange gossip.

Fed By Others

If one of them is out of work she lives in this room and is fed and financed by the others—often from "squeeze" exacted from their masters' larder. Older amahs instruct the younger, often leaving their money to these "nieces" when they die. In turn the younger amahs look after the "aunties." A superannuated "eldest sister" lives in the clubroom permanently at the expense of the others.

The professional, trained amah in her white jacket and black trousers is no casual domestic, but the proud member of a sisterhood, formed in South China in the last century, that was an early manifestation of female emancipation; Women who refused the servitude of marriage and constant child-bearing for an ungrateful husband and a tar of a mother-in-law founded a lodge from which they went out to cook and clean—far more profitably and with far fewer heartaches—for complete strangers.

NATURE on the ISLAND

By Cliff Carl

A reader writes: "I would be glad to know something of the life and habits of robins."

"Throughout this last winter a robin has stayed around our house and my wife has made a habit of throwing out crumbs for it, so much so that he (or she) comes and looks up at the window asking for it. We call this robin our Resident Robin as this is evidently his territory."

"During the last month or so, another robin, more strongly colored and more streamlined, has come to get a share of the crumbs, but the resident robin chases him off. He also chases sparrows, but in turn is chased away by blacker birds with brightly-colored beaks."

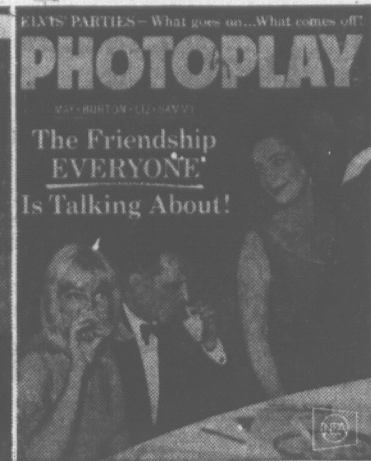

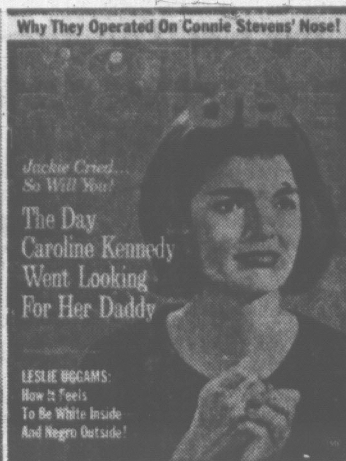

"You will notice that I am not good at identifying birds in general. I would like to know, chiefly, the status of the invading robin which the resident robin chases away. Hasn't that robin a territory of his own? Also I would be glad to know the blackish birds, which come in a flock of a dozen or so, with brightly-colored beaks."—L.V.S.

Dear L.V.S.:

During the winter most robins become members of flocks and move around the countryside a fair amount. This explains why they seem to be absent from certain areas for lengthy periods and then suddenly appear, causing an observer to believe he has witnessed the arrival of fresh migrants.

However, a few individuals seem to "stay put" as you have noticed, and this sedentary habit may be partly influenced by the availability of food. I would think that your resident robin is one of these.

The intruder you describe is probably a

Those Phony Movie Magazines; How Harmless Are They Really?

By JOAN CROSSBY

NEW YORK—"James Francis was on his knees, tears streaming down his face, his hands clasped before him imploringly, begging bedridden Dean Jagger, forgive me, forgive me."

"Jagger reached out from his hospital bed of pain, patted Francis on his blond head and said, 'It's all right son.'"

"And so Jagger forgave Francis for the actions that had caused the bleeding ulcer attack that had put the veteran actor in the hospital in the first place."

There is only one thing wrong with that pitiable scene, printed in heart-tearing detail in a movie fan magazine. According to Francis, it never happened.

Immorality

Printing imaginative accounts of speculative possibilities is one habit of fan magazines. Better known is the pious pornography they present, the happy, glamorous picture of total immorality.

In fan magazines a woman like Kim Novak, whose words presumably influence some impressionable teen-agers, is quoted as saying, "I don't admire nor particularly have a high regard for marriage. However, it is part of our society and the only way to have children, so I suppose one has to allow it. Marriage is not wrong, but it's not a natural way of life to be married." (Kim, of course, is now leading an unnatural way of life, since she recently married British actor Richard Johnson, catching many magazines with their headlines down.)

Everything about Miss Novak's life is presented as something to be envied and copied. No one bothers to point out that, if she is being accurately quoted, her philosophy is that of a beatnik whose search for a better tomorrow will be unending.

Seductive Covers

The magazines use the most seductive headlines on the cover. "Annette Reveals: How Far I'll Go Now That I'm Engaged" one screams. "The New Blonde in Sammy Davis' Life" another proclaims. "Carroll Baker Reveals: What They Did to Me While I Was Naked," says another, illustrated with a picture of Miss Baker in a sheer black chemise.

Inside, the stories don't quite deliver. Annette will go nowhere but to the altar (she is now married). The new blonde Sammy Davis is seeing is actress Paula Wayne who plays opposite him in his Broadway musical, "Golden Boy." In the case of narcissistic Miss Baker, there was no direct quote explaining the cover quote. What apparently happened to Miss Baker while she was unclothed was that her nude scene was cut from "The Carpetbaggers." She was quoted as saying, "I'm sorry that the scene had to be cut."

"The Stranger in Shirley Jones' Bed" turns out to be her husband, Jack Cassidy, who is a "stranger" because their careers have kept them apart. "Patty Duke's Love Rival" is the real-life wife of Eddie Applegate, who plays Patty's boy friend on her television series.

Editors of fan magazines are notoriously reluctant to discuss their methods.

"We are giving the public what it wants, but you can't quote me on that," one editor said. He went on to say that a lot of people are out to "get" fan magazines. "One group checked up on us, and our headlines, and found everything was true. A television network wanted to present our side of the story, and we even refused that."

It's possible to argue that show business celebrities, by virtue of their profession, are fair game for the arrows aimed at them. It's hard to find a fan magazine on the newsstand that doesn't headline The Burtons. But many a non-fan publication, aware that the smallest details about Elizabeth and Richard sell books, features them.

Indefensible

What is impossible to defend, even with a dollar sign attached, is the total lack of taste in picturing Jacqueline Kennedy and Lady Bird Johnson.

"The Man Who Made Jackie Leave Washington" one book screams in black letters. The "man" turns out to be the "ghost" of the late president. "Why the Doctors Are Worried About Jackie," "A Doctor's Report on Jackie," "The New Young Man in Jackie's Life," "Jackie Kennedy and the Negroes: The story that's never been told," these are some recent cover lines.

A favorite gimmick is to get a doctor or a psychiatrist to take a few facts and then analyze Mrs. Kennedy's life and future. Another favorite trick is writing a story that is practically pure fiction from the marshmallow school of writing and then putting a few apparent "quotes" from Mrs. Kennedy. But if you pay attention, you'll see the quotes read like this: "My life is over," she thought. (THOUGHT, get it?) "I am a living wound," she felt. (FELT, that is.)

The big question is: how long will the public continue to be taken in by sensational headlines on stories that turn out to be harmless trifles? And, should the public catch on, how far can the magazines go in printing the "truth" before they start printing lies?

(News Enterprise Association)

Russian Historians Argue For Right to Tell the Truth

The Economist, London

been suggested in the Western press. If it did, the book ought to reveal them; if it did not, the foreign press should be given the lie. The history should also explain what the Finnish war had taught the Soviet army.

Another speaker criticized the draft, because it did not explain the development of repressive measures or the use of torture in obtaining "confessions," and did not name enough of the people who were jailed during the years of what is officially called Stalin's "cult of personality."

Another participant rejected the claim that it was only Hitler's rise to power that caused the breakdown of democracy in Russia; this, he said, was Stalin's own work, and the ninth volume should analyze the "cult" period and explain why the Soviet people had trusted Stalin.

Professor Genkina thought most of the other speakers too critical. In recent Russian publications, she said, the tendency was to omit Stalin altogether—unwisely, as students then asked: "Where was Stalin?" In this respect the draft volume was an improvement.

Archives Open

She also denied that the Soviet archives are still inaccessible; this led to a heated discussion about which sections are now open.

Another speaker, also female, wanted the history to give details of Soviet participation in the Spanish civil war, to illuminate the personality of Nikolayev (the murderer of Kirov), and to name the men who had led the campaign against the historian Pokrovsky (who, after 20 years in posthumous disrepute, was recently rehabilitated), particularly those who are still alive.

The biggest stir was caused by Mr. A. V. Snegov. He conceded that the 1930s were a contradictory period in which Russia had been both advancing and regressing, and that the half-truths in the draft volume were very much better than the flat lies of previous Soviet historians. But he wondered for whom the book was intended; seemingly, he said, only for those initiates who could interpret cryptic allusions; it should contain more factual material. When he asked whether it had been unavoidable to shoot Zinoviev and Kamenov as traitors, somebody in the hall answered "no."

Mr. Snegov went on to argue that the psychological puzzle of the book should be solved and an answer given to the question: what did he do for Russia? Stalin's provocative policy towards minority peoples should also be discussed.

In general, he urged, Soviet historians must stop repeating stalinist formulas about rightists, leftists and Trotskyists; nothing had harmed the reputation of socialism more than Stalin's behavior in the 1930s. He asked whether the murder in Moscow of the leading Polish communists had been really necessary; or had it been a precious gift for Hitler? He wondered why the book praised the partition of Poland between the Germans and the Russians in 1939. What had this partition really done to facilitate the defence of Russia?

Stalin, Puzzle

Mr. Snegov's speech, the last made in the first day's debate, dominated that of the second day, when the recurring theme was that Russian historians must stop depicting everything in crude black or white. He was quite wrong, said one speaker, about the 1939 pact and the partition of Poland. Stalin's action was justified because it corrected an injustice to Russia by restoring to it parts of Byelorussia and the Ukraine.

There was a complaint that the volume mentions repression without explaining its origins; it should also contain more about rural living conditions. Another found the book, while much better than its predecessors, still too superficial. We need facts, he argued, and a more penetrating analysis of Stalin's personality; we must do with him what we have done with Ivan the Terrible or Peter the Great.

A young lecturer also wanted it to be explained why many people have still not been rehabilitated, though the charges made against them have been largely discredited.

A woman who was one of those who had prepared the draft was rather on the defensive. Many problems have not yet been studied properly, she pleaded, because no serious study had been possible until the first attacks were made on the "personality cult." Until then one could only write about the exceptionally good or bad, but about nothing in between.

Balance Needed

"We still tend to act that way. We are still in this respect, under Stalin's influence. Have we managed to produce a balanced opinion of a personality, including its good and bad features? (cries from the hall of no). And yet nobody is either God or devil. This cannot last. We cannot write that way. We must write in such a way that we need not burn with shame in 10 years' time."

And yet the same lady apparently argued that the book revealed as much about the big prewar Moscow trials as "could or should be said now." Other speakers, too, thought criticism of the draft had gone too far. The charge of "half-truth" was particularly resented. The chairman, an academician, concluded that the main truth was that in Stalin's time Russia went on building socialism.

How the Viet Cong Rules In a 'Liberated' District

By GEORGES CHAFFARD Of L'Express, Paris

I had been in Cambodia for three weeks.

One night a bespectacled young man came to see me at my Phnom Penh hotel. He said only: "The leaders of the National Liberation Front (Viet Cong) have received your message. They ask you to be patient."

I didn't see the young man with the glasses until a few weeks later; "Be ready tomorrow morning at half past five. A car will pick you up." "Where will we go? Whom shall I meet?"

"I do not know. I can tell you nothing."

At the appointed time an old, black car was waiting for me, with the too-silent young man and a perfectly anonymous chauffeur.

For a long time we travelled toward the Vietnamese frontier.

I asked once more: "Where are we going?"

"You'll see." We were crossing the province of Kampong-cham, noted for its rich French plantations of hevea (a type of rubber plant).

I recognized vaguely the topography of a plantation I had once visited and knew that we were approaching the frontier.

Later I was able to trace our itinerary. But the staff officers at the Front who took charge of me made me promise, as might have been expected, to divulge neither our meeting place nor the route we had travelled.

We parted company in the country. The driver and the bespectacled young man no doubt drove back to Phnom Penh, while we walked day and night, crossing an as-yet undelineated frontier until we were greeted in a village by a group of armed guerrillas.

I did not travel, as did the Australian Communist journalist Wilfrid Burchett and his comrade of L'Humanite, Madeleine Riffaud, across the whole of Indo-China to the limits of Saigon. Nor did I witness any spectacular military operations.

Guards Needed

"To allow you," said one of the Viet Cong leaders, "the freedom to roam our 'liberated zones' and to attend a meeting of our central committee, would necessitate the deployment of a security guard of many battalions. But at the moment our troops have much to do. Having once been told what our leaders think, you would learn nothing more from a prolonged stay."

This explanation seemed perfectly plausible. However, I surmised that if many battalions were needed to cover the travels of a journalist the security of the so-called liberated zone left much to be desired and that the Front did not have absolute control over them.

True, the regular units in South Viet Nam had begun since mid-March to regroup toward the mountainous regions in the north, leaving only the territorial units to guard the southern provinces. But the politico-administrative organization, which has been installed everywhere to parallel the official Saigon administration, subsists.

In every village, I went through the ritual of meeting the members of the Village Committee but found that related conversation with them was impossible.

The peasants did not speak French and the regional officials of the guerrillas were concerned mostly in directing my investigations toward the alleged social accomplishments which the Viet Cong claims to have effected.

Schools Used

For in the rural areas where influence is greatest they strive to operate schools and hospitals, often content to assume control of an already existing substructure.

The teachers are employed and paid by the Vietnamese state but they work according to instructions from the Front. In the event of a rebellious teacher, a demonstration of "students' parents" could quickly be organized to denounce his "professional errors" and to force Saigon to recall him.

By the deliberate use of all the possibilities implicit in bourgeois legality the Viet Cong has acquired competent civil servants at very little cost.

At first these obey under protest, but the gradual awakening of their political conscience is such that in a few months they have accommodated themselves to the double standard and find it easy to accept orders.

On the other hand, the health services have met with greater difficulties.

Physicians assured of a good practice in the cities can rarely be recruited by the these victims of the Diem repression.

It was another blunder on the part of Saigon to question once again the agrarian reform instituted by the Viet Minh.

In order to keep possession of the lands given them by the Communists, the villagers revolted against the central government which was attempting to dispossess them or to make them pay rent.

The "witch-hunt" and the government's refusal to recognize the agrarian reform have been initially the two major causes of the success of the Front.

Banal, Trite

But with the years the idyll has been transformed into the banal, trite intercourse between the ruling and ruled.

As the war intensified, the Viet Cong administration found itself obliged to raise taxes in kind, then in currency, and to recruit troops.

In normal times peasants the world over tend to consider taxes and conscription as unavoidable evils.

Having hoped in a moment of enthusiasm that the new masters would suppress both conscription and taxes, the disillusionment of the peasants on finding themselves plunged once more into their dismal daily routine was bitter indeed.

And when, in addition, another existing authority, Saigon, imposes its title and recruits its troops, a feeling of abject resignation descends upon the people.

UNIONISTS TOLD:

'Fee Increase Like Wage Hike'

A hike in university fees is like a workman getting a wage increase, longtime unionist Fred Bevis told Victoria Labor Council Wednesday.

A member asked what Bevis thought about the $56 raise at University of Victoria Tuesday. "We are living in a market economy. What would you think if you got a wage increase? The price of education is just one of the prices we have to pay."

"You expect your wages to go up, just like I do."

Another unionist asked Mr. Bevis how he could avoid the "triple taxation" of paying more education tax, making personal contributions to the university campaign and having to pay higher fees to send his children to university.

NEW GOVERNMENT

"Do like I do," Mr. Bevis replied. "Work towards getting a government that will take a more rational, commonsense viewpoint."

Mr. Bevis spoke as a labor representative on the tri-university capital fund campaign, and gave a brief history of the university system in Canada.

Universities have grown from a few "children of the Roman Catholic Church" 200 years ago in Quebec, to 46-degree-granting institutions founded and supported by private and government capital.

He said Uvic was established by funds from many sources, including government grants and public subscription. There is no clear-cut financing nor responsibility designating provincial or federal government.

Fees in Canada range from $250 to $700 and account for from 21.5 per cent, as at University of B.C., to 35 per cent of annual university incomes.

MANY PROBLEMS

These are some of the problems that confront universities, and "boards of governors and senates are not a bunch of bearded conspirators" creating deliberate obstacles for students.

The speaker said he was not defending the university system. "all I can tell you is that this is the system that has grown up over 200 years with the tacit consent of the people."

If there is to be any other way, then it must come about by political change, he said.

So now you can treat your Canadian friends to that English beer you've been telling them about.

Toby's a typical English beer, made with real English hops, toasted barley-malt, and patience.

So it has more bite and less gas than Canadian beers. And a deep-amber colour.

Since it's English beer, remember, you should serve it at English pub temperature. Not warm, heaven forbid.

Just nicely cool.

Psychiatric Nurses To Form Own Group

VANCOUVER (CP)—British Columbia's 1,000 psychiatric nurses have decided to form their own association for wage negotiations.

The nurses—most of whom are employed by the provincial government—have had their demands presented in the past by organizations representing government employees.

T. G. Dodsworth, an executive of the B.C. Psychiatric Nurses Association, said representation by the trade unions has led to inequalities in wage levels.

"Some trained psychiatric nurses now get less than untrained, unskilled nurses' aides," he said. "Top grade for a nurse's aide is $358 a month, while a graduate nurse who has spent a couple of years in training can only start at $335."

PRETTY AQUAMAIDS, who perform in a ballet on water skis at Lake Spivey near Atlanta, go through limbering-up exercises on the beach prior to taking to the water.

Grain Talks Started

VANCOUVER (CP)—Negotiations start today in attempts to avert a strike that could tie up the port of Vancouver's 15,000,000 bushels a month grain shipments.

Union and management representatives said they will attend a meeting called by Don Tysoe, the federal government's chief industrial relations officer in Vancouver.

Mr. Tysoe is acting under federal Labor Minister MacEachen's instructions. He said he is hopeful a settlement can be reached.

The grain handlers, members of the International Union of Brewery and Distillery Workers (IUB), have given their executive members full authority to call a strike.

The threatened tie-up comes as Canada is negotiating in Hong Kong to sell wheat to China.

A strike here would close all west coast grain elevators except smaller ones in Victoria and Prince Rupert.

Canada Military to Form Integrated Mobile Force

probably be at St. Hubert, Que.

This will mean the merging of RCAF Air Defence Command at St. Hubert and the northern region of North American Air Defence Command at North Bay, Ont.

Army units in the new command will include the 3,500-man special airborne force, two infantry brigades of about 5,000 men each, the 1,000-man special NATO battalion and the United Nations standby battalion.

RCAF units will include those which will operate the new fighter-bomber to be selected next month—the choice is between the American Northrop Freedom Fighter and American Ling-Temco-Vought Corsair—and the new Buffalo light transport plane and those which now fly helicopters and the Caribou transport.

The RCAF's air transport command will be retained for strategic—that is, long-range—airlift by Yukon and Hercules planes.

Maritime Command, comprising naval and air units, will also be retained. But it likely will be made into a single, integrated command instead of a joint navy-RCAF command as it now is.

Labor Council Backs Ceasefire in Asia

Canadian Labour Congress policy on the war in Viet Nam was endorsed by members of Victoria Labour Council Wednesday.

This requests a cease-fire and negotiated armistice in the conflict to help restore peace to the world.

The council was also sent copies of a New Democratic Party petition seeking an end to the Viet Nam conflict. A letter invited signatories to join the petitioners.

But VLC president Robert Barrie pointed out the current petition is addressed to the U.S. president, which is different wording from what had been previously endorsed by the CLC and labor council.

In view of this, he said it was a matter of personal option whether VLC members sign the petition.

Two new delegates will be seated as a result of VLC accepting credentials of a new union affiliate, University of Victoria Employees Association, Local 917 of the Canadian Union of Public Employees.

The union was recently object of some controversy when the university suggested certification be held up pending clarification of jurisdictional boundaries.

Labor's biggest B.C. convention may be held here in 1966. Members endorsed an executive recommendation that the B.C. Federation of Labour be invited to hold its meeting here for the first time since 1962.

Public 'Misled' On Shortage Of Workmen

The public is being "misled" about a labor shortage in booming B.C., Victoria Labour Council was told Wednesday.

Employment chairman Robert Noble said newspapers have been "holding out this dreadful possibility of a shortage of skilled labor."

"There's an army of unskilled laborers out of work in Vancouver. Many carpenters are out of jobs, too."

There are 1,736 men unemployed in Victoria, plus 1,300 women, Mr. Noble said.

"These are things we've got to know about . . . Never mind this claptrap about a shortage."

And a woman gets little sympathy when out of a job, unless her apartment is owned by a woman. The committee chairman said if she seeks a rent extension from a landlord, "she either joins the oldest profession in the world or makes a trip up to the YWCA."

Rites Saturday For Duncan Outdoorsman

Funeral services will be held Saturday at McCall's chapel for Frederick James Hughes who died Tuesday night in Duncan.

Mr. Hughes had been an Island resident for 58 years. He lived on his farm at Shawnigan Lake.

The 62-year-old outdoorsman was a member of the Victoria Fish and Game Protective Association and the South Vancouver Island Rangers.

He was known in Victoria through the Empress Garage and Victoria Brake Specialty Ltd., which he operated in partnership with his brother Aubrey.

Mr. Hughes is survived by his widow Gladys and son Raymond at Shawnigan Lake; a daughter, Mrs. Robert Dalziel of Vernon; his mother in Vancouver; one brother, Aubrey, of Victoria; two sisters, Mrs. A. R. Beattie, Victoria, and Mrs. H. Miller, Calgary, and six grandchildren.

Jewish Olympic Games Will Be Biggest Ever

TEL AVIV, Israel (Reuters)—The seventh Maccabiah, the Jewish Olympic Games this summer, will be the biggest yet, according to the organizers.

Jewish athletes from at least 25 countries will participate in the event which has been a link between Jewish youth the world over and that of Israel.

Once every four years this sports meet attracts to Israel several hundred young Jewish men and women. They have their competitions on the field, the track and the courts.

The winners are awarded medals and trophies. But there is something more to the experience—they have the opportunity to see at first hand the Jewish republic and establish links with its citizens.

The seventh Maccabiah will open Aug. 23. The organizers expect some 1,300 entries, including a contingent from Canada.

For the first time a group of 40 athletes is expected to come from Iran.

In addition, Olympic stars from several countries have been invited for demonstration performances. These may include Russian athletes.

The festive opening will be at the Ramat Gan Stadium near Tel Aviv. Work is under way to renovate the place and prepare for seating the 50,000 spectators expected to attend the ceremonies in which the Israel Army will play a central role. An air force display is also planned.

A smart Olympic-style village has been in existence in Tel Aviv since the last Maccabiah. It has been enlarged to accommodate about 700 athletes. A building has been rented nearby to accommodate some 400 women athletes.

Bullet Grazes Neck Of Girl in Stadium

ST. LOUIS, Mo. (UPI) — A bullet fired from the gun of a bandit who wanted to prove his gun was loaded soared across Busch Stadium during the St. Louis Cardinal-Philadelphia Phillies baseball game Wednesday night and struck a 13-year-old fan in the neck.

Karolyn Yount, seated in the stands behind third base with her father, was not seriously injured. The bullet grazed her neck.

There were 19,673 fans in the stadium when the robbery occurred.

The bullet could have struck one of the ballplayers.

Police said two bandits were in the process of robbing a ticket seller beneath the right-field stands when the cashier said, "That gun's not loaded."

One of the bandits pointed his gun into the air and fired it. Police said the bullet presumably bounced off a piece of metal and soared out over the playing field.

The two gunmen escaped with an undetermined amount of cash.

Roy W. Yount, 53, the girl's father, said his daughter yelled when the bullet grazed her neck.

"At first I thought a baseball hit her," Yount said. "She said something stung her. A few minutes later I saw a cut on her neck. It scared her more than anything."

United Dropped A Soccer Notch

VANCOUVER (CP)—Columbus moved into sole possession of third place in Pacific Coast Soccer League standings Wednesday night, defeating Westminster Royals, 4-1, before a crowd of 552.

Columbus dominated the play from the opening whistle.

The victory assured Columbus of a playoff berth and moved them one point ahead of Victoria United in the league standings.

Columbus now has 25 points, but United has a game in hand.

The Italians scored once in the first half when a shot from half-back Bob Hazeldine caught Royals' goalie Barry Sadler out of position five minutes before the break.

Veteran halfback Jack James replied for the Royals, scoring on a penalty shot midway through the second half.

The two goals moved Smith on top of the individual scoring race with 15 goals, two more than Art Hughes of the Vancouver Firefighters.

Ward pushed his rear-engine Watson-Ford past 157 miles an hour Wednesday for the first time this year. His best time of the 2 1/4-mile oval was 157.5.

Ward had been having trouble getting over 155 miles an hour. Last weekend he used up two of his three chances to qualify for the rich chase May 31. He will have to make his final attempt this weekend.

Other speedsters in Wednesday's practice included Dan Gurney, Costa Mesa, Calif., just over 157 in his Yamaha Lotus-Ford; Bobby Unser, Albuquerque, N.M., 156.3 in his STP Novi.

A. J. Foyt of Houston, Tex., twice winner at Indianapolis, won the pole position last Saturday in a Lotus-Ford but had some throttle trouble with it Tuesday. He was working out in his Lola-Ford and had a lap at 155.3.

United in Semifinals MANCHESTER, England (Reuters)—Manchester United and Strassburg drew 0-0 Wednesday in their Inter-Cities Fairs Cup quarter-final soccer match.

Manchester qualified for the semi-finals, having won the first leg 5-0 in France.

FRED POST

FRED POST DIRECTS . . .

More Interesting Than Fishing

As might be expected of a fellow who has grown up in Victoria, Fred Post has been a fisherman for as long as he can remember.

Only a small part of his angling energies have been devoted to chasing trout. Mostly his targets have been salmon, and for the past 10 years Post has been a regular at Saanich Inlet.

Almost any weekend it has been a good bet that you could find Fred and his wife, Velma, chugging around the Inlet in their 20-foot boat.

That is, it was a sensible wager until this season.

Now the boat seldom moves away from its Brentwood dock because Fred has found something he feels is far more important and just as interesting as fishing.

The "something" is the annual Handicapped Children's Salmon Derby and Post is the chairman of this year's derby committee. It's a job that requires a lot of planning and a lot of time. Accordingly, he doesn't expect to get much time on the water until after the derby is staged at Saanich Inlet on Sunday, Aug. 15.

"Sure it's a lot of work," Post said today, "but it's interesting and I enjoy it."

"More than that, it's a challenge and I feel that anything I can do to help handicapped youngsters is worth all the time I can spare."

Fred isn't the first man to find that directing the derby committee is more interesting and rewarding than fishing. Since the derby, co-sponsored by the Victoria-Saanich Inlet Anglers' Association and The Daily Times, was started in 1946, almost $37,000 has been raised to assist handicapped children.

Proceeds from the derby will again be divided between the Queen Alexandra Solarium, the Cerebral Palsy Association and the Greater Victoria Association for the Retarded.

The derby date of Aug. 15 will mark the first time Vancouver Island's biggest and most famous one-day derby has been held in a month other than July. Directors switched the date because they have found that in recent years August has been a better fishing month than July at Saanich Inlet.

Waiting for anglers who join in the derby scramble will be a flock of fishing prizes. And for anyone who purchases a derby ticket there will be a chance of winning the consolation prize—a 1965 automobile.

Tickets are available at most sporting goods stores, Saanich Inlet boathouses and members of the derby committee.

Derby work has interrupted Post's quest for a big salmon

Despite all his fishing experience, Fred has still to haul in a salmon of 20 pounds or more, which would qualify him for a VSIAA button.

And Velma, perhaps the most eager angler in a family that includes two teen-aged, water-skiing daughters, may feel a bit disappointed on derby day. Without Fred available to pilot their boat, Velma may be forced to watch proceedings from the dock.

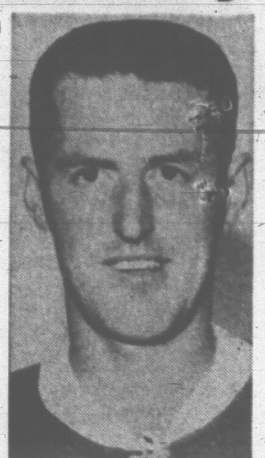

"However," says Post, "we both believe we will find greater satisfaction if we know we have helped some of our handicapped children."

Some of the same satisfaction is waiting for everybody who buys a $1 derby ticket.

Leafs-Wings Engage In 'Jim-Dandy' Trade

ANDY BATHGATE

BILLY HARRIS

TORONTO (CP) — The eight-player National Hockey League trade between Detroit Red Wings and Toronto Maple Leafs began as a one-for-one deal, Leaf manager-coach George (Punch) Imlach said today.

"It started out as a one-for-one situation. Then Sid (Detroit coach Sid Abel) and I decided we might as well make it a Jim-dandy of a trade and he gave me five for three."

Detroit sent defencemen Marcel Pronovost and Aut Erickson and forwards Larry Jeffrey, Eddie Joyal and Lowell MacDonald to Toronto for forwards Andy Bathgate, Billy Harris and minor leaguer Gary Jarrett.

Imlach was pleased with the deal, although he wouldn't say if Bathgate's public criticism of him last month prompted the trade.

FAMOUS LAST WORDS

Bathgate was quoted by the Brampton, Ont., Times and Conservator as saying the Leafs missed a fourth straight Stanley Cup because "there were exhausting practices and many (players) didn't get along with the coach."

Imlach said he was glad for Harris.

"This way he can stay in the NHL. Also, I am sure that we'll have the strongest player roster in the NHL. Pronovost is the fifth best defenceman in the world. Jeffrey and Joyal are proven NHLers. MacDonald could be a sleeper. Erickson will also be useful."

Abel said he and Imlach had talked a couple of times about a deal.

LOSING MARCEL HURTS

"But I flew to Toronto last week and we worked things out. Even though I wanted to trade in order to strengthen our club, I hate to see Marcel go. I played with him and coached with him, but we had to give up something and I want to wish him all the best of success with the Toronto club. I had to give up a valuable player to get a player of the calibre of Bathgate."

"Jeffrey never produced what we expected of him, but he is a good hockey player. Joyal is still developing and when we had to give up farmhands like Lowell MacDonald and Autrey Erickson, we had to pay a big price."

"I think Harris will surely help us. He is a classy forward and Gary Jarrett is a rookie from Tulsa on whom we had good reports."

Rookie Finds Yanks Patsies Not Murderers

UP International

When Jim Lonborg pitched for the Kiwanis Red Sox of Santa Maria, Calif., he regarded the New York Yankees as the terrors of baseball.

Now, when he pitches for the Boston Red Sox of the American League, he finds they're his personal patsies.

A 6-foot, 5-inch right-hander signed out of Stanford University, Lonborg has won two games in his rookie season—both against the Yankees.

He scored a 3-2 victory with the help of relief ace Dick Radatz on May 10 and came back Wednesday night with a four-hit, 3-0 shutout against them.

The loss was the third in four games for the Yankees and marked the fourth time they have been shut out this season.

Lonborg, a 22-year-old fast ball pitcher with a good curve, yielded singles to Clete Boyer, Bobby Richardson, Tom Tresh and Mickey Mantle and did not permit two Yankees on base during the same inning until Tresh walked preceding Mantle's single in the ninth.

Lonborg was beaten by the Baltimore Orioles and Detroit Tigers in his other decisions and also was kayoed by the Los Angeles Angels in a no-decision effort.

Twins TAKE PAIR

The Red Sox staked him to two runs in the second inning on a single by Tony Conigliaro and doubles by Lee Thomas and Rico Petrocelli. They added their third run in the fourth when Petrocelli doubled and scored on a single by Chuck Schilling.

Kansas City Athletics ended Chicago White Sox nine game winning streak, 7-3, the Tigers beat Washington Senators, 4-0, Cleveland Indians defeated Baltimore Orioles, 2-0, and Minnesota Twins whipped Los Angeles Angels, 3-1, in both ends of a doubleheader in other AL games.

A hero a day to keep the contenders away is the formula the Los Angeles Dodgers are using to keep the pressure on their National League rivals.

Sandy Koufax . . . Don Drysdale . . . Willie Davis . . . West Parker . . . they've all played a role in the Dodgers' fast getaway but don't forget the contribution benign made by Ron Fairly.

One of the steadiest batsmen in the NL, Fairly was practically the whole Dodger offense Wednesday night in a 4-2 14-inning victory over the Houston Astros.

Fairly belted out a homer, a double and two singles to lead the Dodger attack. What's more he singled home their first run, doubled and scored the tying run in the eighth inning and then won the game with a two-run homer in the 14th.

TEE TOPICS

By Ernie Fedoruk

Harry G. F. Morgan is a ruddy-cheeked individual with a fondness for tweeds and a donkey's name.

Honesty must be pardoned because everybody knows him as "Moke."

A moke, the dictionary says, is a donkey. It was used, with a certain degree of popularity, by Cockney costermongers of old. A moke, to a monger, was the animal that pulled their carts through the streets of London and, to a lesser degree, any person who displayed a stubborn streak.

Harry Morgan did that once, and acquired a nickname that has been with him for 40-plus years. It came to him on a rugby field near Work Point Barracks.

The reserves were thin and Morgan, then a lad of 15, was allowed to participate in a rugby match with healthier, larger and more robust soldiers. The out-weighted Morgan was belted hard and often. Each time, however, he picked himself up and stubbornly went back for more.

"I say," declared a sergeant-major of the old school, "that lad's a bit of a moke, what?"

Inter-Club League's 'Exclusive'

The nickname somehow doesn't match the real personality.

A retired army officer, Morgan is a man of many talents. Golf, of course, is his big love. "One of Freddie Burns' boys" from the days of the old Macaulay Point course, the 56-year-old Gorge Vale member sports a six handicap.

Equally respected are his talents in other fields. An accomplished pianist, he once "filled in" with Mart Kenny when that worthy western gentleman was leading a musical band to fame.

Such a background qualifies Morgan as the official music-maker at the windup banquets of the Inter-Club Golf League.

Always on Sunday, and in a less boistrous fashion than at the Inter-Club piano, Mons. Morgan can be found sitting at the organ in St. Philips Church.

Dodo's Onè-Bird Harry Missed

The one-time electrical engineer also paints and ties trout flies.

Moke, who works with both oils and water colors, estimates "about 500" of his paintings are "hung around Canada," from Halifax to Victoria.

What else? Well, our man Moke also is a bird-watching enthusiast. As it happens, Morgan is still looking for the elusive bird that all golfers like to see—the dodo. In 43 years as a golfer, Moke has never scored a hole-in-one.

It proves that even the talented sometimes have their problems.

SHORT CHIPS: Former Oak Bay assistant pro Roy Chappell made quite an impression when he took to his new job at LaGrange, B.C. Roy scored a hole-in-one in his first game over the Edgewood Valley course, connecting on a 155-yard sixth hole. The ace helped Chappell to finish with a 73. Don Hosmer captured the seniors championship at Cedar Hill last week. Also for the record, Nanaimo beat Uplands 20-19 in their annual inter-club match.

It's all but settled. Art Donaldson should have his amateur card by the end of July. Donaldson's application for reinstatement has been recommended by the RCGA's amateur standing committee. Final approval must come from the governors, due to meet July 13, but that's a mere formality. Malcolm McKay scored a 73 to lead the qualifiers for Oak Bay's club championship. Bill Thompson and Gordon Money were next in line with 75s while Dr. George Bigelow carded a 76. Scores of 83 or better qualified. Defending champion Doug Munro made it, and is due to play Harry Young in the first round. Frank Rodway, 85-12-73, and Ned Howard, 86-13-73, led the "B" championship field.

Oak Bay Lads Shine in Dark

Victoria Golf Club belters may be eating bushels of carrots or they may be practising in the dark.

Whatever their secret for good night vision, the Oak Bay lads putted well in the gloom and are away to a flying start in the Inter-Club Golf League.

Opening the season Wednesday night at Gorge Vale, the Oak Bay squad came up with a surprisingly strong effort to turn back the Gorge crew 6-3.

Matches at Gorge finished after street lights had blinked on and six points were still at stake while players were putting on the 18th green. Victoria's aces were excellent at twilight tapping and collected five of the six to nail down their solid victory.

Uplands, opening defence of the Willie Park Driver, jumped away to an even better start.

HIBBERSON SHARP

Finishing with plenty of daylight to spare at Uplands, the champions downed Colwood 6½-2½ as Eric Hibberson set the pace with a two-under-par 68.

Hibberson fashioned a 6-and-5 win over Joe Evans and combined with Bob Hunt for a 5-and-4 fourball win over Evans and George Andrews. Hunt, carding a 71, edged Andrews 1-up.

Laurie Carroll and Gordie Pellow also fired 71s for Uplands.

Trailing Laurie Kerr by three holes after the 10th, Carroll squeezed out a 1-up triumph. He teamed with Eric Wright for a half in the fourball against Kerr and Bill Court, who downed Eric Wright 3 and 2.

Pellow and Frank Scroggs won their fourball against Ricky Kent and Roger Ross. Pellow defeated Ross in the singles, 3 and 2, and Scroggs lost to Kent by the same margin.

SET OAK BAY FACE

George Bigelow and Doug Munro set the pace for Oak Bay, taking the maximum three points in competition against Dave Fanthorpe and John Carroll.

Results:

COLWOOD 2½ AT UPLANDS 6½

Laurie Kerr lost to Laurie Carroll, 1 down; Bill Court defeated Eric Wright, 3 and 2; four-ball halved.

George Andrews lost to Ron Hunt, 1 down; Joe Evans lost to Eric Hibberson, 6 and 5; Andrews and Evans lost four-ball, 5 and 4.

Roger Ross lost to Gordie Pellow, 3 and 2; Ricky Kent defeated Frank Scroggs, 3 and 2; Ross and Kent lost four-ball, 2 and 1.

VICTORIA 9 AT GORGE VALE 3

George Bigelow defeated Dave Fanthorpe, 1 up; Doug Munro defeated John Carroll, 3 and 2; Bigelow and Fanthorpe won four-ball, 4 and 2.

Bill McColl lost to Art Donaldson, 2 up; Vaughn Trapp defeated Al MacLeod, 2 up; McColl and Trapp won four-ball, 1 up.

Dick Flanagan defeated Gordon Jones, 1 up; Scott-Moncrieff lost to George Murphy, 2 down; Flanagan and Scott-Moncrieff lost four-ball, 4 and 2.

West German Exports Rise Seen

BONN (AP)—Despite higher production costs and sagging Asian and South American markets, West German exports are expected to rise 10 per cent this year, a leading bank says.

In its May report on the German economy the Commerzbank, West Germany's third largest, said over-all sales east and west of the Iron Curtain should continue their uninterrupted climb.

Offsetting exports to the European Common Market—which the report says have hit a plateau—and “less gratifying” prospects in South America, Asia and the Middle East, the East bloc last year increased its West German purchases by 28 per cent. Official government figures set West Germany's export to the Communist bloc at $579,000,000. This is roughly half the value of yearly exports to the United States.

The Commerzbank noted that after Britain, West Germany was the main target of American overseas investors.

CANADA LIFE HEAD PRAISES B.C.

'Great Prosperity Ahead'

By NORMAN CRIBBENS

Will British Columbia go bankrupt because of the huge debt incurred in developing its great natural resources?

"No," says A. Hazlett Lemmon, president of Canada Life Assurance Company.

"British Columbia, like Alberta, will go on producing tremendous revenues. I have been in every province in Canada and I have never seen greater promise than I see here.

"All of your natural resources are not known yet. But you have your wonderful timber, your mining, your fisheries, your agriculture, your water power for manufacturing and mining—all this will make for great prosperity in the future."

Mr. Lemmon is visiting Victoria for the first time since he became president of Canada Life. He was welcomed by local manager Lloyd Johnston and members of the company's Victoria branch, who serve all Vancouver Island.

Down through the years, he says, Canada Life has always had confidence in the people and resources of British Columbia.

"And we have backed up this faith with investments. In 1964, Canada Life invested three times as much money in British Columbia as we received in net premium income."

"These investment funds result from the thriftiness of our policy holders, who have selected permanent insurance with guaranteed cash value as the basis for their security, protection and savings."

"Surely this is evidence of our intention to participate more and more in the growth of this province."

PRAISES PREMIER

Tall, good-humored Mr. Lemmon held a press conference in the Union Club and expressed admiration for Premier Bennett and his Social Credit government.

"I believe his is a disciple of what the Christian Scientists call positive thinking," he said. "and I am convinced this is more than half the secret of success."

"We need positive thinking today more than ever before."

To the suggestion that British Columbia's Social Credit government would fail without Premier Bennett, Mr. Lemmon replied: "That was not so in Alberta. A very quiet, unspectacular man took over from Premier Aberhart and the Alberta government has been in office 30 years."

Discussing the government-sponsored Bank of British Columbia which Premier Bennett wants to establish, Mr. Lemmon said:

"I think it would be unfortunate if a provincial government had sufficient control of a bank to become a major influence in its policies.

"A provincial government, you know, is a pretty influential body. It can steer business almost any way it wants."

ONTARIO OPERATES BANK

Mr. Lemmon admitted, however, that the Ontario government operates a savings bank "and this doesn't seem to have upset the economic apple-cart."

Persistently optimistic, Mr. Lemmon would entertain no pessimistic thoughts of depression and unemployment should Canada and the United States dismantle its expensive armed forces.

"It would cause hardship in places at first, but we are fully capable of adjusting ourselves to these contingencies. The human being is remarkably adjustable, when you think of it. He adjusts himself to changing circumstances all the time."

Reminded that the people of Seattle are almost 100 per cent dependent on the aircraft industry, Mr. Lemmon answered:

"And they are equally capable of developing new industries should aircraft production be discontinued."

But he did not think that likely for some time to come. Nor did he see any prospect of a recession.

TOP SOIL

By far the cheapest and best fertilizer for your lawn and shrubs. If applied as topdressing (one yard for every 600 sq. feet) it will after three yearly applications develop a thick and lasting turf that feels like a soft carpet. That is how good and lasting lawns used to be made. Top-dressed lawns moreover are far less vulnerable to weeds and most important of all require less watering. In comparison, one dollar will buy only about 15 pounds of fertilizer which at best contains only 3 pounds of plant food. It will therefore only act as a shortlived stimulant without any lasting value.

STUDENTS LODGE PROTEST

Fee Boost Blamed on Province

STUDENTS SEEK GRANT DETAILS

By CANDIDE TEMPLE
The first two hours of Wednesday night's fee protest meeting went like a service club luncheon for most of the 250 listeners.

But sparks flew in the last hour as student councillors flung questions at university officials. University administrators countered student accusations that fee increases are becoming a trend, that B.C. universities are price-fixing, and that the Uvic board of governors is insensitive to student pleas.

Listeners applauded when student councillor Steve Bigsby asked why the board of governors was, in Dr. Taylor's words, "unwilling to embarrass the provincial government" by revealing this year's operating grant.

An impassioned plea by student Diana Moore for public support of higher education in B.C. was also well received by listeners.

But in the face of previous student threats of demonstrations and "other means" to protest the increase, the meeting was quiet and controlled.

University registrar R. R. Jeffels congratulated students on their self-control and courtesy at the end of the evening.

A number of parents were among the assembled students.

MIXED VIEWS
Student opinion of the usefulness of the meeting was mixed, but most registered dissatisfaction with the outcome.

Said Pat Scott, a fourth year student and former student council member: "Dr. Taylor didn't answer our questions on the main issues."

Publication of the requested operating grant "would give us so much more to work with," he added.

"We got down to brass tacks," stated third year student Brian Wesley. "The provincial government is definitely neglecting its duty."

Dr. Taylor "avoided all the questions," said Neil Bruce, also in third year, "but at least it showed where we stand."

But another third year student, Dennis Oliver, declared: "I was convinced by Dr. Taylor. I think the student body should try for more bursaries."

Said Alfred Pettersen, 1962-63 students' council president:

"Dr. Taylor said that it takes a lot of money and effort to transform a two-year college into a four-year university. I agree—but someone forgot to tell the provincial government."

Commenting on Education Minister Leslie Peterson's press statement that the provincial government is not responsible for the fee increase, Mr. Pettersen said:

"He (Education Minister Peterson), is perhaps living in a dream world or perhaps he told a little white lie. After all, someone is to blame."

By BOB DONAHUE
Times Education Reporter

One thing is certain: Somebody increased the tuition fees at the University of Victoria.

Exactly who is responsible is another matter.

At a public meeting at the University of Victoria Wednesday the following were blamed, both individually and collectively:

The provincial government, the federal government, the university board of governors, the citizens of B.C. and Canadian people in general.

Mostly it was the provincial government.

After three hours of verbal footwork, university president Dr. Malcolm Taylor took the floor to disclose that the actual amount of the provincial government operating grant was "substantially lower" than the amount requested by the university.

"If the grant had even come close to the amount we asked for, a tuition fee increase might have been avoided," he said.

EXACT AMOUNT

Dr. Taylor and university board of governors representative, Lloyd McKenzie, both declined to state the exact amount of the budget request.

Dr. Taylor made the statements after a challenge by Oak Bay MLA Alan Macfarlane, who said he was attending the meeting as a member of the legislature.

Mr. Macfarlane said: "I am asking that Dr. Taylor and the university board of governors announce now the exact amount of the budget request and the amount received from the provincial government."

"The difference between the two should be stated so that we will hear and all the people will know how much the government shortchanged the University of Victoria."

REASONABLE

"That isn't anything that would bring down the wrath of a reasonable government."

"Then the public could decide if they are satisfied at the amount the provincial government is willing to put behind higher education."

"This situation should not continue."

Mr. Macfarlane said he asked the same question during the last session and was told it was "government policy" not to announce the budget requests during the session.

"The policy of the government is not necessarily the policy of the university board of governors or is it necessarily the policy of the people of B.C.," declared Mr. Macfarlane.

His remarks were met with a thunderous round of applause.

A resolution was then passed by a voice vote which stated it was the consensus of the meeting that higher education was solely the responsibility of the provincial government which has failed to provide adequate funds.

The federal government was also blamed during the course of the meeting.

Said Dr. Taylor: "I don't agree with the philosophy of our constitution which leaves responsibility for education with the provincial government."

"There is a national interest in education. With the mobility of the Canadian people and the economy this country needs all the trained brain power it can produce."

GRANT DOWN

He said the federal grant for education had decreased from $210 per student in 1962 to only $180 this year.

He said this year's provincial grant was up 40 per cent over last year and the federal grant was down to 9 per cent from 20 per cent in 1962.

Mr. McKenzie, a lawyer, suggested a university could only flourish in a community where parents demand their children are cultured.

"I am not, on behalf of the board of governors, going to accept the blame for a fee increase," he said.

Mr. McKenzie said he could not guarantee there would not be another fee increase next year.

YVONNE LIVING WITH SISTER

Dionne Quint Leaves Convent

MONTREAL (CP) — Yvonne Dionne, one of the four surviving Dionne quintuplets, has left a convent at Moncton, N.B., and now is living with one of her married sisters, it became known Wednesday.

Germain Allard, husband of Annette, said Yvonne left the convent several weeks ago and is making her home with the Allards in suburban St. Bruno, on the south shore of the St. Lawrence River.

The sisters will celebrate their 31st birthday May 28. The fifth quintuplet, Emilie, died in 1954.

In addition to Yvonne and Mrs. Allard, the others are Marie (Mrs. Florian Houle), who also lives in St. Bruno, and Cecile (Mrs. Philippe Langlois) of Quebec City.

If your beneficiary dies first, what will happen to your life insurance benefits?

When the unexpected happens, as it sometimes does, it's important to know what steps to take. That's why the competent advice of your Manufacturers Life representative is so valuable. Here are some of the practical points he'll cover.

1. Unless you originally named an alternative or contingent beneficiary, the money from your policy would be payable to your estate. This may tie up the money and subject it to creditors claims and unnecessary estate costs. In the end, it might not even go to the person you would have chosen unless your will is up to date.

2. If young children were also originally named as beneficiaries, and they are still under age, another problem arises. Unless you make special provision, the policy proceeds at your death would have to be paid into court and held until they reach their majority.

But don't wait until something like this happens. Call your Manufacturers Life representative to-day. He will review your beneficiary arrangements—and suggest changes if they are necessary. He is experienced in matters of this kind, and he offers you the kind of counsel you can rely on.

They Nursed the Blooms of the 'City of Gardens'

By NORMAN CRIBBENS

Millions of blooms have lived and died since Victoria's famous Horticultural Society came into being around the turn of the century.

But some of the men and women associated with its earliest years live on.

One of them is James A. Bland of 1049 Richmond Avenue, who exhibited at the society's first recorded summer show on Aug. 8, 1902.

It was held at the Douglas Summer Gardens from 2 to 10 p.m. and was staged in five large marquees. They were illuminated for the occasion and the band of the Fifth Regiment provided "an appropriate musical background."

Finest Shows

A year or so later Mr. Bland became secretary of the society, and, as the oldest living member, he says:

"We put on some of the finest shows in the world. In these days, when there is so much entertainment on TV and radio, it is hard to imagine the enthusiasm they created and how much people enjoyed them."

Mr. Bland continued as secretary of the society for many years (he doesn't remember how many), but he recalls that thousands attended the first show in 1902.

It was a golden summer's day. Mayor Hayward was chairman; F. B. Pemberton, honorary secretary; T. W. Palmer, honorary secretary; Messrs. James and Gage in charge of presentation of the blooms.

The judges were Mr. Russell of Jubilee Nurseries, Mr. Ohlsen of Oakland Nurseries and Mr. Layritz of Carey Road Nurseries.

Mesdames Henry Croft, F. S. Barnard and Miss Loewen lent effective assistance in the artistic arrangement of flowers.

Among the names of the exhibitors were Messrs. Bland, J. C. Newberry, Stewart, Ridgeman, Sherburn, F. B. Pemberton, Balden, C. Muriel, Wolfenden, Major Dupont and the Bishop of Columbia.

"Just how long this society continued is uncertain," says Mrs. Ena McCabe, president of the Victoria Horticultural Society as it exists today.

The present organization, it seems, was started on Jan. 31, 1921, and was first called the Victoria and District Cottage Gardeners' Mutual Improvement Association.

During the summers its members visited the gardens of Government House, the Empress Hotel and those of Dr. W. P. Walker and Mrs. C. F. Armstrong, and a competion was held for the best-kept garden.

James Black was the first president and G. E. Boulter the first secretary. Mr. Boulter held this position for 17 years and was followed by Duncan McTavish for nine years and J. G. Beasall for four years.

In January, 1922, part of the title of the society was dropped and it was officially constituted the Victoria and District Gardeners' Association.

Monthly competitions were started in January, 1923, and the Marchant Cup and the Silver Fern Bowl were awarded for the best-kept home gardens.

Francis Ingram Stapleton and Alderman Sangster compiled a schedule and prize list and the first show was held On the mainland Victoria is often regarded as a "dead" place.

Yet it is world famous as a city of gardens. On these two pages we present evidence that Victoria is very much alive in the world of flower and plant life.

Many of its citizens are dedicated to these peaceful pursuits and derive great joy from the fine blooms they produce year by year.

On July 11 and 12, 1924. It is recorded that "the society met in the commodious basement of the Arcade Building through the generosity of Mr. David Spencer."

The second summer show was held in the lower ballroom of the Crystal Garden in June, 1925, and became an annual event until the London Waxwork Museum leased the ballroom in 1960.

The first spring flower show was held in Willows Park in 1927 in conjunction with the Vancouver Island Horticultural Association, and on Dec. 6 of that year the society became the Victoria Horticultural Society, affiliated with the Royal Horticultural Society.

In April, 1929, Mrs. Gwen Cash, then public relations officer for the Empress Hotel, and Mrs. Swain organized the first spring garden festival with the aim of bringing visitors to the hotel during a slack time.

This was later taken over by the VHS and the VIHA and run in conjunction with the spring flower show. Eventually 39 private gardens were opened to visitors.

Every year Victoria Horticultural Society presents the Banksian Medal to the member winning the largest number of points in the shows held during the year.

First mention of this medal was in December, 1931, when it was presented to Mrs. A. R. Harness.

In 1932 fruit tree pruning demonstrations were started by E. M. Whyte, district horticulturist, and continued until his successor, Allan Littler, took over the work in 1958.

The first culture notes sent to each member monthly were begun in September, 1930, and hand-written by Horace White-oak, vice-president of the society, under the pen name of Quercus Alba.

Subsequently the society absorbed the Oak Bay Rose Society and the Dahlia Society. Rose-pruning demonstrations were first held in the Empress Hotel grounds in March, 1936, with Fred Saunders officiating.

In February, 1949, the White-oak Memorial Trophy was raised by subscriptions. It is presented each year to the member contributing services of the greatest value to the society during the year.

It was first presented to Alex Mitchell in 1940 and most recently to Tom Weekes in 1964.

By 1949 the society's membership had grown to 630, but during the early 50s it dropped to just below 300.

Since 1961, the society has held its annual summer show in the Curling Rink and the attendance rose to 4,000 last year.

Mrs. Ena McCabe became the first lady president in 1962. Major George Wiggan has been secretary-treasurer for the past seven years and the executive comprises:

Thomas Wilson, vice-president; C. Freeborn, past president; A. R. McMin, Carl Newman, N. C. Powell, Harry van Dyk, W. J. Roper, W. D. Woodrow, Mrs. R. S. Bevan, Harry Parker, R. J. Eveleigh (show chairman), Miss Doris Page (reporter).

J. G. Beasall is editor of the garden notes sent to members each month.

Washing dishes by hand is like doing laundry on a scrub board, or cooking on a wood stove.

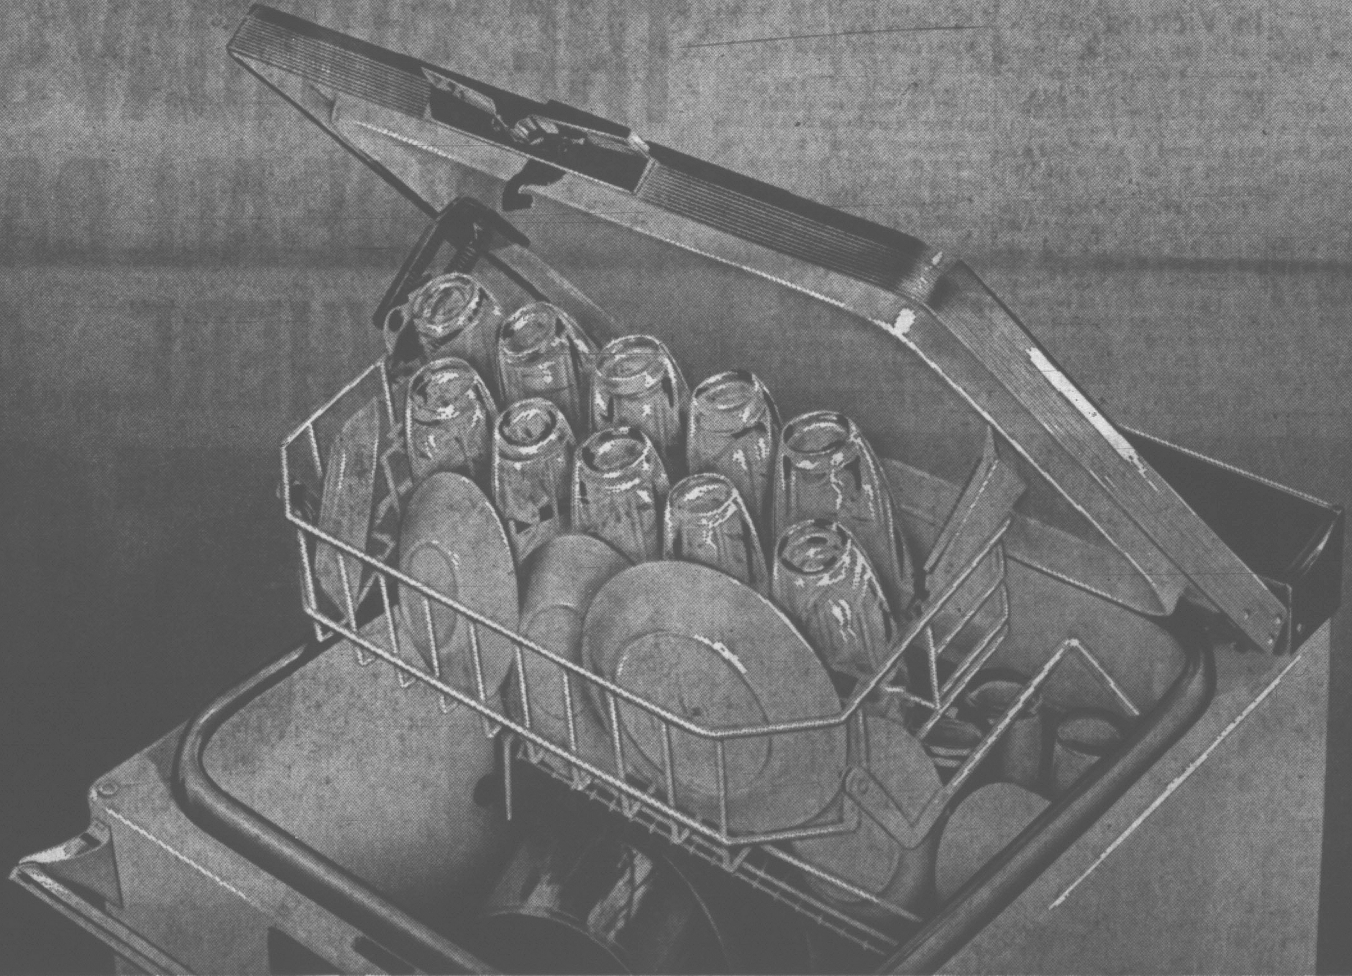

And in 1965 that's ridiculous. Westinghouse makes an automatic dishwasher that washes your dishes hospital clean and then dries them to a sparkle.

And it protects your family's health with the exclusive Westinghouse Sanitizer that automatically guarantees germ-killing with 145° water temperature.

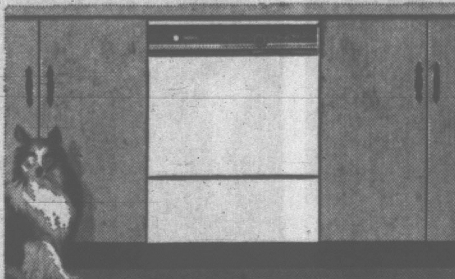

The Westinghouse dishwasher can save you 225 hours a year. Think what you can do with this time. And you can forget dishpan hands, too.

If you think washing dishes by hand is part of a woman's function as a good wife and mother, forget it. They used to say that about scrub boards and wood stoves, too. And if you think a Westinghouse dishwasher has to cost four hundred dollars — forget it. You can buy one for about half that. And you have our guarantee it's well made and backed with service.

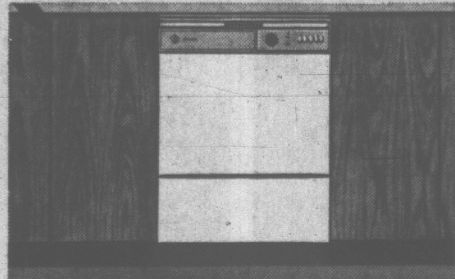

Update your thinking with a Westinghouse dishwasher. Get your Westinghouse dealer to show you what we're talking about. For very little, you can live a little.

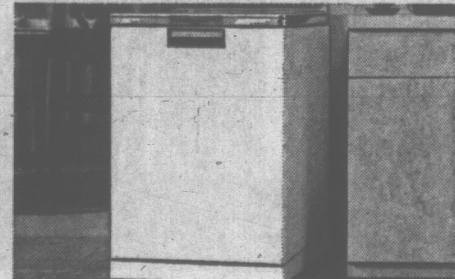

Interested? Then look these over too:

Westinghouse Economy Built-In Model SUF4C. Beautiful and easy to install. One dial for completely automatic dishwashing (double wash and triple rinse), wide sweep wash arm, self-cleaning filter, and shut-off switch that lets you add more dishes after cycle has started. Hot air heating system assures sparkling dry dishes.

Westinghouse Built-In Model SUF4A. The ultimate in dishwashing convenience. Easily installed. Choice of five washing cycles for every requirement. Sanitizer guarantees washing and rinsing temperature of 145°. Twin washing arms for super-clean loads. Clear rinse agent is automatically added to insure spotless drying.

Westinghouse Portable Model SPF2B. Goes wherever there's a sink; rolls away for easy storage under a counter or in a closet. Nothing to install. Choice of two washing cycles. All- porcelain wash well, plate-warming setting and shut-off switch that stops cycle when lid is lifted. Washes dishes for about 3¢ a load!

Westinghouse makes a host of appliances geared to life in 1965. Products to wash your dishes. Perk your coffee. Iron your clothes. Cool your house. Dry your basement. Polish your floors. Store your fresh and frozen foods. Do your laundry. Keep you entertained. Cook your food. Dry your hair. Brush your teeth. Carve your roast. In fact, everything you need to make your house a home.

Steady Progress In North Saanich

From small beginnings, North Saanich Garden Club has risen to a membership of 78 and all participated in a successful flower show held in the Sanscha Community Hall, Sidney, April 24.

The club came into being as the North Saanich Horticultural Society at a meeting held in the Wesley Hall, Sidney, on March 7, 1928.

A small group of amateur gardeners met under the chairmanship of Alex McDonald and decided to form "a society of persons interested in horticulture and floriculture and to collect and share information on these subjects."

They received first-hand advice from P. R. Leighton, then secretary of Vancouver Island Horticultural Society.

"We have made steady progress since then," says Mrs. C. H. Orme, the present secretary, "and we meet regularly to exchange opinions and hear guest speakers."

Mrs. Edward Nash is president, with Mrs. G. H. Swainston, vice-president; B. W. Andrews, treasurer, and Edward Nash, publicity secretary.

Mrs. H. R. Townshend is convener of flower shows.

PERPETUAL TROPHY

Esquimalt Seed Grew From Gardener's Idea

Esquimalt Garden Club, started in the fall of 1953, was the child of an idea.

Veteran gardener H. J. Brown, 1198 Munroe Street, said he would like to give a perpetual trophy to the owner of the best garden in Esquimalt.

He talked the idea over with Esquimalt municipal gardener James McNeill and they decided to invite all Esquimalt residents to form a garden club.

An exploratory meeting was held in the Jubilee Hall on Sept. 6, 1953, when a committee was formed and Mr. McNeill appointed chairman.

Five days later, on Sept. 11, Esquimalt Garden Club was officially formed and became affiliated with Victoria Horticultural Society. Mr. McNeill was elected president and Mrs. R. W. Saunders, secretary-treasurer, and they have continued in office ever since.

With them at the first meeting were D. H. Nelson, W. J. Pynn, Mrs. W. Rothery, H. J. Brown, Rev. P. J. N. Clark and Mrs. Clark.

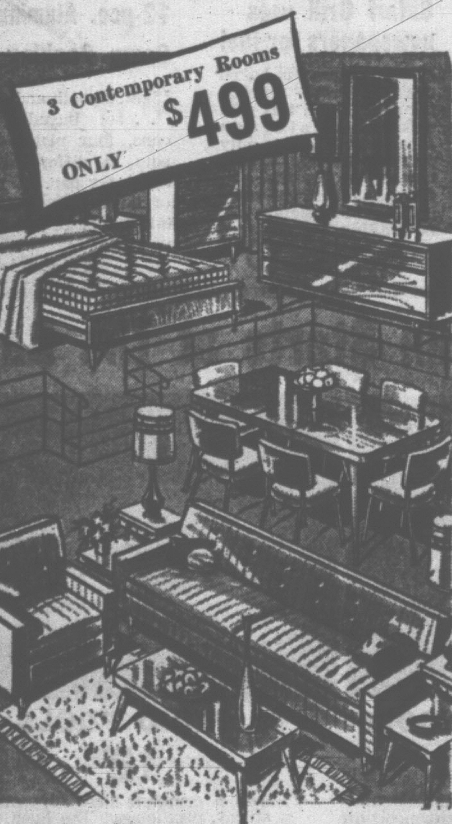

Membership now exceeds 40. In addition to the annual garden-contest, the club holds three shows—a Spring Show, a Rose Show and a Fall Show—and a parlor show is held at the monthly meetings.

Present officers of the club are honorary president, Reeve A. C. Wurtel; honorary vice-president, Mrs. J. Bryant; president, Mr. McNeill; secretary, Mrs. R. W. Saunders; treasurer, Mrs. F. Galley; executive committee, H. J. Brown, Mrs. J. Iannarelli, Mrs. C. Anslow.

Professionals Get Together In City Club

The Professional Men's Garden Club of Victoria was formed in 1958 by city parks administrator Herbert Warren.

Its object was to bring together professional horticulturists, gardeners, landscape men and others in related fields of work.

It has succeeded to the extent that its membership now comprises more than 50 horticultural specialists who meet every month in the Dominion Hotel to exchange opinions and hear talks by leading experts.

"We are the first group of this kind ever organized in Victoria," says Fred Blakey of 963 Arundel Road, who is secretary-treasurer.

"We hold dinner meetings on the first Wednesday in the month, except during the summer. Our meetings are very informal and members are encouraged to present suggestions for program material."

"They also report on new ideas or developments in their particular field of interest."

The club has just awarded a scholarship of $100 for five years to the most successful student of botany at the university. This will be awarded every year until 1969.

Membership is diversified and includes nurserymen, gardeners, provincial horticulturists, greenhousemen, rose growers, geologists, landscape gardeners, florists, and entomologists.

The Professional Men's Garden Club is distinctive from the many other garden clubs of Victoria in that it holds no annual show of plants.

"Our purpose is to exchange information and develop better methods of growing," Mr. Blakey said.

25TH SHOW FOR 'MUM GROWERS

In 1940 a group of Victoria chrysanthemum growers met at the home of Mr. and Mrs. M. O. Mayhew and formed what is now the Victoria and District Chrysanthemum Society.

The society has held a show every year since, and its 25th will take place in Centennial United Church Hall next Sept. 10 and 11.

"Our membership has grown to more than 50 and expect this will be the biggest show yet," said secretary G. L. Bentham, 3272 Wicklow.

Mr. Mayhew, 3835 Pitcombe Place, was the society's first president and John Craig, 1253 Garkill Road, its first secretary. Both are life members and continue as active supporters.

C. J. Freeborn, 3701 Savannah Avenue, is the current president, with Jack Westway, vice-president and James McColl, treasurer.

GORDON HEAD

'Grown-Ups Followed Children'

Gordon Head Garden Club, founded in 1953, had an unusual beginning, reversing the normal process.

It grew out of a children's group started by veteran gardener E. M. Renouf, 4170 Tyndall, in 1950. As Mr. Renouf puts it:

"When the grown-ups saw what the youngsters could do, they decided to follow their example. So we called a meeting and launched what is now the Gordon Head Garden Club. "I had the honor of being the first president and I tried to give members the benefit of my experience."

Mr. Renouf worked as a professional gardener for 55 years before his retirement and tended gardens in many parts of the city. He has lived in Gordon Head for 36 years.

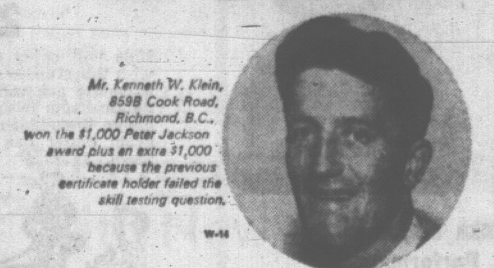

He recalls that the first secretary of the Gordon Head Garden Club was Mrs. Samuel Hope and the initial membership was less than 20.

The club now has some 125 members. Miss A. M. Williamson, 1815 San Juan, is president, with T. D. Clark, 4629 Vantreight Drive, as secretary.

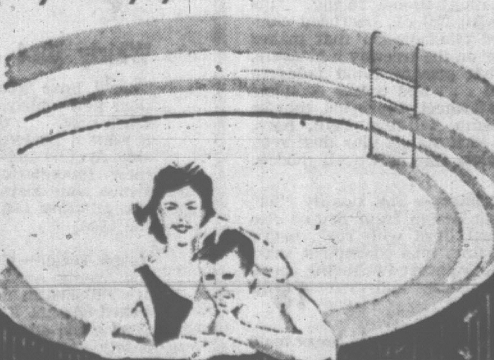

Mr. Renouf continues as honorary president and life member and is considered an inspiration to other members. "He is every ready to give us the benefit of his long ex-

Gladiolus Society Grooms for Show

Victoria Gladiolus and Dahlia Society will play host to enthusiasts from all over Canada at a national show in the Old Age Pensioners Hall, Government Street, next Aug. 13-14.

Several hundred members of the Canadian Gladiolus Society, which has its headquarters in Montreal, have been invited to show their blooms here and entries will be judged impartially by two experts from California.

The society was founded as the Victoria Gladiolus Society in 1945 by L. W. Taverner, its first president. Mr. Taverner, 80, now lives in Vancouver.

but continues to enter blooms in the annual show.

A dahlia section was added in 1963 at the suggestion of Mrs. A. B. Setchell, 727 Newbury Avenue, who has been secretary of the society for 19 years.

The society has grown to a current strength of more than 50 members and the annual show features 60 classes of gladiolus and 24 classes of dahlias.

Surviving member of the original organization is W. J. Pynn of Glen Lake, who has been made a life member.

Rock Plant Enthusiasts On Increase

Early in the 1930s, a small band of enthusiasts formed what is now the Vancouver Island Rock and Alpine Society.

The society has since grown to a total strength of more than 80 members.

It has built up a valuable library of rock and alpine plants and these books are available at the Greater Victoria Art Gallery, where the monthly meetings are held.

Alan Morkill was founder and first president of the society, and other charter members include W. H. A. (Hugh) Preese, Norman Rant, J. A. Hibbertson, Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Pemberton, Miss Lucy Angus, Mrs. B. Wilson (mother of Mayor R. B. Wilson), Mrs. W. Merston, Mr. and Mrs. R. H. Edgell and Ed. Lohbrunner.

Current president is V. W. Ahler of 1233 Palmer Road. "There is a growing interest in rock and alpine plants," said Mrs. Sybil McCulloch, 5021 Prospect Lake Road, who has been secretary of the society since 1953.

"Our membership now includes enthusiasts from many parts of southern Vancouver Island."

Arthur Mayse

My mouse and I went to the Junior Chamber of Commerce Exhibition in holiday mood the other evening, and the fair did not disappoint us.

Our impression, in fact, was that the hardworking Jaycees are offering a show well worth taking in, and this pleased corner sends its congratulations to all concerned.

With the deserved kudos attended to, let me hop-skip back over our round of curling rink, arena and adjacent carnival.

The exhibition announced itself to us first, as a good fair should, with a jingle of merry-go-round music and an appetizing whiff of hot dogs grilling. Next came two small children, boy and girl as the Lord appointed them, each with muzzled in a whorl of pink cotton candy. Beside them paced their father, a patient type, escorting two gay, helium-filled balloons by their long strings.

The signs were auspicious, and inside the curling rink we came at once upon an exhibit of interest. This was the Copper Kettle candy booth, where on a marble-topped table, a bare-armed child was slicing with a two-handled cleaver a bar or loaf of fudge about three feet long.

Behind him, an authentic copper kettle shimmered with the makings of another such monstrous bar. We were each given a cube on a toothpick, and found the fudge excellent. (The only other samples we achieved were a baglet of silver polishing powder and a sip of milk. I wish more exhibitors could be persuaded to offer samples of their product, especially the enterprising dealers in Japanese cars whose wares are lavishly displayed in an almost complete absence of Canadian-American models.)

But back to the Ex, with a star for the JC Macdonald animal farm stocked by 4-H Club youngsters.

There we lingered by a pint-sized Shetland mare with diminutive colt. "Don't feed me sugar," a lead pencil sign warns. "It will make my baby sick." So, feeding no sugar, or fudge either, we moved on to a truly noble brown donkey with intelligent ears. He had a sign behind him too; from it we learned, among other items of donkey lore, that the monks who make their wild but delectable oka cheese in Quebec caves use donkey's milk.

Inside again, we yearned over a couple of boating displays, one of which features an outboard rig that gently rises and falls on a sea of what looks like fibreglass floss.

These are among the very few displays aimed at outdoor-minded visitors. I think the merchants who deal in camping, hunting and fishing gear miss a good bet in not exhibiting.

More enterprising is Esquimalt's naval fire service, which boasts a startling pneumatic lady dummy in a blue track-suit.

She, or rather the amiable smoke-eaters who man the booth, need no urging to demonstrate mouth-to-mouth resuscitation and heart massage upon her bouncy person. "We find that a lot of boys and girls are familiar with the latest artificial respiration methods," a fireman said. "It's the parents who don't know them."

Scatter-gunning along, we inspected two of the eight-quart milk dispensers which are now invading Victoria refrigerators at a brisk rate.

One has a tap that turns, the other a button one pushes, and an obliging dairyman offered a use for the sturdy plastic udders when drained dry. Partly refilled with tap-water (you cut off a corner and knot the plastic) the bags freeze into a handy coolant for trailer or camp ice-boxes.

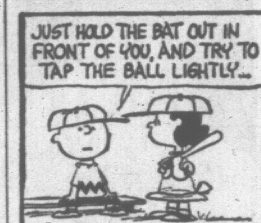

I have room just to mention the tricky and colorful ceramic ashtrays made by retarded young people at their Elford Occupation Centre, and to note that the fashion in mid-way prizes has changed.

This year, it's poodles and monstrous, high-colored shaggy dogs with fetching expressions.

Come to think of it, the mid-way has changed, too. Less cluttered, and I think more wholesome than last year's.

Here's a Spot Remover A Leopard Would Envy

By Penny Saver

My next-door neighbor's eldest daughter is preparing to go to a graduation dance in a few weeks and yesterday she phoned me in a terrible flap. "My face," she wailed, "is a terrible mess. What am I going to do? I can't go to the dance in spots! Help!" The poor girl was obviously a little upset and so I decided to look around and see if there was anything I could discover to help her problem.

And there is—a whole new line of cosmetics created especially for the younger generation.

Let's begin with the hair. Often a young girl's hair reacts to growing up. Either her scalp becomes very oily or the other extreme—very dry. Dry scalp means dandruff or a scalp rash. To prevent the burning itchiness of dandruff, try this new shampoo for the younger set.

It digs deep into scalp pores to remove bacteria and germ life right down where it begins. It really cleans, too! Price of this marvel shampoo is $1.25 for a four-ounce bottle and $2 for eight ounces. Your hair will soon regain its normal oil balance.

To really clean pores and pockets of the face, try this new facial lotion I discovered, selling for $1.75. Blot this on with a soft piece of cotton wool and wipe off all skin bacteria which causes pimples, ground-in dirt for blackheads and scalliness caused by dry and flaking skin.

With summer coming up, you'll really find this a boon because it relieves the horrible burning of sunburn. And even though it's medicated, and even though there is a medicated scent when you first apply it, the antiseptic odor immediately disappears.

To complete the picture of a healthier and lovelier you, try the new medicated make-up foundation, selling for $2. Only a little bit need be applied at a time. Available in light, medium and dark shades, this is the most natural looking make-up base just perfect for a young skin.

Don't forget, Penny is at 382-3131.

Wrong Definition, Lady!

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: Something is wrong with the laws in our town. My 18-year-old boy was picked up again for "loitering." He and some friends of his were just standing on a street corner minding their own business when this cop came along and started asking them a lot of questions. Since when is it against the law for a person to stand on a street corner?

The reason those kids were standing around doing nothing is because there isn't anything for kids to do in this town. Don't you think society is committing a crime against our children instead of our children committing a crime against society? Doesn't society owe its young people anything?

TAXPAYER

DEAR TAXPAYER: "Society" owes us nothing. But we owe society our co-operation, energy, talent and time. Too many parents expect "society" to provide their children with "something to do." Moral lessons are learned at home. Give your child a healthy, happy, busy home life, introduce him to church at an early age, and you won't have to worry about what he's doing when he has nothing to do.

DEAR ABBY: Would you please give me your definition of a "house guest?" A relative of mine has a 24-year-old fellow staying at her home. She introduces him as her "house guest." This relative is crowding 50 and is living it up on the insurance money left to her by her late 76-year-old husband. Since his death two years ago, she has been taking one cruise after another, collecting these young characters. Anyone with half an eye can see that this young man is taking her for all he can get. But she is so flattered that a young man would pay any attention to her she doesn't even notice. It is disgusting! How can we stop her from making a fool of herself and disgracing the family name? We are a very proud family.

DISGRACED RELATIVES
DEAR DISGRACED: A house guest is simply a guest in one's home. There is no age limit, nor is there a time limit. Your relative doesn't need the approval of her family to keep a house guest. And don't worry about her "disgracing" the family name. One disgraces only oneself.

DEAR ABBY: Please write something on jealousy some time. My husband sets little stones on the back door when he leaves to see if it has been opened. If a man passes our house, he pushes me toward the door and says, "Why don't you go to him? He's looking for you." If I lift my hand to my hair in the evening, he says I am signaling the man next door. He is always seeing "tracks" or someone running from house to house. This is all in his imagination. I stay behind four walls trying to keep peace. I don't even speak to the neighbors. But it doesn't help. He keeps accusing me and imagining things. He reads your column, Abby, and he believes what you say. Maybe he'll listen to you.

PRISONER

DEAR PRISONER: Your husband is a sick man. You must do everything in your power to help him. Living with a disturbed person can destroy your health, too. I urge you to see your doctor and tell him everything.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "IN A QUANDARY": I see no future for you and "S." The reason being that you won't accept him when he's drunk, and he won't ask you when he's sober.

New Hope for Cancer Victims

X-RAY AIDS IN EARLY DETECTION

NEW YORK (UPI) — X-rays offer hope of improving earlier detection of breast cancer and thus improving the chances of saving the victim, says Dr. Arthur J. Present, past president of the American College of Radiology.

The nation's leading radiologists, assembled at a seminar here on the present status of breast X-ray, were told the technique has proved to be the only means by which breast cancer can be detected before signs and symptoms are present—that is, before lumps and other danger-changes in tissue can be felt or seen.

As a result of the seminar findings, the American College of Radiology has voted to endorse the technique of breast X-ray as a valuable diagnostic technique which can be learned and used reliably by most radiologists.

The board further referred to the college commission on education a proposal that the college join the cancer control program of the public health service in sponsoring a nationwide teaching program in breast X-ray.

Dr. Present, of Tucson, Ariz., who headed the seminar, said that an extraordinary emphasis on X-ray was justified by the lack of improvement in the cure rate of breast cancer over the past 20 years.

The technique of X-raying the breast dates back to 1930 but only recently has it come into widespread acceptance.

It wasn't until the early 1960s, when a long-term clinical test was undertaken by Dr. Robert L. Egan, then at the M. D. Anderson Hospital and Tumor Institute, Houston, Tex., that breast X-ray became a promising diagnostic tool.

Before that, radiologists with notable exceptions who did attempt to use the technique often had difficulty in gaining acceptance from other radiologists.

Dr. Egan feels the main reason for the unsatisfactory results was poor instruction materials.

The results of Dr. Egan's study, spanning four years, showed breast X-ray was accurate as a diagnostic tool. He performed pre-biopsy X-ray on 240 breast cancers in a series of a thousand cases.

Of these 240 cases, Dr. Egan diagnosed 238 as cancerous, judging from what he saw on the X-ray pictures. Out of 2,000 study cases, his method of X-ray resulted in 97 per cent diagnostic accuracy.

Dr. Egan, who is participating in the seminar here, is now associate professor of radiology at Emory University, Atlanta, Ga.

WHY GROW OLD?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

Special Care of Your Hands Will Increase Their Beauty

Today a woman's hands do many things besides rock the cradle. They grasp a tennis racket and a golf club, work in the garden, wash the dishes, take care of the baby and still manage to look lovely at dinner or bridge. However, this does not just happen. It is the result of thought and care.

It is hardly a breakthrough when I remind you that the nails must have regular manicures if the hands are to be lovely. However here are a few ideas which may be new to you or which you may have forgotten.

Our nails are often outward signs of a condition within us. The color and condition of the nails can tell a physician lots about us. Good health promotes healthy nails.

It has been thought that buffing the nails promotes nail health since it increases circulation under the nail.

Try to control rough cuticle with the regular use of a cuticle cream or oil. Do not cut it unless absolutely necessary. Push it back from the nail.

Use an emery board and do not file the nails too close at the sides. This causes them to break at the points.

Wear rubber or plastic gloves when your hands are in water and wear cotton gloves when working in the garden.

Always apply a hand lotion after washing the hands. This will make a big difference in their appearance.

If your nails break off, try leaving off nail polish for a while. Also be sure that your diet has enough protein in it and is vitamin rich.

A couple of times a week massage the hands with a good cream and then wear cotton gloves for a few hours. Even better, massage the cream in before going to sleep at night and sleep in the gloves.

Ucluelet Woman Life WA Member

A life membership in the Woman's Auxiliary of St. Aidan's Anglican Church, Ucluelet, was presented to Mrs. L. Tugwell by Mrs. E. V. Goodwin, Victoria, diocesan president of the WA at a ceremony in the west coast community recently. Assisting Mrs. Goodwin was Miss J. Lueas, WA president of the Comox deanery.

Following the service and ceremony, Mr. and Mrs. David Connell entertained at a farewell party at their home for Rev. John Sandys Wunsch, rector of St. Aidan's Church and Mrs. Sandys-Wunsch, who will be moving to Victoria shortly. Rev. Sandys-Wunsch has been appointed to St. John's Church, Victoria. The couple received a painting of Long Beach, V.I.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Clayton Jones, 2932 Blackwood Street, have announced the forthcoming marriage of their elder daughter, Lauralyn Albertine, to Fred Buburuz, elder son of Mr. John Buburuz, Regina, Sask., and Mrs. J. Simon, Saskatoon, Sask. The wedding will take place on Saturday, May 29, at 7 p.m. in the Church of St. Andrew, HMCS Naden. Rev. William Klempa will officiate.

What's a Little Moisture? ... Refusing to have their spirits dampened by the rain which greeted them in Victoria, Wednesday, these attractive Seattle visitors take time out from a busy schedule to see some of the city. Seen in the picture are Elizabeth Leonard, left, commentator for the fashion show to be held in the Princess Marguerite. She and four of the models were in the city for fittings. With her, left to right, are Lou Schauburg, Judy Saunders, Sue Chesterfield and Yvonne Grennan. (Bill Halkett photo.)

To Be Televised 'Live' in Princess Marguerite

UNIQUE OCEANIC FASHION SHOW

The Canadian Pacific's Princess Marguerite will make history when she sets sail from Seattle, en route for Victoria, Monday, May 31, America's Memorial Day. The sturdy vessel will be the scene of an hour-long "live" television program featuring a fashion show. It will be seen on KING from 8 to 9 a.m. The telecast will be a "first" to be beamed by microwave in international waters and is expected to have 250,000 viewers.

Passengers aboard the Princess Marguerite are expected to reach the 2,000 mark, all anxious to see the fashion show to be featured on the program Telescope.

Although the five models and commentator will be from Seattle, the clothes will be imported woolsens from the Victoria store of W. and J. Wilson Limited. Four of the models were flown to Victoria, Wednesday, for fittings.

Four cameras on the ship will also give viewers glimpses of life afloat from the time the gangplank is pulled at Seattle until the ship is well on her way to Victoria. Canadian Pacific is underwriting the costs of the show which will be hosted by KING celebrities, Charles Herring and Margy Grennan.

Telescope's "home base" is almost as unusual as the setting for May 31's show. It originates "live" from Seattle's Space Needle every Thursday morning. It was in progress recently when the early morning earthquake rocked the northwest.

Lois Earl Married In Chapel

Now making their home at 1850 Carnarvon Street are newlyweds, Mr. and Mrs. Leif Rudi Broback. They were married in the chapel of First United Church by Rev. Robert J. D. Morris.

The bride, the former Lois Marilyn Earl, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Kristian Mollgard of Victoria and her groom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. G. Broback of Versum, Sweden.

Baskets of spring flowers decorated the chapel.

Wearing a suit of white patterned lace over satin, the bride was given in marriage by her father. Her hat and accessories were in white and she carried a crescent bouquet of pink roses, white carnations and stocks.

Miss Heather Morley, maid of honor, wore a two-piece dress in pastel pink embellished with white roses. White and pink carnations were in her bouquet.

Brother of the bride, Bob Earl, was best man.

A three-tier cake centred the bridal table at the reception in the home of the bride's parents, 1486 Finlayson Street. It was topped with white bells and flanked by white candles and vases of pink roses. Frank Howland, uncle of the bride, proposed the toast.

Leaving on honeymoon, the bride topped her wedding outfit with a pink coat. A white carnation corsage completed her ensemble.

Weather Fails To Spoil Party

Despite the inclement weather the parish hall of St. John's Anglican Church was bright with the many colors of tulips and lilacs for the spring tea and sale presented by the Women's Guild Wednesday afternoon.

Receiving guests were Mrs. George Biddle and Mrs. G. L. Hopkins, guild president.

Co-conveners were Mrs. O. G. Batchelor and Mrs. Hopkins. An arrangement of pink, yellow and white tulips centred the tea table. Presiding were Mrs. F. Williams, Mrs. C. Baines, Mrs. W. H. Garnham and Miss M. Small. Servers were members of the guild.

Floral arrangements were done by Mrs. C. Stibbard and Mrs. V. Edwards.

Still conveners were Mrs. A. Swan and Mrs. S. H. Brake, home baking, and Miss M. MacFarlane, fancywork. Mrs. P. W. Gilson took tickets.

A sum of $160 was realized from the affair.

WILL PERMIT THEM TO JOIN THEIR SEMINARS

Business Women Hope to Train Male Rivals

By PAT DUFOUR
If things work out properly, men in Toronto will be able to prepare themselves for job advancement through the courtesy of the city's Business and Professional Women's Club.

This is the opinion of Miss Nazla Dane, national president, who's here on a two-day visit from the eastern city.

"For the past four years, our Toronto branch has run an eight-day seminar on the art of management. It's been so successful that many of the men who have participated... university professors and executives... have suggested we permit men to study with us. If things advance as we hope, it should be just a few years before men can benefit from this program."

The seminar is no social gathering... there's no time. "The women really have to stretch their brains. Those who take part are women who are in supervisory positions, have immediate promise of obtaining such positions or the wish to equip themselves for future advancement."

Miss Dane leads an organization that's dedicated to improving both the conditions of working women and their efficiency as part of the business world. She names some of the reasons why full equality is still an unachieved goal.

GIVEN 'JOE JOBS'

"Women often are unable to be good executives because they're reluctant to delegate. This, I think, is because we're frequently given Joe jobs."

"Often we miss out on advancements because we fail to go after the top positions. This sort of reticence is rarely found in men... they have no compunction in aiming for the top."

The universities also help to hold back the advancement of women in business management. "As long as so many of our universities confine their post-grad courses in business management to men, it will be impossible for women to compete on an equal basis."

Provincial governments could also help in the advancement of working women. "Most provincial legislation insists that a complaint be laid by the supposed victim when unfair or unequal working conditions are experienced."

"This eliminates a lot of justifiable investigation because the woman concerned will usually keep quiet, rather than run the risk of losing her job or, even worse, being subjected to intolerable pressure."

"We would like to see our branches and other groups press for amendment of this legislation so that responsible groups could be authorized to represent those who suffer discrimination. These groups could be anything from unions to BPW clubs, Soroptimists, Council of Women and other community-minded clubs."

Nazla Dane has an impressive business record. One of Canada's top executives, she's now director of the education and women's divisions of the Canadian Life Insurance Officers' Association. In addition, she acts as secretary to the company's advertising and public relations committees.

Although she heads one of the most influential women's groups in the country, Miss Dane refuses to be docketed as a women's group type.

"I absolutely rebel against joining the women's auxiliary to my political party in Toronto. 'I'm no lick of stamps and coffee brewer."

"I wait for the time that women will rise to their full potential, whether it's in business or in community work. If they're equipped to handle the work of a parent group, they downrate themselves to be content with doing the unchallenging chores of an auxiliary."

In spite of her many activities, Miss Dane still finds time for hobbies. Her main ones are the collection of Canadiana, mostly books and pottery.

In addition, she loves to travel and experiment with new dishes.

Of her culinary explorations she says with a wide smile, "I always do things in a big way. It's always when I'm cooking for a fairly big party that things go wrong... I've managed to come up with some of the biggest food flops in history!"

Nazla Dane, top BPW executive, is in Victoria to oversee plans for the group's national convention, to be held here next July. (Janine photographer-Toronto.)

His Honor the Lieutenant-Governor and Mrs. George R. Pearkes will officially open the 27th annual provincial convention of the Pacific Command, Royal Canadian Legion, on Sunday. The convention will be held in the Victoria Curling Club.

Honor for President

Dr. Malcolm G. Taylor, president of the University of Victoria, and Mrs. Taylor will leave Victoria on Sunday to travel to Calgary where Dr. Taylor will receive an honorary law degree from the University of Alberta on Wednesday, May 26. Before returning to their home on Norfolk Road, the Taylors will visit Vancouver where they will attend the congregation of the University of British Columbia on Friday, May 28.

Wedding Vows

Mr. and Mrs. Horace J. Sims, 1216 Beach Drive, announce the marriage of their elder daughter, Daphne May, to Mr. Dennis-John Richardson, only son of Mrs. Esther Richardson, 533 Cook Street, and the late Mr. John Richardson. The ceremony took place in the Port Townsend home of the bride's great-aunt, Mrs. John M. Carroll. Mr. Sims gave his daughter in marriage.

The bride's only attendant was her sister, Tricia, and the best man was Mr. Michael Ketch of Port Alberni. Following the ceremony, a reception was held and Mr. H. J. Carroll proposed the toast to his cousin. The couple will make their home in Victoria, following a honeymoon trip through Washington and to Vancouver.

Ribbon Roses

Corsages of pastel ribbon ribbon roses, made by the hostess, were presented to bride-elect, Miss Heather Logan; her mother, Mrs. R. G. Logan; her grandmother, Mrs. M. Logan, and the groom-elect's mother, Mrs. F. J. Isacson, when Mrs. George Popham gave a shower in her Holloway Street home. The guest of honor's cousin, Ruthie Henkel, presented her with the gifts that were on a decorated stand. Also invited were Mrs. D. Gay, Mrs. S. Gibson, Mrs. W. Henkel, Mrs. A. Logan, Mrs. R. Anstey, Mrs. L. Henkel, Mrs. R. Beckett, the Misses Maxine and Marlene Isacson, Linda Anstey and Brenda Henkel.

For Directors

Members of the board of directors of Rose Manor were entertained at a tea recently in the Dingle House. It was given by Mrs. L. Wardman, retiring president of the board. Guests were Mrs. J. Devlin, Mrs. R. B. Bonar, Mrs. E. R. Rickinson, Mrs. J. Ingram Smith, Mrs. W. R. Freethy, Mrs. M. Crump, Mrs. B. P. Allard, Mrs. K. Reid, Mrs. G. S. Soutar, Mrs. W. J. Gower, Mrs. N. Phillips, Mrs. A. W. Speller, Mrs. P. J. Sands and Mrs. C. Wentworth. Also attending were associate members, Mrs. H. Warren, Mrs. E. T. Cantell, Mrs. W. Schuring, and Mrs. I. Royle and Mrs. B. Whitney, matron.

Luncheon Party

Members of the Women's Faculty Club of the University of Victoria entertained at a luncheon recently at the Uplands Golf Club in honor of Mrs. H. C. Gilliland. The guest of honor's husband, Dean Gilliland is retiring from the University faculty this term. An orchid corsage was presented to Mrs. Gilliland. Seated at the head table with her were Mrs. Wilfrid Johns, president; Mrs. Malcolm Taylor, Mrs. Gary Goulson and Mrs. Reid Elliott.

GERMAN EDUCATION FOR CHARLES?

LONDON (AP)—The Queen is reported thinking of sending the heir to the throne, Prince Charles, to school in Germany. The Daily Sketch says she is expected to decide after she returns from her current state visit to Germany.

It said the school under study is Salem, an alma mater of Prince Philip.

Prince Charles, 18, now attends Gordonstoun School in Scotland, where Prince Philip also prepped.

Gordonstoun and Salem, both founded by Dr. Kurt Hahn, are noted for their discipline and curricula aimed at the turning out of self-reliant young men.

Mrs. Kennedy Looks For Bi-Lingual Nanny

LONDON (UPI) — Caroline and John Jr. are probably hoping the successful applicant will descend from the London sky like Mary Poppins, the fictional British nanny with a carpetbag full of tricks and treats.

But Mrs. John F. Kennedy is looking for a more orthodox nursemaid—"extremely reliable and competent."

Those were the words in an ad Mrs. Kennedy placed last Thursday in The Times of London.

The ad specified that the nanny should be between 25 and 35 "to look after girl and boy of four in New York city." It said the nurse should have English or French as her native tongue.

Mrs. Kennedy is seeking a replacement for Maud Shaw, who has been with the family since Caroline was 11 days old. She wants to retire. Miss Shaw has been in the nanny business for almost 40 years.

Caroline, 7, and John-John, 4, don't know that Miss Shaw is quitting.

"I've just told them I'm going to be away for the summer," she told the Evening News last night. "They'd be too upset if I said I wasn't coming back."

Miss Shaw wants to settle down on the Kent coast with her sister, Hetty. In the meantime, she is helping Mrs. Kennedy interview prospective replacements.

Once a successor is found, Miss Shaw said she will not try to keep in touch with the children.

"I don't think it's fair," she said.

University Women

Scientist Honored

Famed woman scientist Dr. Margaret Newton, was honored Wednesday evening by the Victoria University Women's Club in a presentation at the group's annual dinner meeting at Holyrood House. The cereal rust research pioneer received a picture of Margaret Newton Hall, one of the women's residences named after her at the University of Victoria.

Past president Mrs. Daryl Elford presided. Graduates from many universities around the world were present.

Named to the executive for the coming year were Mrs. R. A. Fraser, president; Mrs. J. W. McCammon, first vice-president; Mrs. D. L. South, second; Mrs. J. E. Browne, recording secretary; Miss Frances Pencock, corresponding secretary; Mrs. A. W. Hobbs, treasurer; Mrs. A. H. Cameron, publicity convener; Mrs. V. Smith, study group; Mrs. T. C. Evans, social, and Miss M. Lowe, federation representative.

Guest speaker, Dr. A. Carlson, well-known sculptor, gave a talk on "The Creative Process," the art of wood sculpture.

Out-of-Town Guests

Out-of-town guests at the recent marriage of Miss Lois Earl and Mr. Leif Broback in the chapel of First United Church were Mrs. E. Jackson and Mr. and Mrs. D. Robinson of Burnaby, and Mr. C. Burrows, Vancouver.

City Manager Raps Whitbread

City manager Dennis Young Wednesday accused Metro Health chief Dr. J. L. M. Whitbread of misleading the health board over his bid for a higher salary.

The board Tuesday agreed to request Dr. Whitbread's higher salary be paid, inasmuch as city council had approved the board's 1965 budget. Members asked, in effect, that Mr. Young step aside to allow the higher salary to be paid.

"It is regrettable that Dr. Whitbread has chosen to leave members of the board of health with such an inaccurate understanding of the city's attitude regarding his salary," Mr. Young said.

"In my opinion the members of city council when considering the budget for the board of health made it abundantly clear to Dr. Whitbread they were neither approving the substantial increase requested by him, nor were they satisfied that any adjustment was merited.

"This understanding was further communicated to Dr. Whitbread in a meeting in my office and it was explained that the mere provision of monies in the budget did not constitute authority for payment of a salary adjustment.

"This whole question is tied in with the city's dissatisfaction with the organization of health services in the Victoria area.

"Until this is resolved, I certainly cannot recommend that a salary adjustment be considered," Mr. Young said.

Gold Rush Festival No Bonanza

OTTAWA (CP)—An additional $22,115 has been paid out of the federal treasury to wipe out debts arising from the 1962 Dawson City gold rush festival.

An announcement from the office of Northern Affairs Minister Laing said Wednesday the amount ends the government's program of financial assistance to persons who lost money in the venture designed to bolster tourism in the Yukon Territory. Thus the government-backed festival cost the federal taxpayers a total of $908,548. At least another $75,000 was thrown into the pot as an outright grant by the Yukon territorial government.

The $22,115 came from a special fund set up by Finance Minister Gordon a year ago to assist the Dawson City Festival Foundation—a non-profit organization formed in the Yukon to promote the festival.

The foundation used $69,115 to help persons who had assisted in holding the festival and were in danger of losing money because of it. The remainder—$153,000—went to the territorial government to reimburse it for its guarantee of festival bank loans.

ATOMIC LIGHTHOUSE PROVES SUCCESS

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The world's first atomic lighthouse began its second year of operation today.

The beacon, powered by radioactive strontium 90, went to work May 20, 1964, in the U.S. Coast Guard's Baltimore Light in Chesapeake Bay.

It is designed to operate, unattended, for 10 years without refueling. It has replaced batteries which had to be changed every year. The coast guard said today

Harry Chan, 2241 Oregon, who earlier pleaded guilty to hit-and-run driving and careless driving, was fined a total of $185 in city court Wednesday.

He was allowed to keep his licence on condition he drives only for business for the next four months.

It Helps to Be a Millionaire To Live in Calif. Trailer Park

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (AP)—Among the 73 mobile homes in this section of the village, there are 21 millionaires, 56 cadillacs, and one Rolls Royce.

Rex Thompson, manager of Palm Springs' most palatial mobile home park, gestured with his cigar at a 60-by-40-foot double unit—including cabana—just rolled into place at Blue Skies Village.

"It cost $25,000," said Thompson. "It's a double twelve-wide (12 feet in width), bolted together. Has two bedrooms, two baths. By the time the owner gets through with his improvements, it'll cost him $75,000 for the works."

Thompson, a onetime film-studio technician who has designed 150 trailer parks, calls them mobile homes, not trailers.

"These still have their wheels and licence plates," said Thompson. "They can move—even if they don't. They've got to be mobile or they'd be taxed as homes, which would cost a lot more. But nobody really lives here for economic reasons."

"All our guests have a home someplace else, maybe in some cooler climate where they spend the summer. In fact, we don't

B.C. Twirlers To Strut June 6

B.C. beauties will strut and twirl June 6 when they meet in Burnaby to decide the champion baton twirlers in the province.

Sanctioned by the National Baton Twirling Association, the affair is the fourth annual twirling contest in B.C., and will be held at Burnaby Central High School.

Information and entry forms are available from the secretary of the B.C. Baton Twirlers Association, Mrs. K. Prinsner, 901 Cliff Ave., North Burnaby.

take people who don't have other homes. We couldn't accept someone who had to live in a mobile home for economic reasons."

BING IS THE BOSS

Bing Crosby heads the firm which owns the village. Stockholders include George Burns, Jack Benny and Danny Kaye. A space rents for about $75. But the mobile homes cost from $7,500 up, and each owner is expected to spend at least $7,500 on improvements.

First is the cabana, a house-like appendage, complete with fireplace. Then, over the top of the trailer and parking space adjoining it goes what is called a ramada, which houses the air conditioning and serves as a sort of carport for the whole rig, keeping the sun off the living quarters.

Some are California ranch style, others Cape Cod. One is in the motif of an Egyptian temple, another in colonial style with a fountain out front illuminated by colored lights. Several have adjacent guest trailers, and one a $10,000 home on wheels for the family maid.

Said Thompson, who lives in a mobile home on the grounds: "These are people who want

BUS RILEY'S BACK IN TOWN

Qdeon Theatre

Ann-Margret is teasingly wriggly in this rather trite melodrama and Michael Parks (a newcomer to the screen) is a tour de force in the role of a sailor whose magnetic masculinity excites every woman he meets.

As a successor to Mary Poppins, this is rather unappetizing fare but, by comparison with most films today, it is cleverly contrived and well acted.

Just released from the navy, Bus Riley returns to a small Missouri town, where his unusual personality delights his widowed mother and unnerves a maiden school ma'am.

An unhappy affair with a poor little rich girl (Ann-Margret) has left its scars, and Bus, resenting his middle-class background, is determined to make his mark as fast as possible.

He refuses to take back his old job as an auto mechanic; turns down the offer of an apprenticeship with a homosexual undertaker, and becomes a door-to-door salesman who sweeps bored housewives into his arms and gives them what they want.

Then he lapses into adultery with old flame Ann-Margret, since married to a man whose lack of youth is compensated by his bank balance.

Yes, Bus Riley's back in town but how much he benefits the town is a matter of opinion.

MOST POPULAR CRITTER in the Beacon Hill Park animal enclosure is Queenie, ex-park work horse. Because many city youngsters never see a horse, apart from Queenie, this old mare must be the best-fed animal south of Central Saanich. Judging from her dimensions, hind-quarters view, she packs more weight than when she was a dray horse, and this clutch of kiddies is bent on keeping up the tradition. (Times photo.)

Deductible Municipal Tax Backed at Mayors' Meet

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP)—A resolution asking for some relief from personal income tax for homeowners was approved Wednesday by the Canadian Federation of Mayors and Municipalities on the third day of its 28th annual meeting here.

The mayors agreed that money paid out in municipal taxes should not be subject to further taxation and should be a deductible item on the income tax form.

Reeve Melvin Swart of Thor-

A further suggestion was made that interest on mortgage payments on owner-occupied dwellings be made deductible for income tax purposes. Mr. Swart said this is allowed in England and the United States.

Another resolution asked that the federal government's municipal development loan fund be extended and that the fund be made available for projects started at least by Dec. 31, 1967. The deadline now is March 31, 1966.

Another proposal, which would have knocked a hole in the universal coverage of the Canada Pension Plan, was rejected.

The resolution called for exclusion under the plan of persons already covered by private pensions which could comply with minimum standards of benefits and solvency.

A submission by delegates from Winnipeg, which would exclude municipal employees with pension plans for joining the national program, was also defeated.

Lands and Forests Minister Kelso Roberts of Ontario called on the federal government to get out of all programs it now shares with provincial governments. Mr. Roberts explained later that he was referring especially to hospital insurance, grants, resource development and federal parks which compete with provincial parks.

He added that the provinces can carry out these programs three or four times as cheaply and act more quickly if they have sole responsibility over them.

Another speaker urged the municipalities to keep supporting hospitals financially so these institutions will not become state-owned. John B. Neilson, chairman of the Ontario Hospital Services Commission, told the delegates municipalities must take an active interest in hospitals.

Golf Ball Kills Child

SAINT JOSEPH, Mich. (AP)—Six-year-old Sandra Toffelmire was standing by a football field as her brothers, Richard, 17, and Robert, 23, were practising golf ball drives Wednesday. Sandra was about 250 feet away. A ball driven by Richard struck her on the head, police said.

FATHER, SON ADRIFT ON 22-FOOT RAFT

37-Day 'Battle of Survival'

CLARK AIR FORCE BASE, the Philippines (UPI) — Two Americans told today how they conquered the Pacific on a 22-foot raft. For 37 days they survived on fish from the sea, rain from the sky and two coconuts scrounged from a volcanic speck in the ocean nearly 1,500 miles east of their home on Guam.

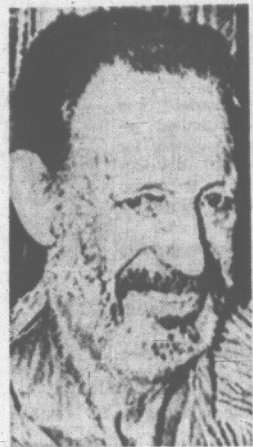

The saga was related to reporters at the base hospital here by Frank H. Cushing, 62, and his son, Frank Jr., 20. Both were in good condition despite their ordeal.

The Cushings said on April 10 they went looking for tropical fish in the waters near Guam. Their raft, constructed out of 16 50-gallon oil drums, drifted out to sea and the next time they saw another human being was May 17 on Calayan Island, north of Luzon.

The father and son team had sailed their makeshift raft from Guam to the Philippines—a distance of about 1,500 miles.

'CARELESSNESS' — "It was just plain carelessness," the senior Cushing said in explaining how their odyssey started.

The Cushings went to sleep aboard their raft. When they woke up the next morning, they had drifted out of sight of land and were unable to make any headway against heavy seas churned up by a passing typhoon.

FRANK SR.
... carelessness

Cushing said that only twice in the 37 days were they able to catch any rainwater—about four gallons.

"If it wasn't for him, I wouldn't be here," Cushing said of his son. "He caught the fish and did the cooking. I got diarrhea, the second day and I became weak."

The younger Cushing is a handsome, wavy-haired youth who appeared to be in remarkably good health.

Cushing said his son seemed to thrive on the experience, and spent a great deal of time in the water observing fish.

"It was extremely interesting," commented Frank Jr. He said he had lost about 40 pounds during the trip.

CAUGHT SHARKS

Frank said he caught two sharks, one three feet and the other 10 feet long. Asked whether the sharks bothered him, he retorted: "I bothered them."

The elder Cushing, who in 1947 jumped off the Golden Gate Bridge in San Francisco as a stunt, said he never lost confidence that they would reach the Philippines.

The Cushings were given up for lost by authorities on Guam after a one-week search. But Mrs. Marjorie Cushing wrote to Filipino newspapers, expressing confidence her husband and son would turn up eventually.

The Cushings ran into a storm their third week out, but they said they never worried about their raft. "It was unsinkable but not seaworthy," Frank Jr. quipped.

Church Backs Union

LONDON (Reuters) — The "parliament" of the Anglican Church, the joint convocations of Canterbury and York, voted overwhelmingly Wednesday in favor of unity with the Methodist Church.

Skilled Worker Drive On

VANCOUVER (CP)—Leslie Peterson, labor and education minister, Wednesday announced a four-pronged attack on the skilled labor shortage in British Columbia.

Peterson said the education department will make night classes available in the fall to help skilled workers keep ahead of technological changes.

At the same time vocational schools would begin a crash program to speed the flow of graduates into industry.

They would operate 12 months a year, the length of the school day would be increased and the courses shortened.

New vocational programs would be started in September in senior secondary schools throughout the province.

Peterson said the labor department has also taken action by commissioning a full-scale survey of the manpower situation in B.C. by Dr. J. T. Montague, director of the Institute of Industrial Relations at the University of British Columbia.

SEATTLE (AP)—The second fire to hit the Todd Shipyards Corp. in less than seven months did an estimated $100,000 damage to utility lines and a pier.

B.C. CAMPAIGNER LOSES

California Rejects Drunk Driver Laws

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP)—The California state senate Wednesday defeated legislation designed to strengthen state laws against drunk drivers.

The action drew sharp criticism from the mother of an American youth killed along with a Canadian student in a 1963 accident involving a driver who had been drinking.

The two bills had cleared the senate judiciary committee last month after a hearing including testimony by Robert Malkin of Vancouver, B.C. His son, Kit, a Stanford University graduate student, died along with 25-year-old John Barth in a midnight crash in 1963 near the school in Palo Alto, Calif.

Malkin later toured California with his son's death car on a trailer, urging strong anti-drunk driving laws. He was invited to testify on the bills by California governor Edmund G. Brown.

The measures were killed in a highly unusual manner.

The first measure would have provided that if a person had .10 of alcohol by weight in his blood, he would be presumed drunk in court actions.

The second measure provided that anyone driving on California highways would be considered to have given his consent for a chemical test if he was stopped for suspected drunk driving.

Ale is not another name for beer.

(There's a bouquet in every bottle.)

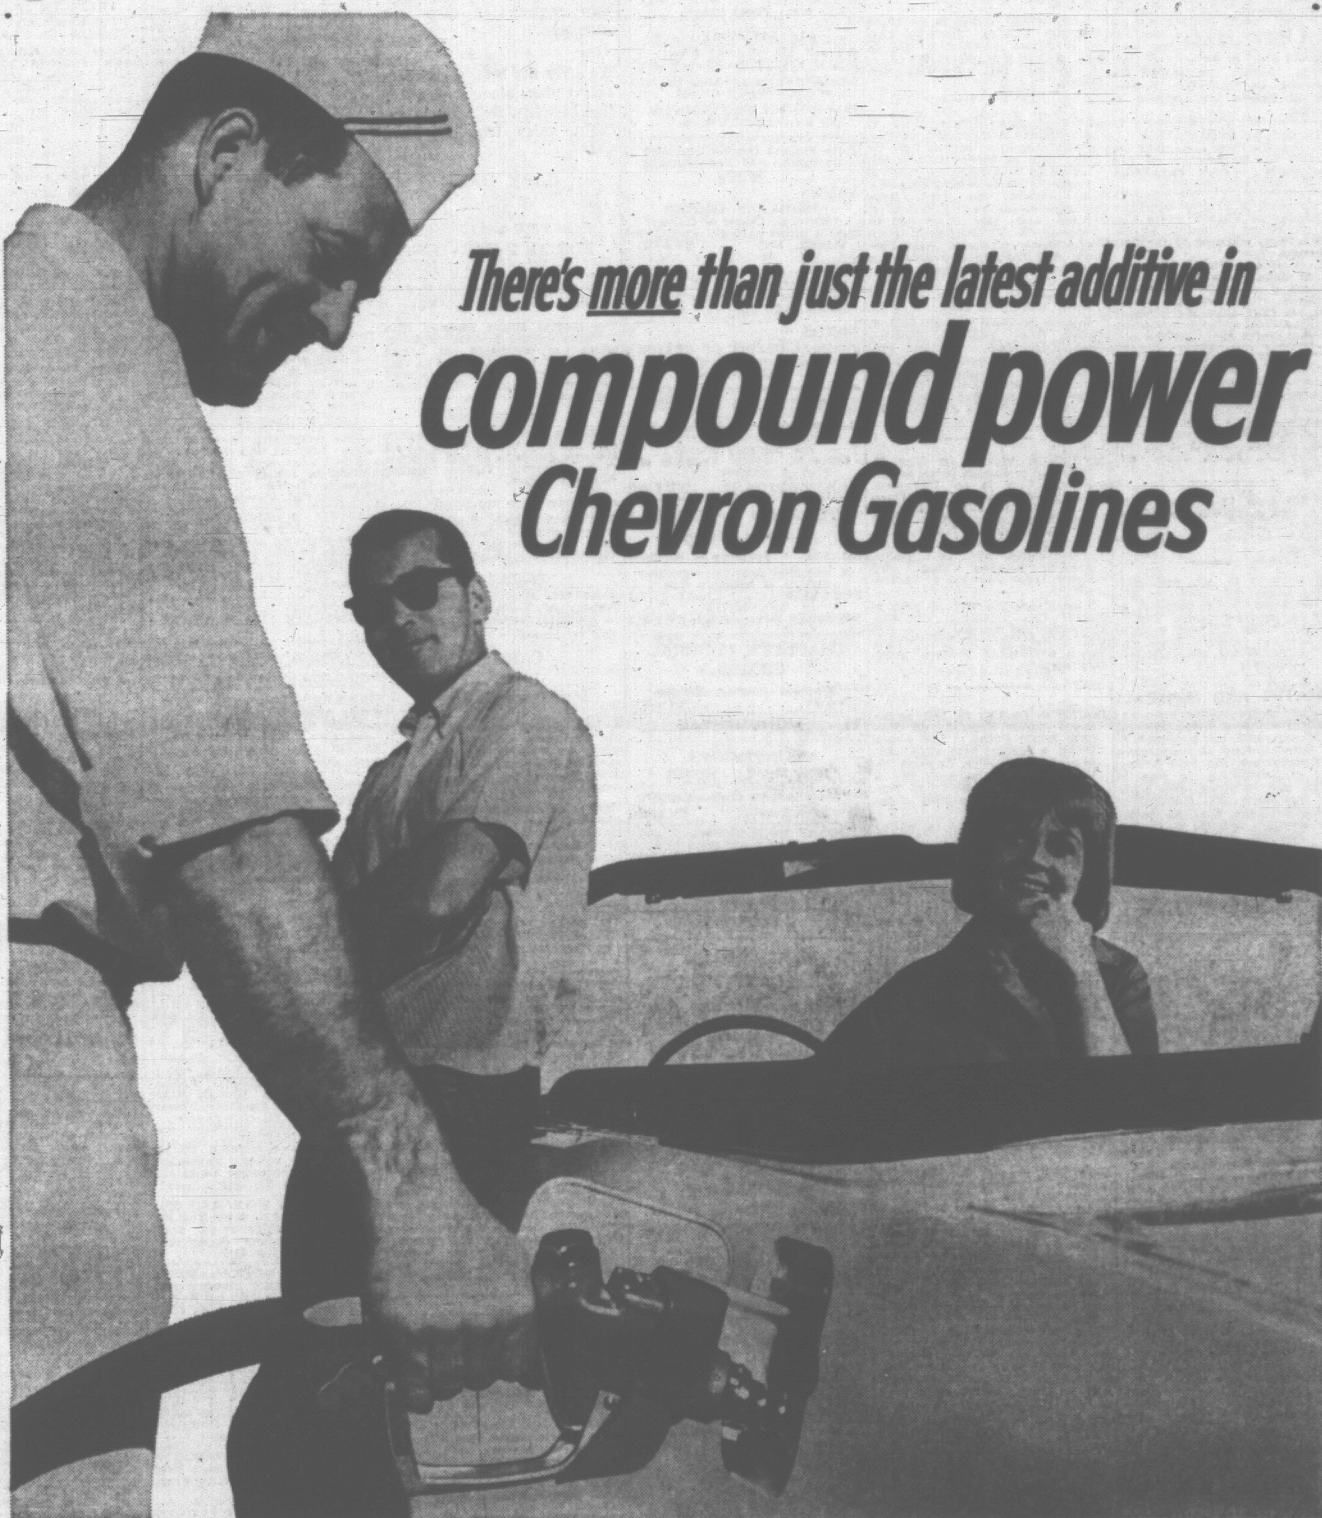

Ale has more bite than beer. It's sharper. That's because we use more hops. In our hand-picked blend, each different hop flower adds something unique to the final bouquet. If beer is your brew, we wouldn't ask you to change for anything. (We brew great beer, too.) But sample Ale now and again and we'll make one prediction. That bouquet grows on you.

When it comes to additives, Chevron Gasolines have an unsurpassed record.

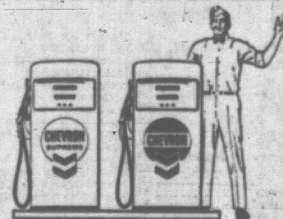

In 1960 (to take just one example) Chevron led the whole industry by introducing Methyl — the biggest breakthrough in anti-knock additives since Ethyl, 36 years earlier.

Meanwhile, the efficiency of Chevron Gasolines had been increasing in many other ways over the years. A special additive was developed to banish carburetor-icing. The famous Chevron Detergent-Action formula was perfected to keep your carburetor as clean as the day it was installed. Advances in refining processes assured the best possible octane values for new and older engines alike.

Today, Chevron Gasolines are in a class by themselves because of the compound progress constantly made towards ultimate perfection. They contain not just the latest additive. Our research shows they represent the sum total of every element known to date that goes to make Chevron Gasolines truly superb — tested and proven for over a generation in the only place where it matters: the engine of your car.

Compound progress adds up to COMPOUND POWER. And with COMPOUND POWER the miles cost you less. Drive into your nearest Standard Station or Chevron Dealer this week and try a tankful for yourself...

Micrograph showing a cross-section of a polymer film. The image displays a wavy, undulating interface between two distinct layers, likely representing the morphology of a block copolymer or a phase-separated system. The top layer is lighter in color, and the bottom layer is darker. The wavy pattern suggests a periodic or quasi-periodic structure.

TO QUEEN VICTORIA

Over 1,000 Children Expected for Salute

More than 1,000 navy, army and air cadets, Girl Guides and Greater Victoria school children will gather on the lawns of the legislative buildings Friday at 10:45 a.m.

Guest of honor will be Lieutenant-Governor George Pearkes, who will address the children at approximately 11 a.m.

The colorful ceremony, held every year on the Friday prior to Queen Victoria's birthday, is being organized by Mrs. I. Burrows, educational secretary of the municipal chapter, IODE.

It starts with the posting of sentries at the base of the Queen Victoria statue; continues with a fanfare of trumpets announcing the march of the standard bearers, the arrival of the Lieutenant-Governor, the singing of O Canada, The Land of Our Birth and O God Our Help in Ages Past.

A ceremonial parade to the tune of Land of Hope and Glory will be followed by the placing of wreaths at the base of the monument and the singing of God Save the Queen.

Every elementary school in Victoria will be represented as well as schools in Oak Bay, Esquimalt, Saanich and View Royal.

The singing will be conducted by H. J. Bigsby and accompanied by the Central Junior Secondary school band, directed by R. Sample.

Marshals will be W. J. Orchard, I. Dawson and J. T. Bruce. Miss Mary I. Saich is in charge of the flower students.

Gas Theft Sentence Suspended

A youth who preferred to steal gas rather than do without use of his car was given a suspended sentence in city court Wednesday.

John E. Brown, 649 Admirals, was bound over for one year on a $250 bond on condition he neither owns a car nor holds a licence in that time.

His companion in the theft, David Twyman, 1858 Crescent, was given a six-month jail sentence. Magistrate William Oster said a pre-sentence report showed Twyman is "seriously out of joint" with society.

The magistrate said Brown, belonged to an increasingly large group of young men "who feel life is unsupportable without a car."

Deep Cove School Tenders Under Study

Tenders submitted to rural Saanich School Board 63 for a two-room addition to Deep Cove school have been referred to the buildings and grounds committee for study.

School trustees found the tenders well over the architect's estimate of $37,500. Bids were Herb Bate Ltd., $42,495, and Patterson Construction, $43,718. The board also decided to apply to the education department for permission to buy two 73-passenger buses.

Sooke School Board was recently given permission to call for tenders for one 66-passenger bus and a 55-passenger bus.

Link With Crime Boss 'Damaged My Career'

CHICAGO (AP)—More show people may be subpoenaed to testify in an investigation of the Chicago crime syndicate by a federal grand jury which already has questioned singer Phyllis McGuire, an official says.

Miss McGuire of the three singing McGuire sisters testified for an hour and 15 minutes Wednesday about her friendship with Menlo Salvatore (Sam) Giancana, reputed king pin of the syndicate.

"There's a possibility more show people might be subpoenaed," the official said. "Miss McGuire may be back in the future, too."

"This is not the Giancana investigation," he said. "This is not a shot out of the blue. We on the inside know it isn't the Giancana investigation and that will become evident in the next two weeks."

Reporters were barred by court order from the grand jury room.

Miss McGuire, in her 30s, refused to reveal her testimony. Giancana and Miss McGuire were reported to have kept company from 1960 to 1963.

Miss McGuire told reporters that her relationship with Giancana had damaged her professional image.

She refused to comment when asked whether she planned to halt her relationship with Giancana.

Giancana and three others were indicted for murder in 1962, but the charge was dismissed after the principal witness was slain by a shotgun

GLITTERING RECEPTION MIXED WITH POLITICS

Shah Backs Peace Force Under UN

By BRENDA LARGE

OTTAWA (CP)—As it entered its second day, the state visit of the Shah of Iran already showed promise of being more than just a series of formal receiving lines and glittering banquets.

The 45-year-old Shah, hailed by Prime Minister Pearson on his arrival Wednesday as "a great leader with progressive policies," seems to have no qualms about mixing international politics with the lavish social entertainments usually associated with royal tours.

Wednesday night the Iranian ruler said his country would be ready to associate itself wholeheartedly with an international peace force set up under the control of the United Nations. Earlier, he had held discussions on international affairs with the prime minister and External Affairs Minister Martin.

Today he was to make a public speech at a joint meeting of the men's and women's Canadian Clubs of Ottawa.

At a state reception Wednesday at Government House for over 400 people, the Shah had brief but intensive discussions with a number of prominent Ottawa diplomats and parliamentarians.

CHIEF JUSTICE Robert Taschereau, left, of the Supreme Court of Canada, is welcomed by Empress Farah of Iran prior to state dinner at Government House in Ottawa Wednesday night. Between them are the Shah of Iran and Governor-General Vanier. (CP Wirephoto.)

Sewage
In Channel
Protested

CHEMAMUS — A delegation from Chemainus-Crofton Chamber of Commerce will attend North Cowichan council's meeting Wednesday to protest raw sewage disposal into Stuart Channel.

The chamber's stand was taken after the municipality published its intention to seek a permit to discharge a large quantity of untreated domestic sewage into Stuart Channel on a 24-hour basis throughout the year.

Chamber members fear the sewage discharge will despoil Kin Beach at Chemainus.

At a Tuesday meeting a statement was issued: "We insist all sewage which is released into Stuart Channel at Chemainus should be rendered harmless before discharge."

If the meeting with council is unsuccessful the directors will question the municipality's consulting engineer B. W. Sarjeant. Mr. Sarjeant is scheduled to be present at a public hearing on the council application May 23.

Police Hunt
Armed Man

PORT ALBERNI — An armed man is being sought by RCMP in the Franklin River district. One man is in custody and RCMP are conducting a search for another following a break-in at a Bamfield store and machine shop.

Samuel Scow, formerly of Alert Bay, pleaded guilty to breaking and entering and to being in possession of an dangerous weapon when he appeared in Alberni police court. He was remanded one week for sentence.

Police are combing the Franklin River area for a second man. Both are about 25 years of age. Ostrom's machine shop and adjoining store were entered Monday night, rifles and ammunition were stolen, along with chocolate bars, cash and merchandise.

This attack was aimed at the city today by Chamber of Commerce member, Will Dobson.

His comment came after city council threw the glove at the chamber's feet.

The challenge: Find seven men to form a recreation commission.

If the chamber can form a commission, the city will have no alternative but to give the commission its blessing.

Chamber director Dick Benzie said the 1964 planning report for Duncan listed the following priorities: a swimming pool, an ice arena, a community centre and parks.

Mr. Benzie said a recent chamber delegation to council to discuss the recreation problem, was well received.

"But," he added, "the chamber mustn't let the city slip back again into ignoring local recreational needs."

A recreation commission sponsored by the city could get government grants.

Money will be needed to get planning work off the ground.

TWO PARKS
Said Mr. Benzie: "City hall claims to own two parks — Centennial Heights and Wharmcliffe."

"Centennial Heights park is just a swamp right now and the word 'park' is used loosely in referring to Wharmcliffe."

"I saw a horse racing through the ball diamond there."

Said Mr. Dobson, who is leading a Rotary Club drive to build a swimming pool: "From a recreational standpoint, Duncan is 100 years behind the times."

"We in the chamber are ratepayers and out voice has some strength."

"We have to shake the city out of its rut and an independent commission will not meet the situation. We must have the city behind us."

MAN GETS 30 MONTHS
FOR ASSAULTING GIRL

CHEMAMUS — An indecent assault on a seven-year-old girl resulted in a 2½-year jail sentence for Graydon Louis Rosenthal, 32, of Crofton, Wednesday.

Rosenthal pleaded guilty to the offence which was committed on Crofton waterfront.

Director Sam Keeble said if the chamber proves itself by recruiting sufficient new members to win the maximum $500 from the city it will have a stronger argument for next year.

President Dave Pollock said this was no time to be taking kicks at council. He reminded the chamber their tourist bureau building taxes are paid by council.

Whirling prop blades churned the water into a white froth, a few spectators cheered, and a new Vancouver Island ferry service was on its way Wednesday.

An hour and 50 minutes later the 151-foot ferry nosed into the slipway across the Strait of Georgia.

Twenty miles is all that separates Comox and Powell River. But it has taken years of prodding by residents and countless months of planning by government officials to get the service inaugurated.

On board was Highways Minister P. A. Gagliardi and Mrs. Jean Campbell, wife of Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Campbell.

Special attraction on the new run will be two full-time girl tourist counsellors.

UBC students, they will stay with the ferry throughout the summer months giving advice and information about B.C.

Cost of the ferry was $627,000. Said Mr. Gagliardi: "If this ferry proves inadequate the ferry authority will build a larger one."

Whirling prop blades churned the water into a white froth, a few spectators cheered, and a new Vancouver Island ferry service was on its way Wednesday.

Chamber Aid
Boost Urged

DUNCAN — City council was accused Wednesday of adopting a parsimonious attitude toward the Chamber of Commerce.

Past president Cliff Pascoe said the city's attitude regarding financial support is forcing the chamber to go hat in hand like beggars.

He was referring to the city's offer to make a dollar-for-dollar contribution this year based on the number of new members enlisted by the chamber.

Mr. Pascoe claimed it was a city responsibility to support the chamber. "There should be no strings attached to any donation."

Director Sam Keeble said if the chamber proves itself by recruiting sufficient new members to win the maximum $500 from the city it will have a stronger argument for next year.

President Dave Pollock said this was no time to be taking kicks at council. He reminded the chamber their tourist bureau building taxes are paid by council.

REQUEST BY JURY

More Breath Tests Urged

QUALICUM — Investigation into possible increased use of breathalyzer tests was recommended Wednesday night by an inquest jury.

The jury was investigating the deaths of Port Alberni residents Sharon Tallan, Harold Cyr and Edward Alexander Jones, and George MacGowan of Calgary, as a result of a head-on two-car collision near Coombs May 2.

Nanaimo pathologist Dr. Stanley Grant said all four died as a result of blows on the head.

The jury was told a car driven by Cyr was trying to pass a line of vehicles when it met a vehicle driven by MacGowan on the Parksville-Alberni highway.

Coroner Russell Inkster, summing up, suggested the jury seriously consider a recommendation that breathalyzer tests be made compulsory to prevent "the carnage on our highways today."

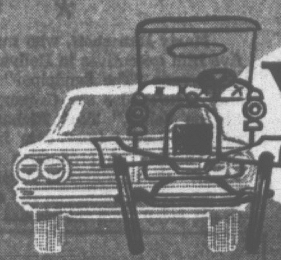

The jury recommended the law and medical professions fully investigate the use of breathalyzers.

The inquest learned Cyr had a record of mental disturbance and had been an inmate of mental institutions. They recommended a closer examination be made before driver's licences be issued to anyone with such a history.

The victims died because of excessive speed and reckless driving of Harold Cyr with alcohol a contributing factor, the jury said.

Cyr was driving a car belonging to Jones, who was in the front passenger's seat. In the back seat were Mrs. Tallan, her infant son Darryl and Melinda and Martha Sabbas of Hot Springs Cove.

VOICE OF BROADWAY

By DOROTHY KILGALLEN

Miss Midnight's Notebook: No matter what happens to "Flora, the Red Menace," Liza Minnelli's future is assured. She'll do a TV spectacular this fall, and all kinds of theatre-TV movie offers are coming in. . . . There's considerable tension on the "Flight of the Phoenix" set in Yuma, Arizona. Members of the cast tread warily when Ernest Borgnine gets into one of his temperamental moods (see Ethel Merman for a more vivid description) because when things aren't going his way Ernie is a genuinely tough guy.

When Sandy Koufax isn't swinging his bat he's swinging with Myra Ross, the sultry looking motorbike beaut in "Beach Blanket Bingo" . . . New twosome in Fort Lauderdale: John Jacob Astor and Lela De Fee, who appeared at the going away bash tossed by Tony Sweet just before John took off on his yacht for a 10-day cruise. John, observers report, seems to have mellowed; he made a very jolly guest of honor at the party.

The hip thing to do, if you can wangle an invitation, is see a screening of "Harvey Middleman, Fireman," an off-beat comedy produced by Robert L. Lawrence in association with Ernie Pintoff, famed for his whacky cartoon shots. (He won an Oscar for "The Critic.") . . . Leslie Uggams, who headlined at the Copacabana only recently, has already been booked to star there again next April—a big compliment from New York's top "showcase" nightclub. . . . So you want to be a co-producer? One Broadway show couldn't pay off the backstage crew the other night.

There's a big mystery surrounding Anna Moffo's appearance in Buenos Aires; it might be titled "The Case of the Silenced Canary."

When the Metropolitan opera star was down rehearsing her role to open the Buenos Aires opera season, she called her New York representatives: "Miraculously escaped certain death when bomb exploded in opera house. Nobody knows who or why. Damage still undetermined. Premiere still set."

The story, issued from New York, made news all over the United States. But after a few hours the story was "pulled" and Miss Moffo's New York representative was told by some "press office" in Buenos Aires that the story was a hoax, there had never been a bomb explosion.

Two days ago, Miss Moffo's man in New York received a telephone call from Van Johnson's manager, who had just returned from Buenos Aires. He confirmed that there had indeed been a bombing, after which he and Van had had a drink with Anna in their hotel lobby to help calm her nerves.

He said glass was blown all over the place and that indeed it was a miracle that she had escaped uninjured. He had no theory about the sudden cover-up from South America.

Marty Ransohoff, who makes more phone calls than any five film executives in Hollywood, is en route to London after he screens "The Sandpiper" for Liza and Richard Burton in Paris. He'll also see Gregory Peck, who'll star in his "Ice Station Zebra." Tony Richardson who's editing four hours of "The Loved One" film into a two-hour movie, and the staff setting up production for Kim Novak's "Day of the Arrow" which starts in August somewhere in Europe.

Marty's explanation for all that activity: "I just wanted to get away from the phones for a few days."

HE GIVES AWAY GRAND PRIZES

Is there something you want to know? Do you want to win a set of valuable books or other instructive prizes? Then ask Andy. Andy will answer questions submitted by child readers and those who submit the questions he selects to answer will receive worthwhile prizes. The youngster who asks the first question answers each day receives a 30-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia and the second question a Hammond Atlas or Globe.

Andy sends a complete, 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia to Jim O'Neil, age 12, of Rochester, N.Y., for his question:

What are the substances in wood?

There are hard woods and soft woods and woods of almost every shade of brown. The wood from every tree has its own qualities of texture, grain, density and durability. Each tree has its own wood-building recipe, but the basic ingredients are the same in every case.

A list of all the different substances in the plant world would be very long. But all these substances are transformed from the simple plant sugar manufactured by plant greenery during the process of photosynthesis. Wood does not resemble sugar, and any sample of wood contains a number of vastly different substances. What's more, its ingredients are slightly different from those in every other type of wood. Nevertheless, the basic building material for all plant materials, including all the different woods, is simple sugar.

During the daylight hours the tree's green chlorophyll manufactures sugar from water taken from the soil and carbon dioxide taken from the air. Later, countless molecules of this sugar are reprocessed with assorted molecules of minerals taken from the soil through the roots of the tree. The major wood-building substance is cellulose. About 60% of all wood is built from this tough and stringy carbohydrate substance.

Linen Made of Cellulose

Cotton and stringy materials such as linen are made almost entirely of cellulose. Its fibrous threads, however, are too pliable to make wood sturdy enough to support a tree. It must be stiffened, and the assorted stiffening materials come under the heading of lignin. Some of the wood-making cements in lignin are very complex, and not all of them are known to science. About 25% of the substances in an average sample of wood are lignins, but the percentage varies in different types of trees.

The bulk of the world's wood is composed of tough and stringy cellulose. The list of other ingredients is very long, but like cellulose, all of them are composed of molecules made from carbon, hydrogen and oxygen. A wood sample may contain large or small amounts of gum, resin, oil or wax. It will contain pigments to give it color and traces of chemicals to give it its own particular odor.

If we analyzed all the different woods of the plant world, we would find dozens and perhaps hundreds of different substances. The rubber tree manufactures a rubbery gum called latex. Evergreens make quantities of weatherproof, insect-proof resins. Other woods contain poisonous alcohols or sweet-smelling oils. Science is still probing the mysteries of many of these complex chemicals and the recipes used by the trees to make them.

Andy sends a World Book Atlas to Mamie Tucker, age 10, of Cleveland, Ohio, for her question:

How many bones has the human body?

The gristly skeleton of an infant has seven more bones than the bony skeleton of an adult. As a baby grows the separate units of his skeleton become harder and larger, and some of them become welded together. The welding changes take place in the spine. The spine of an infant is made from 33 gristly vertebrae. The spine of an adult generally has 24 bony vertebrae.

The changes take place in the nine vertebrae at the tail end of the spine. The four lowest vertebrae weld together in a single unit called the coccyx. The next nine bones unite to form the sacrum. The normal human skeleton begins with 206 gristly units and ends with 199 separate bones.

TEEN-AGE CANADA

This Club Is Exclusive

Is there any evidence that Canadian high school students have the same interest in science that is bubbling in countless schools below the border?

All the answers to that question were unveiled earlier this month in Winnipeg as the cream of Canada's science-minded students competed for top honors in the National Science Fair.

Canada's science fair movement, now eight years old, is the best answer anyone has thought of to answer charges that this generation is lack-lustre, naked of goals, weary before starting life or just plain beat.

A record 39 centres sent their top exhibits to the national competition. And the winners were more than good. Entries have dealt with everything in the past from betaray spectrometers to moths, fossils—or the Milky Way.

It's only fitting that Winnipeg was the site this year. The seeds of the first national competition took root there in 1957 and have just never stopped growing.

If all this interests you, it's too late, of course, to think of entering an exhibit this year. But now is the time to start thinking about next year. Many of the exhibits in Winnipeg were the result of at least 18 months or two years' planning.

How do you enter a local science fair? Well, if your school or someone in your area sponsors one, it's simple. Speak to your science teacher and he or she will guide you from there.

First Step

First, you should have a basic idea of what you want to illustrate in a project. This may come from your own thinking, a science class or someone else's suggestion. Next comes the actual project and making the exhibit.

Never, say the judges, think about the exhibit as the first step. "The exhibit," they claim, "is just one part of a learning and creating process." Many exhibitors fall down on this basic point.

I hope this has sparked a bit of interest in your own science fair prospects. If so, you're on the way to joining Canada's most exclusive high school fraternity—society—the science fair set.

Summer Jobs

Still thinking about a summer job with no definite ideas? Have you ever considered the following offbeat jobs?

● Summer cottage babysitting. The one place parents often yearn to have their children supervised—and can't find help—may be right at your own beach.

● Walking dogs. This isn't as crazy as it sounds. A friend I know placed an advertisement two summers ago and made steady pocket money each week exercising everything from spaniels to Irish setters.

Let us know if you have similar ideas you'd like to pass on to other readers.

Kit Sells For $67, Says Firm

ELKHART, Ind. (UPI) — A private drug firm said Tuesday that Sen. Russell B. Long, (D-La.) had "inaccurate and incomplete" information when he charged the firm with trying to sell a $6 bloodtesting kit for $62.

George W. Orr Jr., president of Ames Co., a subsidiary of Miles Laboratories Inc., said his firm sells the kit for $67.71. He also said the cost of producing the kit is "several times" the $6 figure mentioned by Long.

The kit, developed at government expense by Dr. Robert Guthrie at the University of Buffalo, tests blood to detect a brain-damaging infant malady called Phenylketonuria — commonly known as PKU.

Long, citing the case Monday as an example of "what happens when a private company gets a monopoly," criticized the granting to Miles Laboratories of a licence to produce the kits.

Long said the Miles price was "so exorbitant that many states would have to curtail their programs with the ultimate sufferers being innocent, mentally retarded children, who could have been saved."

Orr denied that Ames had obtained a "monopoly" on the kit, known as the Guthrie test. He said a request for exclusive marketing rights was not granted.

Orr also said Ames "has spent many thousands of dollars in testing, refining and equipping manufacturing facilities to produce the test and has not yet recovered its expenses."

MISS PEACH

SCENIC LOCATION of British Columbia's newest university, Simon Fraser, is shown in this photo taken recently. The school opens its doors in September to 2,000 students.

Simon Fraser plans innovations in teaching and administration, among them introduction of a tri-semester system to replace the normal September-May school year. (CP Photo.)

Revolutionary Ideas At New University

By DENNIS ORCHARD

BURNABY, B.C. (CP)—Rudi Haering came to Canada from Switzerland when he was 13 and with a quick mastery of English raced through secondary school in three years.

He topped the 1,100-member freshman class at the University of British Columbia and picked up $12,000 in scholarships on his way to the PhD he won at 23.

Season him with a few years of college teaching, intense research, and the authorship of more than two dozen scientific publications, and you have the 31-year-old head of the physics department at new Simon Fraser University.

Youth, brilliance in research and an interest in the academic life will be the faculty rules when Simon Fraser opens its doors to 2,000 students here in September.

It is striking out with aplomb, based on carefully reasoned innovations in instruction and administration, and on its ability to attract exceptional men. For 150 initial faculty positions Simon Fraser received more than 3,000 applications.

"This is the most exciting thing that has happened in Canadian education in two generations," says one department head.

"No one has ever started in this way."

EXPERT PLANNER HIRED

"Normally, for one reason or another new universities have to make do with mediocre staff to start with. Before you know it these men are deans and department heads and it takes you 25 years to attract any competent men."

Directing academic planning is linguistics specialist Ronald J. Baker, 39, who helped to prepare and write the Macdonald report on higher education.

The provincial government drew plans for Simon Fraser out of the needs forecast by the report, and Prof. Baker was hired away from the University of B.C., where he had been an associate professor of English.

He says setting up a new university is "the chance of a lifetime—some people would say the chance of a thousand years."

"We started with some fairly firm ideas and we've found new ideas in education, but the mixture of them is our own mix."

Simon Fraser, for instance, will abandon the September-May school year in favor of a tri-semester operation. This will keep classrooms in use continuously and allow students to take 16, 32 or 48 weeks of instruction a year. Faculty members will lecture for two semesters and get a third for research.

The average general arts course will involve five subjects per semester for eight semesters. Thus a student may complete his BA in less than three years if he takes no break.

DEPART FROM TRADITION

The university's job is to complement the 15,500-student University of B.C., and relieve UBC's burden of numbers. Simon Fraser will open with only three high-enrollment faculties—arts, science and education—and make them close neighbors in a single academic quadrangle centring the 1,200-acre site that overlooks Vancouver from Burnaby Mountain.

The university will ignore the tradition of making English and another language compulsory first-year courses. But it intends to teach the spoken word to those specializing in languages and these students will be drilled with native speakers and the newest forms of electronic aids. Simon Fraser will accept athletic scholarships.

A. R. MacKinnon, 37-year-old dean of education, will make perhaps the most significant departure from standard Canadian practices.

Drawing from experience with the Harvard internship system as a visiting professor there, he will take his education students fresh from their required courses in arts and place them immediately as four-man teams in high schools, each team working under a top, experienced teacher.

These raw students will spend eight weeks teaching, planning classes and evaluating performances before returning to the campus for a reading period.

Car Clearing Deadline Set For Parade

All traffic on Victoria Day grand parade route must be cleared by 9:30 a.m. Monday, chief John F. Gregory said today.

Parked cars will have to be removed a half hour earlier in order to have the mile-long route ready for starting time at 10.

Units will form up in Mayfair shopping area and march south on Douglas to Yates, west on Yates to Government, south on Government to Belleville, east on Belleville to Douglas for dispersal.

Militia units will go west on Superior to Menzies for break-up, while regular forces will go east on Superior to Douglas and Michigan for their buses.

Guns from 5 B.C. Field Battery will go west on Superior, north on Menzies back to Belleville to take up gun positions on the Causeway.

The saluting base will be in front of city hall, west side of Douglas, where there will be seating for pensioners and Mount St. Mary's Hospital patients.

Approaches to the assembly area will be kept clear for emergency routes via Rose, Finlayson and Tolmie Avenue.

Square dancing and trampoline acts will make use of some intersections just prior to the parade.

Tennis Clinic Restricted City Children

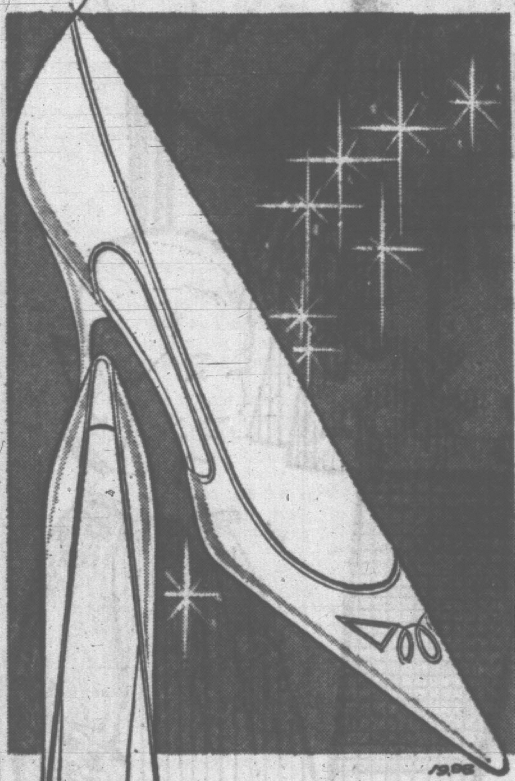

Applications to take part in a new children's tennis clinic must be from City of Victoria residents only, the parks department stressed today.

The clinic, sponsored jointly by the city and B.C. Lawn Tennis Association, starts in Beacon Hill Park June 28.

Registrations are sought immediately, and although it is hoped to expand the instruction to the whole area later, the original program must be confined to the city of Victoria.

Children must be aged 10-16 inclusive, as of June 1. Registration is in city hall parks department.

The Great White Way

DEW Line 'Obsolete; Missiles First Threat

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. Defence Secretary McNamara says the North American radar systems built in the 1950s to warn of possible enemy attacks are "either obsolete or of marginal value to our over-all defences."

This has resulted, he told a closed session of the House of Representatives appropriations committee, from changes in the probable type of enemy attack.

MISSILE THREAT

He said attacks now are expected from missiles whereas the warning system had been oriented to attack by manned bombers coming from the north over Canada or from the sea-ward flanks.

McNamara's testimony, similar to statements he made previously on the radar systems, was given in March and released last week by the committee.

"Three basic lines of radar were constructed across the northern approaches," he said. "But in any deliberate, determined attack upon the United States, we can assume that the enemy would strike first with his missiles and then with his aircraft. Thus, the arrival of the missiles would, in itself, signal the attack long before the bombers could reach their targets."

The DEW line was built in the mid-fifties at a cost of $400,000,000 and was entirely financed by the United States.

The RCAF Air Defence Command in 1959 assumed control from the USAF of the four main DEW line sites in Canada—Cambridge Bay, Cape Parry and Hall Lake in the Northwest Territories and Cape Dyer on Baffin Island.

COLUMBIA CEREMONY

WAC ORDERS A ROUND BUT BLACK PAYS SHOT

KASLO (CP) — Premier W. A. C. Bennett walked into a beer parlor in this little Kootenay town and ordered drinks all round.

The action started some 15 loggers, farmers and workers in the licensed premises since the premier is well known as a non-drinker who usually shuns drink-serving official functions.

Mr. Bennett had just come from a ceremony to mark the official start of the giant Columbia River development project. The premier, accompanied by Provincial Secretary Wesley Black, went into the beer parlor on his way to meet waiting press men here.

He shook hands all round, complimented one man on the length of his beard, and ordered drinks for those present. Actually Mr. Black shelled out the cash for the beer. The premier, of course, didn't have a drink himself.

$2,000 ROBBERY

Bandit Kills Credit Man

VANCOUVER (CP) — Police were searching today for a fair-haired bandit who shot and killed a trust company executive, twined violently, then scooped $2,000 from a cash drawer and fled.

Jan Kelderman, about 46, was shot Wednesday when he was shot through the chest during a brief scuffle with the gunman. Employees of the Commonwealth Trust Co. branch said the bandit, described as about 25 to 30, twined violently after the shooting and became glassy-eyed as he sprang to a nearby cash drawer.

Police said the bandit spoke to Mr. Kelderman, assistant credit manager, on the pretext of seeking a loan and suddenly jumped up and screamed: "Where is your vault?"

Branch manager Milton Lake described the shooting this way: "There was a scuffle. There was one shot through the glass. I heard another shot right after the first. Kelderman fell down."

Teller Mrs. Joan McLeod screamed: "You didn't have to shoot him—the money is all insured."

Police believed the bandit escaped in a stolen car, found later outside an apartment building.

Mr. Kelderman is survived by his wife and four children.

'CANADA SHOULD SET AN EXAMPLE'

(See also Page 33)

OTTAWA (CP) — The Shah of Iran called on Canada today to set "a brilliant example" in the world-wide drive to cut the gap between the have and have-not nations.

The Iranian ruler, in the major speech of his week-long state visit to Canada, said this country's material prosperity and "social and moral conditions" qualified it for a leading role in efforts to raise international economic standards.

"I feel certain that Canada will accomplish this mission splendidly," he told a Canadian Club luncheon.

Everest Conquered

KATMANDU, Nepal (Reuters) — A two-man Indian team climbed Mount Everest today and tied the Indian flag to a four-foot flagpole left on the summit by the 1963 American expedition.

The two mountaineers reached the 29,028-foot peak of the world's highest mountain this morning and spent a half-hour there.

'It Was Like A Bomb Fell Down'

NEW YORK (AP) — "All of a sudden, it was like a bomb fell down," says the meat section manager who was serving customers when the roof of a Brooklyn supermarket collapsed and rained tons of concrete slabs and plaster debris onto customers and clerks.

The manager, Sam Kinker, 61, and his four women customers fled through one of the broken windows.

Twenty-three persons—mostly women shoppers—were injured. Most of them were treated at hospitals. Four were admitted. Police, firemen and residents of the neighborhood pulled several victims out from under chunks of concrete.

"It's a miracle no one was killed," Fire Commissioner Martin Scott said after inspecting the ruins of the Food Queen supermarket in the Bensonhurst section Wednesday.

REDISTRIBUTION

Political Spokesmen Favor Plan

Premier Bennett said today that British Columbia will have redistribution of its federal ridings possibly before the next provincial election.

"We will either accept these new federal boundaries or we will have redistribution on our own," he said.

"We have not had time to study these proposed federal boundaries, so I wouldn't like to speculate."

"What is reasonable from a federal standpoint may not necessarily be reasonable from a provincial standpoint. People setting federal boundaries do not have to deal with all the problems an MLA has—problems involving schools, hospitals etcetera."

"We hope to have redistribution by the next election, but if an election comes unexpectedly we may not be ready."

"We don't want to fence ourselves in."

The premier said B.C. will not make representation at the federal redistribution hearings.

IN FAVOR
Spokesmen for various political groups in Victoria spoke favorably of the redistribution.

But the majority reserved judgment until they had had time to study the changes.

U.S. TROOPS 'NEUTRAL'

WASHINGTON (AP) — The White House said today American troops in the Dominican Republic remain under orders from President Johnson to "observe neutrality" between contending junta and rebel forces.

Press secretary George E. Reedy made the statement when asked about published reports that American troops have been aiding the junta cause.

Truce Sought To Get Bodies In Dominican

SANTO DOMINGO (CP) — United Nations and Red Cross officials today tried to get leaders of the rival civil war forces in the Dominican Republic to sign a 12-hour ceasefire and allow the removal of dead and wounded from the fighting zone.

The Red Cross said bodies of men, women and children had been rotting in the streets for days.

A spokesman for the UN peace mission said both the junta and the rebels have agreed "in principle" to the 12-hour ceasefire.

But the spokesman said that Col. Francisco Caamaño Deno, head of the "constitutional" rebel government, refused to sign a joint agreement with Gen. Antonio Imbert Barreras, the "national reconstruction" junta president.

The UN official said efforts would be made to try to get the two men to sign separate agreements for a daylight ceasefire Friday in order that the Red Cross can take care of wounded and dead in the fierce battle that has raged in the city this week.

The junta, meanwhile, claimed "absolute control" of the country and called for unconditional surrender of the rebels.

A TOUCH OF WATER TURNS BLACK TO PINK

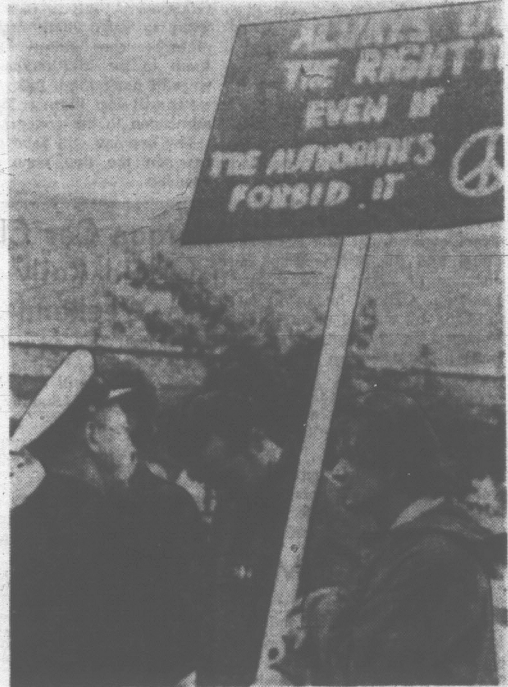

A first in the Pacific Northwest newspaper business is scored in tonight's Times.

On Page 38 is Eaton's advertisement printed in "Magic Color."

Through use of a special ink the paper appears to be printed in the usual black.

But, an ordinary child's paint brush, dipped in water, transforms the page into a beautiful pink.

Try it.

Six Survive Jetliner Crash

CAIRO (UPI) — A Pakistan airliner crashed in a ball of fire today while approaching Cairo airport on an inaugural flight, killing 121 of the 127 persons aboard, including seven Americans.

TO JAPAN

Times Joins Mission

The advance party of British Columbia's largest government mission to go abroad will take off from Vancouver for Tokyo Friday afternoon and The Times will go with it.

Legislative reporter John Mika will accompany the advance party to be on hand for Premier W. A. C. Bennett's arrival Sunday in the Japanese capital.

He will send back periodic reports on the activities of the eight-man mission—including five resource ministers and two aides—in their examination of the "economic miracle" that has created a major industrial power out of the ruins of 1945.

Besides reporting on the tours of industrial plants and meetings with government and big business leaders, Mr. Mika will search for material on the implications of Japan's resurgence.

He will journey to Hong Kong with the premier's party.

But when the mission flies back to Canada June 6, Mr. Mika will continue through the Orient alone, stopping at Manila and then returning to Japan for a 10-day solo tour in search of stories of interest to British Columbians.

All six survivors were Pakistanis, as were most of the passengers on the Karachi-Cairo-London flight.

The Boeing 720B jet was flying a new leg of the air route linking China with the Middle East, and Communist diplomatic mail and propaganda was found scattered among the wreckage.

The plane carried 115 passengers and 12 crew members. Ten of the victims were identified as Chinese.

The plane's charred wreckage was scattered over a half-mile area of the Halzouny Valley about 10 miles from the airport.

One of the survivors, Djalal Elkarimi, said he and the others who escaped death were in the back of the plane.

"It's a miracle that any of us lived. We all should have been killed," he said.

A rescue team member reported that when he reached the wreckage, about 200 or 300 Bedouin tribesmen were searching through it, "pillaging and doing nothing to help the survivors."

It was the third worst single air crash in aviation history. The worst occurred June 3, 1962, at Orly airport near Paris. A chartered Boeing 707 jet hurtled off the runway and crashed, killing 130 persons, including 121 from Atlanta, Ga., who were touring European art centres.

The sweeping jetliner, which crashed today left Karachi yesterday night, stopped in Dhahran in the Persian Gulf and was

KOBLENZ (Reuters) — Queen Elizabeth was cheered by thousands of West Germans today when she appealed for Anglo-West German efforts to "forge a new and better understanding" between the two countries.

The British monarch, applauded in this wine-growing centre 35 miles south of Bonn, was making the first public speech of her 11-day state visit to West Germany.

With Prince Philip at her side, the Queen said:

"For 50 years we heard too much about the things which divided us. Let us now make a great effort to remember the things which unite us. With these links we can begin to forge a new and better understanding in the future."

CITY AREA MPs TAKE OPPOSING VIEWS ON RIDING CHANGES

Groos—I'll Accept; Chatterton—Intend to Fight

By JOYCE FAIRBAIRN
Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA—The two members of Parliament from the Greater Victoria and south Vancouver Island area take opposing views on the proposed change in electoral riding boundaries proposed by the redistribution commission.

David Groos, Victoria Liberal, says he is prepared to accept the alterations announced Wednesday.

George Chatterton, Esquimalt-Saanich Conservative, intends to fight the proposed re-allocation in his riding.

In an interview Chatterton said that there was no doubt whatever that the commission tried to be "fair and impartial," but he feels it lacked the "local sense" of the area.

Central to his objection is the fact that part of Saanich municipality east of Maplewood Road and south of Cedar Hill Crossroad will be removed from his riding and added onto the constituency of Victoria.

Other areas removed from Esquimalt-Saanich are Melchior, Sooke, Port Renfrew, Shawnigan Lake, Mill Bay and Cobble Hill. The riding will gain the municipality of Esquimalt from Victoria riding.

These changes, said Chatterton, will adjust the population of his riding to 76,000 while the new Victoria riding will have 78,000.

The peace marchers got a cold reception at Chill-Blaine.

Note on electoral boundaries: It's like I allus say, with politicians y' got t' draw th' line somewhere.

It'll be a while before them Columbia dams are currently operatin'.

Arthur Mayse

My mouse and I went to the Junior Chamber of Commerce Exhibition in holiday mood the other evening, and the fair did not disappoint us.

Our impression, in fact, was that the hardworking Jaycees are offering a show well worth taking in, and this pleased corner sends its congratulations to all concerned. With the deserved kudos attended to, let me hop-skip back over our round of curling rink, arena and adjacent carnival.

The exhibition announced itself to us first, as a good fair should, with a jingle of merry-go-round music and an appetizing whiff of hot dogs grilling. Next came two small children, boy and girl as the Lord appointed them, each with muzzles buried in a whorl of pink cotton candy. Beside them paced their father, a patient type, escorting two gay, helium-filled balloons by their long strings.

The signs were auspicious, and inside the curling rink we came at once upon an exhibit of interest. This was the Copper Kettle candy booth, where on a marble-topped table, a bare-armed chef was slicing with a two-handled cleaver a bar or loaf of fudge about three feet long.

Behind him, an authentic copper kettle simmered with the makings of another such monstrous bar. We were each given a cube on a toothpick, and found the fudge excellent. The only other samples we achieved were a baglet of silver polishing powder and a sip of milk. I wish more exhibitors could be persuaded to offer samples of their product, especially the enterprising dealers in Japanese cars whose wares are lavishly displayed in an almost complete absence of Canadian-American models.

But back to the Ex, with a star for the JC Macdonald animal farm stocked by 4-H Club youngsters.

There we lingered by a pint-sized Shetland mare with diminutive colt. "Don't feed me sugar," a lead pencil sign warns. "It will make my baby sick."

So, feeding no sugar, or fudge either, we moved on to a truly noble brown donkey with intelligent ears. He had a sign behind him too; from it we learned, among other items of donkey lore, that the monks who make their wild but delectable oka cheese in Quebec caves use donkey's milk.

Inside again, we yearned over a couple of boating displays, one of which features an outboard rig that gently rises and falls on a sea of what looks like fibreglass floss.

These are among the very few displays aimed at outdoors-minded visitors; I think the merchants who deal in camping, hunting and fishing gear miss a good bet in not exhibiting.

More enterprising is Esquimalt's naval fire service, which boasts a startling pneumatic lady dummy in a blue track-suit. She, or rather the amiable smoke-eaters who man the booth, need no urging to demonstrate mouth-to-mouth resuscitation and heart massage upon her bouncy person.

"We find that a lot of boys and girls are familiar with the latest artificial respiration methods," a fireman said. "It's the parents who don't know them."

Scatter-gunning along, we inspected two of the eight-quart milk dispensers which are now invading Victoria refrigerators at a brisk rate.

One has a tap that turns, the other a button one pushes, and an obliging fairman offered a use for the sturdy plastic udders when drained dry. Partly refilled with tap-water (you cut off a corner and knot the plastic) the bags freeze into a handy coolant for trailer or camp ice-boxes.

JOE BULL

Ex-Chief Of Saanich Dies at 68

Former Saanich police chief, Josiah Bull, died today.

At 68, he had lived all his life in Victoria.

He took over as Saanich chief in 1938 when he was 42.

At the time he had been a member of the force for seven years.

It was just 19 years later—in 1957—when he retired. Recently his health had been declining and only a few months ago he was admitted to hospital for a brain operation.

He was in St. Joseph's Hospital at the time of his death.

He leaves the widow, Gladys, at 4201 Quadra.

He also leaves two sons, Frank and Josiah, Jr., both of Victoria, a daughter, Mrs. Joan Vergouwen of Sidney, five grandsons, three brothers, and five sisters. He was a member of Mount Newton Masonic Lodge.

Funeral service will be in Sands funeral chapel next Tuesday with Rev. O. L. Foster officiating.

Interment will follow at St. Stephen's Anglican Church Cemetery.

Failing to Remain Costs Woman $100

A woman who left an accident scene on April 23 was fined a total of $135 in city court today for failure to remain and careless driving.

Lynda Grace Silvertson, 314 Goldstream Ave., pleaded guilty to a collision on Douglas between Bay and Queens Streets.

She was fined $100 for failing to remain and $35 for careless driving. Her licence was also suspended.

WEEPING WOMAN TOTEM ...

Tears Shed for Frog—Not Devastated Village

By HUMPHRY DAVY

Thunderbird Park carvers have started work on one of the most spectacular totem poles in British Columbia—the Weeping Woman of Tanue.

When completed the 40-foot Haida pole will depict a woman's head with carved tears six-feet in length.

Wilson Duff, provincial anthropologist, described the totem as one of the best examples of Haida art.

The log was donated by B.C. Forest Products.

Carvers Henry and Tony Hunt, who are making the copy from an original totem which once stood in the Indian village of Djigwa, Queen Charlotte Islands, hope to finish it in July.

"It is one of the most interesting totems in the province," said Henry. "It's a real pleasure to work on a piece like this."

The legend of the Woman of Tanue involves the tragic end of the Indian village and its inhabitants for an inhumane act committed to one of nature's simple creatures—a frog.

The woman, also named Djilakows, was the supernatural head of frogs and volcanoes.

According to the legend, five sons of an Indian prince on a fishing trip, one night maliciously threw a frog into a fire and three stones on top of it. They laughed when it popped.

When paddling home the next day, a voice from the shore foretold they would all die before they reached their village. The prophecy came true.

On the following day, Djilakows caused a volcano to erupt which turned the sky to a deep red. Showers of lava set fire to the village and brought death to all its inhabitants but one woman.

The sole survivor, a relative of Djilakows, later became founder of a great clan on the mainland. To this day many Haida Indians claim to be descendants of this woman.

The Totem of the Woman of Tanue is a reminder that a supernatural power sorrows for all animals which are wantonly harmed.

... CATCHES CARVERS' IMAGINATION

Local Fund To Honor Slain Girl

Felicity Gives $150 In Memory

A fund to perpetuate the memory of 14-year-old Susan Freschi has been started by one of her closest friends and her cousin.

The plan was suggested by cousin Felicity Earnshaw, 2637 Chilco, and Vivian Watton, 2242 Sooke Road, both classmates of Susan, less than 12 hours after the View Royal youngster had been found brutally beaten to death near her home.

"Felicity stayed that night here with Vivian," said Mrs. M. G. Watton, mother of Vivian.

"The idea was hatched in the girls' bedroom overnight when neither of the girls slept very much."

"They wanted something perpetual to keep her memory alive—rather than flowers."

A donation of $150, Felicity's entire savings, started the fund, and it has been augmented by nickels and dimes contributed by students at St. Ann's Academy which they both attend.

WRITES LETTER

Mrs. Watton said her daughter has written to Felicity who attended her cousin's funeral in Glendale, Calif., to get her views on how the money could be used. Students at St. Ann's will also be asked how they would like to see the money used.

Possible benefactors at present are UNICEF or the overseas Foster Parents Plan, Mrs. Watton said.

Vivian also plans to canvass at Victoria Riding Academy where Susan took riding lessons. She was preparing there for a competition this weekend only a few hours before she was murdered May 11.

Also assisting in the Susan Freschi Memorial Fund will be a Baha'i group of which Susan's aunt, Mrs. Gladys Earnshaw, is a member.

TRUST ACCOUNT

A trust account has been opened with the National Trust. Donations can be sent to Vivian, 2242 Sooke Road.

Meanwhile, RCMP in Victoria are "continuing today to check out different leads and tips," said Inspector G. M. MacKay who is in charge of the investigation.

"People are still phoning us up and calling in to our offices, but it's slowing up a bit."

"We are averaging about six or seven calls a day," he said.

The 5 1/2 inch rope which was used by her murderer to bind Susan's hands behind her back is still being analyzed at RCMP crime laboratories in Vancouver.

Police have not revealed results of the analyses.

"LEARN BY DOING" are the bywords of the 4-H junior farm club movement, and visitors to the Jaycee Fair the next three days will see the learning "in action". The young people and their animals moved in to the agriculture section today and the scene above was typical as last-minute washing and brushing activities preceded judging in the show ring.

Children Storm Fair Gate As Ride, Food Price Falls

Youngsters poured into the Jaycee Fair in their thousands today.

Big ones, little ones, fat ones, thin ones... they braved threatening rain clouds and cold winds to make the best of the traditional "kiddies day."

While it was all good fun for the children, it was one big headache for the doormen at Memorial Arena.

Chief problem was picking out the age-dodgers. Said one doorman: "After the first few hundred go by they all look alike."

"How do you tell a 12-year-old from a 14-year-old if they don't have any I.D. cards?"

Children under 12 are admitted free all day. In addition they are allowed 25-cent rides, hot dogs, and chips, for 15 cents.

Mecca of today's fair was Macdonald's Farm behind the curling rink.

Toddlers from eight months to 80 "cohed" and "ahed" their way past the stalls of cows and pigs, rabbits and donkeys, while in the background, loudspeakers roared nursery rhymes.

GOAT SHOW

Another crowd gatherer was the 4-H beef and goat show. Young 4-H members paraded their animals before the judges who awarded marks for both the animal and the contestant's way of showing the animal.

While the many exhibitions and shows take up much of the time, most people seem to have found time to look after their stomachs.

So far this week the public has gobbled and sipped its way through 2,700 pounds of hot dogs, 600 pounds of hamburgers and 250 gallons of pop.

"WHETHER you win or not I love you just the same" ... that's the 4-H spirit shown by 11-year-old Gail Anderson of the Saanich 4-H Goat Club as she talks over the doings of the day with her best barnyard friend. (Times photos by Bill Halkett.)

Not to mention hundreds of pounds of pop corn and chips and many more gallons of coffee.

Winner of the $500 lucky number draw Wednesday was Don Murphy, of 6627 Bryn Road, Victoria.

Prize winners in the agricultural section so far are: Gordon Rendle, who swept the field in the Holstein dairy cattle section.

He took all prizes including junior champion, reserve junior champion, senior champion, reserve senior, grand champion and reserve grand.

Likewise, Wes Swan cleared the board with his entries in the Hereford beef class. He took male and reserve male champion and female and reserve-female champion.

In the Jersey class, Dick Muri took the honors.

4-H educational displays: 1, Saanich Jersey Calf Club; 2, Saanich 4-H Goat Club; 3, Saanich 4-H Home Arts.

Shorthorns: male and female champion, George Tatten, Sooke; reserve male and female champion, Ernie McMinn, Victoria.

More than 200 fair posters were ordered down by Saanich police today.

The posters, advertising Meeker's midway, were nailed and stuck to telegraph poles in the Saanich area last week.

Pay Hike Fight Supported

Trustees Oppose Increase Sought By Health Chief

Victoria city council had Greater Victoria school board support in opposing a large salary hike for the chief of Metro Health services, but health board members were not told about it.

Today it was disclosed that Metro Health chairman R. Gordon Lee received a letter from the school board informing him the 1965 health budget was approved by trustees, but that any salary increase for Dr. J. L. M. Whitbread should be limited to five per cent.

Health board members Tuesday requested city council to let Dr. Whitbread have his increase, and that city manager Dennis Young should step aside. Reeve Lee questioned the manager's authority to require negotiation of the doctor's salary.

The medical health director seeks to rise from $16,980 to about $19,000, including benefits and allowances.

HIGHER RATE

Since the proposed budget and Dr. Whitbread's proposed salary were introduced, it has appeared that Victoria alone opposed the higher rate.

Victoria, School District 61, Oak Bay, and Esquimalt are the original partners in Metro Health, formed when the provincial government added rural areas to the district.

Reeve Lee was asked why, when the matter came to a head Tuesday, he did not introduce the school-board letter.

"Nobody is trying to hide anything," he replied, explaining that he felt the letter was irrelevant because school trustees the night before had decided to refer the matter back to finance committee.

He said he took it upon himself as chairman to withhold the letter until the school board came to final decision.

It was the second letter to enter the controversy. At the meeting Tuesday a letter from city comptroller-treasurer James Bramley could not be located, although Reeve Lee said he had read it earlier.

This letter was similar to the school board letter in that the budget generally was approved by council, with reservations about Dr. Whitbread's salary.

Driver Fined $400; Also Loses Licence

A Saanich man was fined $400 and lost his licence today in city court on an impaired driving charge.

Clarence Budynski, 56 Cadillac, pleaded guilty to the charge.

Court was told Budynski hit a telephone pole on View St. Saturday when he was entering the roadway from a driveway.

A blood test revealed a .26 per cent alcohol content.

Damage to his car was about $300, police said.

Ask The Times

Q. I recently bought two bottles of imported wine, one Italian and the other French. Both of them turned murky after they had been opened. Could you please tell me the cause of this and how to prevent it in the future?—R.W.C.

A. It is difficult to tell you exactly what went wrong because you did not tell us the type of wine, how old it is, or its alcoholic content. However, here are some tips from Grover's Wine Co.

Prevent oxygen from getting to the wine when it is being stored. Cork your bottle with a plastic cork or a cork which has a plastic top.

A bottle should be used within 24 hours. When storing it keep the wine in a cool place—not in the fridge and not in sunlight.

Sewage In Channel Protested

CHEMAMUS — A delegation from Chemamus-Crofton Chamber of Commerce will attend North Cowichan council's meeting Wednesday to protest raw sewage disposal into Stuart Channel.

The chamber's stand was taken after the municipality published its intention to seek a permit to discharge a large quantity of untreated domestic sewage into Stuart Channel on a 24-hour basis throughout the year.

Chamber members fear the sewage discharge will despoil Kin Beach at Chemamus.

At a Tuesday meeting a statement was issued: "We insist all sewage which is released into Stuart Channel at Chemamus should be rendered harmless before discharge."

If the meeting with council is unsuccessful the directors will question the municipality's consulting engineer B. W. Sarjeant. Mr. Sarjeant is scheduled to be present at a public hearing on the council application May 28.

Police Hunt Armed Man

PORT ALBERNI — An armed man is being sought by RCMP in the Franklin River district.

One man is in custody and RCMP are conducting a search for another following a break-in at a Bamfield store and machine shop.

Samuel Soow, formerly of Alert Bay, pleaded guilty to breaking and entering and to being in possession of a dangerous weapon when he appeared in Alberni police court. He was remanded one week for sentence.

Police are combing the Franklin River area for a second man. Both are about 25 years of age.

Ostrom's machine shop and adjoining store were entered Monday night, rifles and ammunition were stolen, along with chocolate bars, cash and merchandise.

Alternative Site

LADYSMITH — Adopting the role of peacemaker, Robert Strachan, MLA, has brought North Oyster ratepayers and Ladysmith council together. Instead of ratepayers protesting council moves to establish a garbage dump near Cassidy they will work together to find an alternative site.

CHIPMAN CHEMICALS LIMITED

Leaders in the Field of Garden Chemicals.

This attack was aimed at the city today by Chamber of Commerce member, Will Dobson.

His comment came after city council threw the glove at the chamber's feet.

The challenge: Find seven men to form a recreation commission.

If the chamber can form a commission, the city will have no alternative but to give the commission its blessing.

Chamber director Dick Benzie said the 1964 planning report for Duncan listed the following priorities: a swimming pool, an ice arena, a community centre and parks.

WELL RECEIVED

Mr. Benzie said a recent chamber delegation to council to discuss the recreation problem, was well received.

"But," he added, "the chamber mustn't let the city slip back again into ignoring local recreational needs."

A recreation commission sponsored by the city could get government grants.

Money will be needed to get planning work off the ground.

TWO PARKS

Said Mr. Benzie: "City hall claims to own two parks — Centennial Heights and Wharmcliffe."

"Centennial Heights park is just a swamp right now and the word 'park' is used loosely in referring to Wharmcliffe."

"I saw a horse racing through the ball diamond there."

Said Mr. Dobson, who is leading a Rotary Club drive to build a swimming pool: "From a recreational standpoint, Duncan is 100 years behind the times."

"We in the chamber are ratepayers and out voice has some strength."

"We have to shake the city out of its rut and an independent commission will not meet the situation. We must have the city behind us."

Chamber Aid Boost Urged

DUNCAN—City council was accused Wednesday of adopting a parsimonious attitude toward the Chamber of Commerce.

Past president Cliff Pascoe said the city's attitude regarding financial support is forcing the chamber to go hat in hand like beggars.

He was referring to the city's offer to make a dollar-for-dollar contribution this year based on the number of new members enlisted by the chamber.

Mr. Pascoe claimed it was a city responsibility to support the chamber. There should be no strings attached to any donation.

Director Sam Keeble said if the chamber proves itself by recruiting sufficient new members to win the maximum $500 from the city it will have a stronger argument for next year.

President Dave Pollock said this was no time to be taking kicks at council. He reminded the chamber their tourist bureau building taxes are paid by council.

REQUEST BY JURY

More Breath Tests Urged

QUALICUM — Investigation into possible increased use of breathalyzer tests was recommended Wednesday night by an inquest jury.

The jury was investigating the deaths of Port Alberni residents Sharon Tallan, Harold Cyr and Edward Alexander Jones, and George MacGowan of Calgary, as a result of a head-on two-car collision near Comox May 2.

Nanaimo pathologist Dr. Stanley Grant said all four died as a result of blows on the head. The jury was told a car driven by Cyr was trying to pass a line of vehicles when it met a vehicle driven by MacGowan on the Parksville-Alberni highway.

Coroner Russell Inkster, summing up, suggested the jury seriously consider a recommendation that breathalyzer tests be made compulsory to prevent "the carnage on our highways today."

The jury recommended the law and medical professions fully investigate the use of breathalyzers.

The inquest learned Cyr had a record of mental disturbance and had been an inmate of mental institutions. They recommended a closer examination be made before driver's licences be issued to anyone with such a history.

The victims died because of excessive speed and reckless driving of Harold Cyr with alcohol a contributing factor, the jury said.

Cyr was driving a car belonging to Jones, who was in the front passenger's seat. In the back seat were Mrs. Tallan, her infant son Darryl and Matilda and Martha Sabbas of Hot Springs Cove.

WAC ORDERS A ROUND BUT BLACK PAYS SHOT

KASLO (CP) — Premier W. A. C. Bennett walked into a beer parlor in this little Kootenay town and ordered drinks all round.

The action started some 15 loggers, farmers and workers in the licensed premises since the premier is well known as a non-drinker who usually shuns drink-serving official functions.

Mr. Bennett had just come from a ceremony to mark the official start of the giant Columbia River development project.

The premier, accompanied by Provincial Secretary Wesley Black, went into the beer parlor on his way to meet waiting press men here.

He shook hands all round, complimented one man on the length of his beard, and ordered drinks for those present.

Actually Mr. Black shelled out the cash for the beer.

The premier, of course, didn't have a drink himself.

'It Was Like A Bomb Fell Down'

NEW YORK (AP)—"All of a sudden, it was like a bomb fell down," says the meat section manager who was serving customers from the roof of a Brooklyn supermarket collapsed and rained tons of concrete slabs and plaster debris onto customers and clerks.

The manager, Sam Kinker, 61, and his four women customers fled through one of the broken windows.

Twenty-three persons—mostly women shoppers—were injured. Most of them were treated at hospitals. Four were admitted.

Police, firemen and residents of the neighborhood pulled several victims out from under chunks of concrete.

"It's a miracle no one was killed," Fire Commissioner Martin Scott said after inspecting the ruins of the Food Queen supermarket in the Bensonhurst section Wednesday.

Germans Cheer Royal Plea

KOBLENZ (Reuters) —

Queen Elizabeth was cheered by thousands of West Germans today when she appealed for Anglo-West German efforts to "forge a new and better understanding" between the two countries.

The British monarch, applauded by a flag-waving crowd in this wine-growing centre 35 miles south of Bonn, was making the first public speech of her 11-day state visit to West Germany.

With Prince Philip at her side, the Queen said: "For 50 years we heard too much about the things which divided us. Let us now make a great effort to remember the things which unite us. With these links we can begin to forge a new and better understanding in the future."

MARCHERS

The three were to take part in a sit-down at the Comox air base later this year in an attempt to close the base down.

The rest of the delegation from the United States wished to participate in Saturday's parade from Beacon Hill Park, he said.

The 15 Americans were reported to be heading for their homes today. The Peace House workers returned to Vancouver. Ten members of Vancouver Peace House had gone to the border in an attempt to facilitate the crossing by the Americans.

After being refused admission to Canada Wednesday afternoon, the 15 Americans marched abreast across the border but were halted when border officials called in the RCMP. The police ordered the marchers to return to the United States and 13 complied with the order.

The two who refused were Mr. Robinson and Mr. Plagowski. He said they were joined by Mr. Simones from the Peace House delegation and the trio staged a mid-border sit down.

He said he could understand border officials stopping peace workers who were prepared to engage in civil disobedience "because they were prepared to break federal and criminal laws."

But he said while the officials were technically right they were morally wrong.

"I am against borders. A border is an artificial line. They prevent the free travel of people from place to place."

Three of the Americans were identified as Paul Band, Boston; Tom Cedergreen, Hawaii; and Michael Medaille, Costa Mesa, Calif. The 10 from Bellingham were not identified.

Everest Conquered

KATMANDU, Nepal (Reuters) — A two-man Indian team climbed Mount Everest today and tied the Indian flag to a four-foot flagpole left on the summit by the 1963 American expedition.

The two mountaineers reached the 29,028-foot peak of the world's highest mountain this morning and spent a half-hour there.

Police, firemen and residents of the neighborhood pulled several victims out from under chunks of concrete.

"It's a miracle no one was killed," Fire Commissioner Martin Scott said after inspecting the ruins of the Food Queen supermarket in the Bensonhurst section Wednesday.

"That will avoid much confusion."

Mr. Macfarlane also supported the detachment of Sooke, Metchison and Cobble Hill from the Esquimalt riding.

nounced previously, but it was the first time that the entire $21,225,000 network had been lumped together as one large enterprise.

The announcement named six major projects to be undertaken:

- A bridge across the lower Arrow Lakes at Fauquier at a total cost of $6,000,000;
- Construction of a new highway southeast from the bridge to Passmore and Koch Creek, a distance of 35 miles. Cost estimates were given;
- Relocation of the highway between Fauquier and Nakusp at a cost of $3,000,000;
- A $1,000,000 improvement to the former Celgar road from Nakusp to Galena Bay;
- Establishment of a ferry from Galena Bay to Shelter Bay on the upper Arrow Lakes at a cost of $125,000;
- Construction of a new road along the west side of the Columbia River from Shelter Bay to Revelstoke. The highway department will pay the $1,500,000 cost of 12 miles of this new route and B.C. Hydro and Power Authority will pay $2,500,000 to complete another 17 miles.

The premier said "hundreds of millions" would be spent in the area and residents would benefit.

Mr. Bennett said he would set up a "new cabinet committee" to deal with economic growth in the district.

Canada's Labor Minister Allan MacEachen is due to join the group today when it travels to the Castlegar area for unveiling of a cairn to mark the beginning of construction of High Arrow dam.

Wednesday's ceremony at the Duncan Lake dam site was a preliminary to the main ceremony at Arrow.

The third treaty dam will be called Mica and will be the largest, most costly and spectacular of the three. It will be located 90 miles north of Revelstoke and will be the only one with generating capacity.

five minutes away from the Cairo Airport runway when it disappeared from radar screens.

Airport tower officials and workers on the runway reported seeing "a fireball" in the pre-dawn sky at the time of the disaster. The weather was clear.

The flight had received wide publicity in Pakistan as the first direct commercial link between China and the Middle East, a distance of about 5,000 miles.

Pakistan Airlines began flying to China by way of Canton and Shanghai in 1963 but began its Karachi-to-Cairo run only last week.

The same plane made the first official flight here a week ago but today's trip was billed as the "inaugural."

Twenty-six newspapermen, most of them Pakistanis, were aboard the ill-fated plane, along with some government officials.

missions were established to give fair representation to all ridings, and "great care" was taken to see the commissions had no political bias.

"I cannot therefore see any reason why I should argue with their recommendations so I do not intend to do so, and I will abide by their decision," said Groos.

He added that if the proposals are finally confirmed after public hearings he would have a further statement to make.

BATA LARGEST ON ISLAND

Indonesia Takes Shoe Firm

JAKARTA, Indonesia (UPI)—The Indonesian government has placed under its control the Canadian owned Bata Shoe Company and four other foreign properties, the official news agency Antara reported today.

Bata is the largest foreign-owned company in Indonesia outside of oil firms which previously had been placed under government control.

Originally a Czechoslovakian firm, Bata is owned by Canadians and managed by V. A. Samek, an Australian. It has a factory, and stores throughout the island of Java and employs almost 2,000 Indonesians.

Import Rice From U.S.

SAIGON (Reuters) — South Viet Nam, one of the world's major producers of rice, is expected next week to announce an agreement to import large amounts of rice from the United States, informed sources said.
